HOW REDS HOPE TO SEIZE RULE OF NATION TOLD

Teacher Says New Deal Aids Them.

The plan by which the Communists hope to take over all industry and wealth in the United States and institute a permanent dictatorship was disclosed to the Tribune reporter who investigated the communistic Abraham Lincoln school, 30 West Washington street.

The keystone of the plot, as disclosed to the reporter, lies in exploitation of the fact that the federal government today actually owns a gigantic system of brand new industrial plants, now producing for the war effort.

The disclosure was made to the reporter by Harry J. Canter, his instructor in a course on "war time trade union problems," during the three weeks he was enrolled as a student in the school.

Once Employed by Reds.

Canter worked for the soviet government in Moscow from 1933 to 1937, printing Communist propaganda books and pamphlets in the English language, he said.

The reporter was summarily barred from his classes and ejected from the school when his identity as a Tribune reporter was learned.

The Communists' plan was disclosed during a 1½ hour session of Canter's class in the downtown quarters of the Lincoln school the evening of Sept. 20.

"The United States today has arrived at the critical, or strategic, point in its transition period," Canter said, as he lit a cigaret and leaned back at his classroom desk. "This country today is half socialized, half capitalistic.

"The New Deal administration not only has built and retains as government owned an enormous system of new industrial plants, giving it almost exclusive control of production in many fields, but a huge share of the nation's population are, either directly or indirectly, employes of the government."

Twenty Billion Dollar Empire.

The Index, quarterly publication of the New York Trust company, in a current issue disclosed that America's new 20 billion dollar "industrial empire," comprising 1,500 plants built within the last three years, is three-quarters owned by the federal government. It predicts that if conditions remain unchanged, the government at the end of the war will control more than 50 per cent of the country's aluminum productive capacity, 10 per cent of steel, 92 per cent of magnesium, nearly 100 per cent of synthetic rubber and high octane gasoline, 50 per cent of machine tools and 90 per cent of aircraft.

"And the greater share of the nation's industrial output," Canter continued, "is today being produced for and purchased by the government, at the prices it establishes, for allocation by the government as it sees fit."

The Index, in the same issue, said that war production this year for the government will reach 84 billion dollars, "or more than half of the nation's total industrial output."

"This situation, then, when one considers the gigantic system of war industries involved," Canter said, "already constitutes state socialism, inasmuch as the plants are government-owned, the government allocates raw materials, buys the output and sets wages, profits and prices.

Next Step 'Not Quite Due.'

"However, it does not yet constitute communism, under which ownership and management of all industry, from the top to the bottom, is completely and permanently in the hands of the government." Canter inhaled deeply from his cigaret. "That is the next, inevitable step. But it is not quite due yet. Other things must come first."

"You mean the government must first gain control over the rest of industry?" the reporter asked.

Canter smiled deprecatingly. "That's the problem. That will be a simple matter. "I mean first the masses must be accustomed to the program."

"How?" the reporter asked.

"For one thing, the masses must be accustomed, thru a more widespread extension of rationing, to become habituated to it, and to begin to look on the allocation of all commodities on a restricted and

Charges U.S. Backs Union in Ship Disorder

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

Discipline in the United States merchant marine has been destroyed; drunkenness, thieving, and mutinous conduct aboard ship are every day occurrences, the National Maritime union runs the ships, the officers are helpless, and seamen jeer soldiers and sailors as "chumps" because they are fighting the war "for $50 a month," a wounded ship's officer said last night.

He said that condition exists because the war shipping administration, headed by Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, coddles the union men who flout orders and refuses to back up—sometimes even punishes—the officers who attempt to enforce them.

Charles N. Danielson, 68 year old chief engineer, limped home from the war yesterday. His ship was blown out from under him in Salerno bay after it had been under continuous bombing from the air for five days and nights.

Shrapnel in Both Legs.

Shrapnel had buried itself in both of Chief Engineer Danielson's legs when a German bomb dropped while he sat at breakfast on the ship. He told about it and described the plight of the merchant marine as he sat in his home at 479 Northwest highway, Park Ridge, last night.

"Discipline aboard ship is gone," he said. "There is no use for an officer to 'log' a man or to fine him or clap him in irons. The war shipping administration will not back him up. Captains and other officers have forfeited their licenses for putting unruly, mutinous men in irons. Fines are commonly remitted."

Chief Engineer Danielson explained "logging" a man is setting down his offenses on the logbook; then entering his punishment, usually in days of pay.

All Dealings Thru Delegates.

"The National Maritime union is running the ships," he continued. "I mean the organization headed by Joseph Curran. The union has its agreements with the shipping administration; the result is that the officers find themselves helpless. Everything between the officers and the crew is handled by the union's delegates. There are a deck delegate and an engine crew delegate. They back up the men, no matter what they do, and the officers simply have to take it.

"When a man is fined now, the only way the officers can discipline him is to take the case before a shipping board commissioner when the ship gets into port. The offenders usually are let off. The officers are told: 'Come now; wipe that off the log. Don't be so strict. We've got to have men and we can't get them. And we don't want trouble with the union.'

"Usually the officers protest. But the protests generally are overridden. The commissioners decide for the men and in the end the men thumb their noses at the officers.

Incredible to Old-timers.

"Behavior aboard ship in the American merchant marine today is incredible to a man like me, who sailed under the old order. The union seamen jeer at the navy gun crews aboard ship and at the soldiers they carry on troop transports. The seamen now average at least $300 a month and they call the soldiers chumps because they fight the war for $50 a month.

"Thievery by the seamen has become an every day and night matter. They break into the iceboxes and steal food. Sometimes they eat it; more often they sell it when in port. They steal the ship's laundry and sell it.

"They steal the arms and ammunition aboard ship whenever they can. They take them from soldiers or sailors if they are carrying army or navy contingents. The officers in the merchant marine have to watch that carefully.

Captain Disciplined for Rebuke.

"Drunkenness is common. I know personally of a case in which a drunken seaman went to the captain's cabin late at night and demanded the captain order him food because he was hungry. That captain told him to get out or he'd shoot him full of holes. The captain was reported and disciplined for it.

"I suppose they'll raise the devil with me for telling this, but it ought to be told. That's the only way the condition ever will be remedied.

"Let them take my license. I made my living long before I went back to sea. And I'll make it again. For 20 years I was a motion picture operator, working in the best houses."

How Starving Die in Streets of Calcutta

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CALCUTTA, India, Oct. 12 [Delayed].—The food shortage in Bengal, where it is insisted there is no famine, is getting worse. Deaths in hospitals during the last 10 days have been running from 70 to 90 and on Sunday set a record with 102. These figures, which are for the urban area of Calcutta alone, do not include the destitute who die in the streets.

No figures are available for the rural districts, but relief workers who have been out in the province agree the situation is far worse there than in Calcutta.

Meanwhile, dysentery, small pox, cholera and other ills against which military men are vaccinated but civilians are not, are raging.

The destitute and the dying are lying all over Calcutta's streets. Relief kitchens are functioning, but the ration is estimated at one quarter of what a person should have, even by India's exceedingly modest standards.

Relief Not Well Organized.

Despite all the publicity in the local newspapers about relief, it is evident the undertaking is far from well organized and that many die before the official machinery can do anything for them.

Here is one instance: Last evening at twilight on the Chowringhee, Calcutta's main street, in front of Calcutta's biggest hotel, I stopped to look at the many hundreds who lay stretched along the curbing and close to the walls of the buildings. There was one boy about 5 or 6 years old with a dirty rag about his middle. He was lying motionless on his back. His mouth was half open, his eyeballs were rolled back and I thought he was dead. Then, from somewhere inside the skeletonlike frame, a faint moan mounted to his unmoving lips. After a few minutes others stopped, intrigued only by the idea that an American in uniform was looking intently at the little brown boy.

One Bengal youth in a spotlessly white dhoti [loincloth] and with other signs of prosperity, said to me in English, "What's troubling you?"

Police Give Little Help.

Reluctantly, after I insisted, he went to get a policeman who was on duty nearby. The policeman plainly was annoyed. The idea of disturbing him for one dead or dying boy, as if that were within the scope of his duties! He prodded the child between ribs with the tip of his stick and the youngster's moans became slightly more audible.

One of the persons in the small group of onlookers that gathered went to a nearby restaurant for water, but came back without it. The restaurant keeper would not lend a glass in which to carry the water. Glasses cost eight annas [18 cents] each and one might get broken or the child might have cholera! Finally, from somewhere, a jagged edged tin can was produced. We got the water and the policeman poured some of it thru the open, moaning lips.

That seemed to satisfy the policeman and the complacent onlookers. I suggested to the jaunty Bengal youth that he tell the policeman to call one of the hospitals which take such cases so that the boy would be given the emergency treatment he clearly needed.

Children Roam Countryside.

There was a discussion with the policeman whose temper was rising, and finally the Bengali told me:

"Impossible! The policeman says no provision has been made and he has no instructions for doing any such thing. He won't do anything that is not in his book. Besides that, the boy evidently has no home and no parents. They perhaps may have deserted him or may be dead from hunger."

This last observation undoubtedly was true. One feature of this famine is the abandoned children that are wandering about Calcutta or the country side.

About three hours after I left the inert lad, I passed the same spot again and, groping in the blackout, found him dead. Today the body was gone.

HEAD OF PAINT FIRM DIES IN PLUNGE FROM LOOP BANK BUILDING

Orien R. Conrad, 50 years old, 102 South Waiola avenue, La Grange, was killed last night when he leaped or fell from a window of his eighth floor office in the Federal Reserve building, 166 West Jackson boulevard. His body was found on the roof of an arcade seven floors below.

Conrad, president of the Hockaday Paint company, with offices in room 829 of the bank building, called a friend at 7:30 p. m. The friend, the friend's wife, and Mrs. Conrad went to the office.

They found Conrad's coat on a chair, with three notes. A window in the office was open.

One note read: "Thanks for the beer—true—Connie."

Another said: "Good-by, Miss Kreem. You have [undecipherable] uncle help stay with [undecipherable] and [undecipherable]. O. R. C."

A third note read: "Good-by, baby Jean and Suzanne. Thanks Ralph. Help take care of my Jean and Suzanne for this ordeal. Connie.

Jap Exchange Ship Arrives in Port for Trade

MORMUGAO, Portuguese India, Oct. 15 (AP).—The Japanese exchange ship Teia Maru carrying 1,237 American, 221 Canadian, and 40 Latin American civilians from Japanese controled territory, arrived here tonight. The Swedish ship Gripsholm, carrying Japanese nationals for exchange, is expected here tomorrow.

With few exceptions the Teia Maru's passengers appeared in good physical condition and reasonably well clothed considering their 21 month internment in Japanese territory.

After the essential formalities are carried out by the captain of the port, the Swedish consul will take charge of the repatriates. The Japanese first will unload a 500 ton cargo. Until this and reloading of cargoes are completed, the repatriates will remain on board.

Hungry for Glimpse of Free Soil.

From far out the passengers could be seen lining the rails of the Teia Maru and crowding every porthole for the first glimpse of land. As the ship neared the dock, the massed hundreds of repatriates on deck sent up a disorganized shout.

Altho only a limited few with imperative business were allowed ashore, the others hugged the rails in hopes of getting their feet on free soil again, even if that of a neutral country not their own.

It will require approximately a week to effect the transfer of passengers and cargo.

United States officials who went aboard the ship said about 16 passengers, principally aged persons, are in the hospital.

They brought much copy from news correspondents who had been interned. The stories showed signs of the difficult time the writers had preparing them.

Stories of 2 Years Ready.

Some of the copy written by Raymond P. Cronin, former chief of the Associated Press bureau at Manila, and Russell D. Brines of the same bureau was on fly leaves evidently snatched from Japanese "educational" pamphlets.

As soon as the ship docked, the Japanese established a pressroom in conjunction with the American consul so the correspondents aboard could pour out the stories they have been storing up for nearly two years.

When the Gripsholm arrives, the Americans and Japanese will be marched off the ships along corridors marked off by hastily erected bamboo fences running across the railroad yard fronting on the docks. Each party will go to meet consular officials in separate offices.

The Americans have set up headquarters in one end of a peanut warehouse, while the Japanese have a special tin shed.

ORDER INQUIRY OF LEND-LEASE AS HUGE DOLE

Senate Groups Will Conduct Probe.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—Congress, which helped lend-lease grow into the most gigantic form of military aid the world has ever known, is about to investigate the billion dollar a month program.

A joint inquiry by the Truman war investigation committee and the senate appropriations committee was agreed upon informally today. Chairman Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.] of the latter group said it probably would get under way by Nov. 1.

He then met with a subcommittee to chart the course of the work. Sen. Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], who reported on this meeting, said it had been decided to include also the foreign activities of the office of inter-American affairs, the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and the Export-Import bank.

"The primary purpose will be to give congress and the people an over-all picture of how American dollars are being spent abroad by all agencies," Nye said. "We don't know enough about what this country is doing abroad and what it may have promised to do."

Branded "Colossal Dole."

The investigation was projected in an executive session of the appropriations committee, which heard from Sen. James M. Mead [D., N. Y.], one of the five senators who brought back a report on lend-lease operations as they saw them in the war zones.

Sen. Hugh A. Butler [R., Neb.], who demanded the investigation, termed lend-lease "the most colossal dole of all time." He described it as an outright donation program.

"The 18 billion dollars appropriated directly to the President for lend-lease," Butler said, "is only about one-third of the money involved. Actually the amount involved is about 63 billion dollars, including about 45 billion dollars of authorized lend-lease transactions of goods and services procured from army and navy appropriations.

"Public confidence in lend-lease isn't going to be restored until the people know if it is true that nonessential goods are being shipped abroad at the expense of home consumption, if products shipped to Britain eventually find their way to South American markets to compete with our own products, and if lend-lease has been used to serve politics rather than war aims."

Plans Thoro Probe.

Butler said that Harry Hopkins, Presidential adviser and head of the munitions assignment board, is "the man who runs the lend-lease show, altho he doesn't hold the title of administrator, and he isn't qualified by any experience he ever had to administer the largest fund of money ever appropriated."

McKellar, asked about the scope of the lend-lease investigation, said, "I think the country will be satisfied with it."

Several committeemen added that they thought it would cover the extent of American lend-lease commitments abroad, complaints that American goods bearing British labels have been reshipped by Great Britain to other countries, the nature and extent of reciprocal aid or pledges of repayment from countries receiving aid, and complaints of the globe circling senators that too much gasoline has been shipped abroad for civilian use.

Nazis in Italy Retreat Under Triple Blows

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Oct. 15 (AP).—Reeling from sledgehammer frontal assaults by the American 5th army and their western flank menaced by a powerful British landing force, Nazi defenders of the Volturno river line fell back toward Rome today in some of the fiercest fighting yet seen in the Mediterranean war.

"The enemy's position hourly is becoming more desperate and he will obviously be forced to pull out from all the low area near the river," a military spokesman declared on the basis of news direct from the three day old battle.

Streams of allied troops, tanks, artillery and anti-tank guns poured across the Volturno on scores of makeshift bridges as assault teams consolidated their hold on high ground overlooking the vital Capua bridgehead. Gains east of Capua averaged from two to five miles, an allied announcement said.

Nazis Attack with Tanks.

The Germans yielded their positions only after bitter resistance, and time after time launched desperate tank led counter-attacks in futile efforts to dislodge the Americans and British at key points. Allied tanks and tank destroyers joined the infantry in the furious drive across the still flooded flatlands north of the Volturno and into the heights beyond, which rise to 4,000 feet.

[A German bulletin acknowledged the allies had "superior infantry and tank forces on both sides of the Capua." A Berlin broadcast placed the attacking force at one tank and four infantry divisions.]

Terrific fighting also was reported along the coast near the mouth of the Volturno, where British infantry and tanks poured ashore early Wednesday from new, American type, open mouthed landing vessels and dug in along a canal under the protective fire of three destroyers.

Attack Coastal Anchor.

This amphibious force was attempting to roll up the enemy's coastal anchor four miles north of the Volturno.

[The Algiers French radio reported that the Germans had ordered the evacuation of Italy's entire western coast north of Ostia as a precaution against further allied landings. Ostia is at the mouth of the Tiber river 10 miles from Rome.]

An official dispatch from Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's 5th army headquarters told of the continued and substantial success of his drive thru the vaunted Volturno line. "The 5th army continued its strong drive which is rolling the enemy slowly back," it said.

Build Bridges Under Fire.

Allied engineers, who were among the principal heroes of the initial assault early Wednesday, continued to throw bridges "of every sort" across the river, dispatches said.

Some of the heaviest fighting took place around the town of Caiazzo, a mile north of the river where it makes a northern bend nine miles east of Capua.

Patrols of Gen. Bernard Montgomery's 8th army stabbed forward steadily in the mountainous center of the fighting line that extends across Italy to a point just north of Termoli on the Adriatic. Montgomery's forces were not meeting heavy and sustained resistance at any point.

British Capture Town.

Yesterday the 8th army captured the town of Casacalenda, five miles northwest of Bonefro and 20 miles southwest of Termoli. A spokesman said British and Canadian patrols were approaching the communications centers of Campobasso and Vinchiaturo. [The Berlin radio reported German forces had evacuated Campobasso.]

Flying Fortresses smashed the important rail junction of Terni, 50 miles north of Rome. The Fortresses shot down two of 35 Nazi fighters that rose to attack.

Both Fortresses and Liberators attacked railways along the Adriatic, causing widespread damage.

WLB APPEALS TO J.L. LEWIS TO HALT WALKOUT

Fuel Shortage Cuts Steel for War.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—Walkouts by more than 25,000 coal miners aroused fear in government quarters tonight of another general coal strike, and the war labor board called on John L. Lewis to urge "full and continuous production" of the war vital fuel.

Reminiscent of scenes before the government stepped in and took over the mines earlier this year to assure production, 22,000 of Alabama's 25,000 coal miners left their jobs, saying they had no contract to work now that the mines have been returned to their owners. Thirty-five hundred followed in Indiana. In neither instance was the walkout authorized by the union—the United Mine Workers.

Coal production was virtually at a standstill in Alabama tonight, with only three nonunion commercial mines in operation among the major mines.

As a result of the strikes in Alabama, the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, United States Steel subsidiary, said it would have to bank four blast furnaces and five open hearth furnaces in the Birmingham district. The Republic Steel company said it would bank three.

Appeal Sent to Lewis.

The WLB appeal, addressed to Lewis and other United Mine Workers leaders, dealt with the situation in Alabama, chief center of the current work stoppage. It said:

"We call upon you as a responsible leader of your union to urge the employes to return to their jobs at once so that full and continuous production may be resumed.

"The continuance of the strike by thousands of coal miners in numerous Alabama mines by members of your union is seriously interrupting the production of materials vitally necessary for a country at war.

"This strike is contrary to labor's no strike pledge and the national policy."

A Warning from Ickes.

It was disclosed today that Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, solid fuels administrator, last Saturday wrote Chairman William H. Davis of the WLB urging speedy disposition of the coal labor dispute.

Ickes' letter said he felt that if Oct. 31 arrives without a contract between the operators and miners "there almost inevitably would follow runaway strikes which might well spread to the entire industry."

After the general coal strike of last spring which was followed by government seizure and operation of the mines, the UMW went back to work under instructions from Lewis and the union's policy committee to remain on the job until Oct. 31 while efforts were continued to arrive at a contract.

Mines Returned to Owners.

Ickes this week completed return of the mines to their owners.

Now pending before the war labor board is the latest of a series of proposals to pay the miners for time they spend in underground travel.

Lewis visited WLB headquarters today, at the request of WLB members, and discussed a proposed "portal to portal" pay.

WLB sources indicate that a ruling on the miners' demands will be made next week.

HEAR JOHNSON PERJURY PLEA, COURT ORDERS

Appeals Judges Will Leave Decision to Barnes.

William Johnson.

The United States Circurt Court of Appeals yesterday ordered Federal Judge John P. Barnes to hear testimony on the charge by William R. Johnson, once chief of Chicago and Cook county gamblers, that he was convicted as an income tax evader on the perjured testimony of Atty. William Goldstein, the government's chief witness.

Johnson was found guilty in 1940 and sentenced to five years in prison. His conviction was reversed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals but later upheld by the United States Supreme court.

Order Perjury Charge Airing.

The Supreme court ruled, however, that Johnson's contention that Goldstein gave perjured testimony be heard by the lower court of appeals. Johnson's attorneys have argued that with Goldstein's testimony declared perjured and ruled out of evidence, there would be no case against the once big time gambler.

Johnson's attorneys argued that the alleged perjured testimony of Atty. Goldstein conveyed the impression to the jury that Johnson was the sole owner of a string of gambling houses, including the Bon Air Country club near Wheeling, altho actually, they contend, Johnson shared ownership with William R. Skidmore.

Skidmore, once political fixer for the gambling syndicate, is serving a 2⅓ year prison term as a tax dodger. Previously Goldstein had acted as his attorney.

Scan Numerous Affidavits.

In support of their assertion that Goldstein's testimony was perjured, Johnson's attorneys filed numerous affidavits that Goldstein lied about Johnson to save himself from prosecution for perjury.

In arguments Thursday before the Appeals court, government attorneys denied that Goldstein had committed perjury. They said his testimony was brief and clear cut.

The Appeals court, in remanding the issue for hearing before the trial judge [Judge Barnes], did not pass upon the validity of Johnson's claim. The Appeals court judges merely ruled that this issue should be heard and determined by the trial judge.

Under the Appeals court ruling, Judge Barnes may, if he so decides, rule that the testimony of Goldstein was or was not perjured, and that Johnson is or is not entitled to a new trial.

NEW RED OUTFIT REPUDIATED BY STUDENT BODY

New York, Oct. 15 [Special].—City college's student council voted tonight to repudiate an "anti-Fascist, non-partisan, win-the-war" organization being formed on the campus by leaders of the disbanding Young Communist league. The council action followed two deans' denunciation of the new organization as a subterfuge aimed at corraling unsuspecting students in a Communist group.

Composed of delegates from undergraduate classes, the council also decided to refuse affiliation with a committee started at the school to organize the new group. Max Weiss, president of the Young Communist league, recently suggested creation of the body as a substitute for the league.

The move to repudiate the committee was introduced before the council by George Sherry, managing editor of Campus, an undergraduate newspaper, who declared the "win the war slogans of the YCL and its baby are camouflage."

6 GIRLS REVEAL FINE POINTS OF CHECK PASSING

Tell 200 at Showup How Pelka Operated.

Six young women who would have looked more in character in a business office stood on the showup platform at the detective bureau yesterday and told how they had helped operate one of the largest fake check rings uncovered in recent years.

Activities of the band are believed to have netted its operators at least $50,000—some estimates say $200,000. Besides the six women and three men already in custody, four women are being sought.

More than 200 men and women who had lost money on worthless checks in the last six months were in the showup room when nine prisoners walked onto the platform. Twenty signed complaints against the women, bringing the total of known victims to more than 50.

All Identify Pelka.

Geraldine Hunter, 23 years old, dark haired and wearing a black dress and red jacket, was questioned first, She said she came to Chicago three months ago from Florida and soon afterward met Walter Pelka, 29, a former printer and alleged ringleader.

The other women, all unmarried, are Agnes Corcoran, 19, and Alice Sampareanis, 23, both of 3500 Ellis avenue; Mary Engle, 27, and Grace Geiger, 25, of 6543 University avenue; and Donna Peay, 21, who lived with Miss Hunter at 867 Oakwood boulevard.

All told casually how Pelka provided them with checks and identification badges, which made it easy for them to cash checks in currency exchanges and stores. When Pelka denied these accusations, they scoffed at him.

The other prisoners on the platform were Nick Chamales, 45, of 4943 Lake Park avenue, a bartender, and Mike Valskas, 70, owner of a print shop at 114 East 107th street, who is suspected of printing some of the checks used. Chamales is accused of referring two of the women to Pelka when they were looking for work.

8 Charged with Conspiracy.

Earlier yesterday the six women, Pelka, and Chamales were charged with conspiracy to obtain money under false pretenses after an attempt had been made to free Pelka on a writ of habeas corpus. Judge William V. Daly in Felony court set bond of $7,500 for Pelka and $5,000 each for the others, pending a hearing Monday.

That the federal government has an interest in the case became known yesterday when agents of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department spent several hours questioning Pelka at the Stanton avenue police station.

OPA GRANTS EXTRA GAS RATION TO DEER HUNTERS IN NEVADA

Reno, Nev., Oct. 15 (AP).—The Nevada district OPA office today authorized special gasoline allotments for deer hunters. An official said the action was taken after regional and national OPA headquarters declined to make such a move.

Frank Gorman, district OPA representative, said the decision to allow deer hunters up to 200 miles worth of special gasoline rations was not made public generally. Instead, he said, the Nevada fish and game commission was asked to spread the news by "grapevine."

In written instructions to local boards in Nevada, the district OPA said:

"Because deer skins are urgently used for war purposes and because we believe the amount of meat obtained by deer hunters will help to relieve the meat shortage, we feel that the allowance of a limited mileage for deer hunting will be in line with the war effort."

232 HIGH SCHOOL BOYS PASS ARMY AIR FORCES TEST

Two hundred thirty-two 17 year old high school students passed the army air forces mental tests this week, it was announced yesterday. This is 66 per cent of the 355 who took the examinations.

The tests were given to 177 boys at Tilden Technical High school, with 114 passing; 103 at Gage Park High, 64 passing, and 75 at Harper High school, where 54 passed. The average was called high, but not exceptional.

Examinations will be given in all Chicago high schools within the next 90 days to 8,000 or 10,000 boys.

ALD. J. J. DUFFY TO HEAD COUNTY GAMBLING DRIVE

Allman Raider to Lead Campaign in City.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Law enforcement officials launched a double barreled drive to blast the Guzik gambling and crime syndicate out of existence yesterday with the appointment of new leaders in the gambling war on both the county and city fronts.

Ald. John J. Duffy [19th] became virtual sheriff of Cook county by reason of his appointment as administrative assistant to Sheriff Peter B. Carey, ill in Sacred Heart sanitarium in Milwaukee, Wis., for several months.

Capt. Michael Naughton of Police Commissioner Allman's office, it was disclosed, is slated for appointment as supervising captain in a police shakeup promised by Allman.

Naughton Raid Leader.

Capt. Naughton early yesterday raided the long immune gambling house at 3216 West Roosevelt road, owned by Ben Zuckerman, a political powerhouse in the 24th ward.

Naughton in recent weeks has wrecked a dozen of the gambling syndicate's key resorts, and their so-called nerve centers from which racing news flowed and bets were accepted and exchanged. His work had attracted the attention of the Cook county grand jury which under direction of State's Atty. Thomas Courtney has been centering its attention on one political gambling house at 3227 West 63d street in the 13th ward.

The new moves against the long powerful gambling and murder syndicate had the support of Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission who said the Chicago gambling syndicate was but a department in the nation-wide criminal activities of Paul Ricca and the other syndicate members on trial in New York City for extortion.

Present Evidence to Jury.

State's Atty. Courtney and his chief assistant, Wilbert F. Crowley, yesterday presented evidence concerning city and county protected gambling to the grand jury. The previous actions of Courtney and crime commission representatives had resulted in several important raids in the territory policed by the sheriff, and had brought about the indictment of two of the sheriff's policemen and the suspension of two others.

Charges were made by the crime commission that the gamblers had been given advance information of raids made by the sheriff's police, particularly at 4730 Cermak road, and 5937 Roosevelt road on Sept. 7.

Rocco Fischetti, a cousin of Al Capone, founder of the criminal dynasty now ruled by Jack Guzik, was at the Cermak road place from 1 to 8 p. m. and at the Irving Park road place from 9 p. m. till early morning, Peterson said. A man named Gus Levy was reported to have been the higherup agent of Guzik, however, at the Irving Park place.

Charge Equipment Hidden.

The roulette wheels supposedly taken by sheriff's police from The Dome disappeared, and the advance information given the Cermak road place of the impending raid caused the management to move its roulette wheels to a hideaway, the crime commission charged. The inefficiency of the county police was openly admitted by its commander, Chief Hugh McCarthy, Courtney said, and McCarthy said they ought to be fired but he was not able to hire and fire.

Meanwhile Francis McCurrie and Alex Napoli, assistant state's attorneys, were preparing for the prosecution of the men accused of murdering Martin [Sonny Boy] Quirk—a murder said to have been planned in the 13th ward gambling house at 3227 West 63d street.

They questioned Mrs. Genevieve Forsythe, alias Fawcett, wife of a notorious gunman accused of participating in the murder. They took her before the grand jury, but she gave no important information, they said, other than to say she had seen her husband on Oct. 1.

TAKES COVERED WAGON TRIP TO FULFILL DREAM

International Falls, Minn., Oct. 15 (AP).—Ending an 1,185 mile trip from Painesville, O., in his prairie schooner with a mongrel dog as companion, 66 year old George Martin today was setting up a home in timbered wilderness near the Canadian border.

Martin, who formerly farmed near Painesville, plans to clear part of a 500 acre tract, construct a log cabin and then send for his wife. He left Painesville Aug. 10 in a covered wagon drawn by three horses, averaging about 20 miles a day for the trip, which, he said, was the culmination of a 12 year old dream "to start life all over again."

"My forefathers did it; America's forefathers did it; why can't I?" he said when he left Ohio.

A PAPER BUBBLE BURSTS AT U. S. NEWSPRINT QUIZ

'New' De-Inking Process Old Stuff to WPB.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—The sedate hearing room of the house interstate commerce committee was transformed today into a miniature paper mill, fitted out with bubbling beakers and cauldrons, mysterious chemicals, and whirring transformers.

The manager of the embryo plant was James H. R. Cromwell, husband of the world's richest heiress, Doris Duke, and former minister to Canada, who is currently a partner in Cromwell, Snyder & Co., a chemical company here.

Cromwell had brought his test tube plant to demonstrate to a special subcommittee investigating the newsprint shortage what he claims is a new and improved method of producing paper by cooking the ink out of old newspapers. Among the interested onlookers were Cromwell's mother, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, and officials of the war production board who have refused to sanction a federal loan for commercial paper production via the Cromwell method.

Clippings Are De-Inked.

While Cromwell did the talking and his partner, Francis H. Snyder, juggled the beakers, committee members saw some old newspaper clippings disappear into a series of chemicals and emerge 30 minutes later as something that looked like near-white paper. The substance, it was explained, was a completely de-inked pulp that could readily be made into newsprint or other paper.

As committee members gasped, Arthur G. Wakeman, head of WPB's paper and pulp division, slipped into the witness stand armed with a dose of cold water for Cromwell and Snyder.

"You might try the same thing at home, if you like," he told Cromwell and the committee. "Just ask your wife to put some old newspapers in her washing machine and add some soap. That result also will be very interesting."

200 Patents on It Now.

Before the congressmen could ask for further details Wakeman thrust a thick book under their noses.

"Here's a list of 200 patents for doing the same thing as this process," he remarked, "and there are 40 mills already de-inking paper by proven methods."

Snyder then produced another test tube product and hastened to hand the committee a pulp sample which a few minutes before was an old piece of "asphalt kraft paper."

"The asphalt has been taken out. This has never been done by other processes," Snyder boasted.

Wakeman took one look, dug into his briefcase, and slammed a sample on the committee dais. The sample, he said, was kraft paper currently being made from old asphalt kraft.

"That," pronounced Snyder, "is a filthy piece of paper."

Wants to "Protect" Taxpayers.

As Committee Chairman Lyle Boren [D., Okla.] rapped for order, Rep. Clarence J. Brown [R., O.] asked Wakeman why the WPB would not at least give Cromwell and Synder a chance to show their stuff by recommending a federal loan for their type of commercial paper-reclaiming plant. Wakeman replied there is still an excess of such facilities, and said he wanted to save the taxpayers some money.

"That is the most amazing statement I've heard in this city in 10 years," remarked Brown. "Since when have you fellows been interested in saving taxpayers' money?"

Boren said it was getting late and called a halt.

During the discussion, Cromwell asserted his process would make possible the recovery of 500,000 tons of additional new paper a year from old paper and paperboard. He said it could be used to make newsprint, but this operation was not economically as feasible as making other types of paper. Wakeman retorted that the paper industry is already using all the waste paper it can find.

Prefers Her Pet

MRS. ELLA PATTERSON.

When Andrew Patterson, 38 years old, a draftsman, let his wife's Irish setter, Sharon of Dawn, out of the kennel he put himself right in the doghouse, it developed yesterday. The wife, Ella, 36, of 4114 West 147th street, told Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court she wanted temporary alimony and $86 to pay for the dog's hospital bills.

Irving Eisenman, attorney for Mrs. Patterson, told the court that Patterson was negligent in letting the dog out, with the result it ate poisoned food. Mrs. Patterson then filed suit for divorce.

"It was the start of all their troubles," he said. "She was very fond of the pet. In fact, she feels now that she likes the dog better than him."

ELY CULBERTSON 'STANDS UP' 2,000 AT SCHOOL MEET

A man who feels competent to cope with the problems of world peace and world federation—who even can remember whether the trey of clubs has been played—apparently slipped a cog yesterday in dealing with the relatively simple problem of how to get where he was supposed to be, and how to stay there once he had arrived. As a result, 2,000 teachers attending the northeast division convention of the Illinois Education association in Aurora know no more about world federation today than they did yesterday.

Ely Culbertson, bridge expert and proponent of a plan for world government, arrived in Aurora from Chicago yesterday at 7:44 a. m., in good time for his 10 o'clock speaking engagement at the Paramount theater, where he was to explain his plan to the teachers. But at 9 o'clock he boarded a bus for Geneva, and at Geneva caught the 10:48 for Dixon, where he was scheduled to address the Rock River division of the education association in the afternoon.

The teachers back in Aurora? They waited half an hour, then dispersed.

TWO HELD AFTER FIGHT.

John F. McNulty, 36 years old, boatswain second class in the navy, and John Modoff, 42, operator of Blackie's tavern at 4233 Lake Park avenue, were held by Hyde Park police yesterday after a fight on the second floor porch above the tavern.

DECLARES LABOR SUPPLY AMPLE IN PAPER INDUSTRY

More Power Needed, Says Tribune Official.

Federal officials who allege that lack of man power to cut pulpwood is a main factor in the shortage of newsprint were answered yesterday by Elbert Antrim, assistant business manager of THE TRIBUNE.

"We never had any trouble in getting all the pulp wood we needed for our mill at Thorold, Ont.," he said. "If the cutting of wood is put up to us to keep the Thorold mill operating we will guarantee to do the job. We have always cut all the pulp wood needed, and if we are allowed more electrical power we can keep the Thorold mill operating at capacity."

The reason given for a recent curtailment of electric power to the Thorold mill was that power is lacking to serve all commercial needs after several nearby war plants are supplied.

Offers Aid in Reprocessing.

To alleviate the newsprint shortage in this country to some degree, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, has offered to bring three idle machines at the Thorold mills to the United States to reprocess old newspapers into newsprint. This offer was made in Washington to a special house subcommittee by Antrim in behalf of the publisher.

The curtailment of power at Thorold has reduced the tonnage output of paper at the mills by approximately 60 per cent and has made idle three of five machines.

Antrim said that another solution of the problem could be effected if a small addition of power were granted to run the machines for reprocessing old newspapers. He said only a small volume of power is needed in the reprocessing operation as compared with processing of pulp wood.

Need Authority to Export Waste.

If this additional power is granted it will be necessary to get authority to export waste paper to Ontario. At present, waste paper is classed as a vital material and its export forbidden.

Arthur Schmon, general manager of the Tribune mill at Thorold, produced figures to support the statement that the mill can get all the pulp wood needed. He said that during the fiscal year ending last July the Ontario Paper company, the Tribune subsidiary that operates the Thorold plant, turned over 20,000 cords of pulp wood to another paper mill in Canada. A cord of wood, it was said, will make about a ton of newsprint.

Schmon said that normally about 250,000 cords of pulp wood are cut each year to be made into paper at the Thorold mill and at another Ontario company mill at Baie Comeau, Que. In the last fiscal year 210,000 cords of pulp wood were cut and plans are now made to cut 230,000 this year, he said.

The paper mill manager said that many of the mills that can obtain all the electrical power they need are unable to get pulp wood, mainly because of a shortage of man power to cut trees. Then again, many of the mills are not equipped with modern machines for cutting wood. It was said that these mills could get all the pulp wood that they need if they were well managed.

WPB SHEET EATS UP 27,000 POUNDS OF PRINT PAPER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—More than 27,000 pounds of newsprint have been consumed in the publication of the war production board's weekly tabloid, Labor-Management News, in its first 13 issues, it was learned today.

The Oct. 18 issue, which is being mailed to 2,700 war plants, is the largest yet published and consists of 50,000 copies of the 16 page tabloid. The preceding 12 issues were limited to 30,000 copies each of an eight page paper. Each of the smaller issues required 1,800 pounds of newsprint and 6,000 pounds were used in the current issue.

The weekly is distributed by the WPB war production drive which attempts to stimulate war plant output thru the joint effort of labor and management, according to Edward R. Place, assistant chief of the committee materials branch of the drive.

RUSSIANS LEAVE SINKIANG, CHINA; TAKE FACTORIES

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 15.—As a result of increasingly cordial relations between the Communist government of Sheng Shiha Tsai and the national government at Chungking, Russians are reported leaving Sinkiang province in large numbers and dismantling and removing Russian built plants. According to recent reports, truck loads of Russian families and their household goods are seen every day en route to the Russian border.

The Russians are dismantling an oil refinery to remove it to Russia. An aircraft assembly and mining equipment near the Russian border also are being removed.

Since 1932 the Russians have been helping Gov. Sheng to develop the Sinkiang province, which has an excellent communication line to Russia.

CHICAGO BEGINS RIDING SUBWAY AT 12 TONIGHT

Ceremonies Today Will Mark Opening.

Chicago's first passenger subway, the State street unit, five miles long and constructed at a cost of approximately 34 million dollars, will be put into operation as a part of the elevated system at midnight tonight.

The subway was built as a joint enterprise of the city and the federal government. The estimate of the cost of the initial system, which includes an uncompleted set of tubes in Dearborn street, is about 60 millions. The city's share is all derived from its traction fund; the government allotted a grant of 23 millions, of which about 15 millions has been paid.

Fare Will be 10 Cents.

Thru the State street subway will run the Jackson Park-Howard and Ravenswood-Englewood trains of the L system. Evanston specials and Wilson avenue expresses will be kept on the upper structure. The fare is 10 cents.

Elaborate ceremonies this morning, in which Mayor Kelly and other officials will participate, will celebrate the opening of the service.

Meeting in the Palmer House at 10 a. m., the mayor and his party will go into the subway at 10:15. There a ribbon will be cut to symbolize the removal of the last handicaps to underground operation of transportation.

A control lever will he handed to the mayor by Philip Harrington, subway and super-highway commissioner for the city, and the mayor will pass the lever on to Bernard J. Fallon, co-trustee of the elevated lines.

Brief Talks to be Made.

At 10:50 a. m. the party will leave the subway at Madison street and mount to a reviewing stand, where brief talks will be made by William A. Dudley, managing director of the Greater Central District association, the mayor, and Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, federal works administrator.

There will also be a mile long parade sponsored by State street merchants. The parade, designated a "Cavalcade of Transportation," will leave State street and Wacker drive at 11:30. Among the units will be mounted policemen, Indians and cowboys on horseback, and ancient vehicles.

From noon to 9 p. m. the subway will be open to public inspection.

NEWSPAPERS REACH CIRCULATION RECORD OF 43,374,000 DAILY

New York, Oct. 15 (AP).—Stability for the American daily newspaper industry is seen by the New York Trust company as the result of a tremendous growth of reader interest, evidenced by record circulation of 43,374,000 daily in 1942.

Analyzing what is described as "one of the oldest commercial institutions in the United States," the bank said in its monthly publication, the Index, that more than 40 per cent of all persons over 10 years of age buy newspapers and create an average demand for 1¼ copies daily by each of the nation's 35 million families.

"The newspaper industry today has achieved the triple role of purveyor of news, interpreter, and advertising medium," the Index says.

"Freedom of the press," the Index continues, "has given this country the advantages of a press which, even in war time, enjoys an unparalleled degree of independence in comparison with the rest of the world. This is a vital economic and social advantage which has been maintained successfully by the industry because of a genuine sense of public responsibility."

"The modern newspaper, because of the job it does, both teaches and leads."

Sister Mary, according to Mrs. Amble, was stationed in the mission at Dairen, Manchuria. After the attack on Pearl Harbor, she was taken to Shanghai, China.

DISCLOSE 2 NEW CLEWS IN GALVIN HOME MURDERS

Handkerchief Marked 'B' and Red Car Traced.

Two important clews were disclosed last night in the murder of Mrs. Lillian Galvin and her maid, Miss Edna Sibilski, which occurred a year ago next Friday in the Galvin home at 3038 Normandy place, Evanston. The clews:

1. A bloodstained linen handkerchief bearing the embroidered initial "B" was found in a prairie at Normandy place and Lawndale avenue, about 200 feet from the Galvin residence. Chemical analysis showed that human blood caused the stains. Evanston police found the handkerchief a week after the crime, but withheld the information to further the search for the killer.

2. The automobile used by the murderer was a model A Ford sedan built in 1930 or 1931. The car's body was painted maroon and its fenders black. Investigators are convinced the killer drove this car to the Galvin home and entered at 11:25 a. m. on the day of the crime.

$28,000 in Jewels Missing.

Mrs. Galvin, the wife of Paul V. Galvin, wealthy radio manufacturer, and Miss Sibilski were found slain at 6:40 p. m., Oct. 22, 1942, when Mrs. Galvin's son Robert, 21 years old, returned home. Jewelry valued at $28,000 and furs valued at $3,350 were missing, and no trace has been found of them.

Except for the handkerchief, tangible clews in the mysterious case have been lacking, and the most extensive manhunt in Cook county police history has led to nothing but blind alleys. Chief of Police Carl Ekman of Evanston made public a description of the handkerchief in the hope that some person might be able to help trace its owner.

He said the handkerchief, 14 inches square, was made of excellent quality linen. Tiny red, blue, and green stripes are woven into the cloth near the hem. There was no laundry mark.

Trace 1,000 Model A Owners.

Investigators have compiled a list of the owners of 19,000 model A Fords registered in Illinois, and after breaking down this list are now at work tracing 1,000 of these cars in the search for the maroon machine believed used by the killer. Agents of the Hartford Fire Insurance company, which has posted a $15,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer, are coöperating in this phase of the investigation.

Acting Lt. Henry W. Engstrom and Marcus May of the Evanston police force have worked on the case continuously. They are convinced the crime was committed by a person who was well acquainted with the Galvin household.

Additional evidence in support of this view was revealed yesterday for the first time. In a kitchen cabinet of the Galvin home, the family kept a purse with money for laundry and incidental expenses, starting each week with $15. After the murders this purse was empty. No other cabinets in the kitchen were opened.

25,000 Jewelers Join Hunt.

Circulars listing the jewelry stolen by the killer have been sent to 25,000 jewelers in the United States. Detectives working on this phase of the case are especially interested in one item of the jewelry, an emerald cut diamond ring, center star, 11.2 carats, valued at $17,500, which Mr. and Mrs. Galvin purchased in January, 1941, in Miami Beach, Fla.

Outside of the members of the Galvin family and their intimate friends, few persons knew the value of that ring. Detectives are now in Florida and several eastern states, examining the records of previous owners.

Since the murders, at least 50 suspects have been arrested for questioning. Only one remains under arrest, Jeffery Omar Carroll, 18, a Negro, of 5427 Prairie avenue, who has confessed looting six homes in Evanston and Wilmette. Lie detector tests have caused police to investigate his explanation that he was in Detroit last Oct. 22.

CLOUTS BANDIT WITH SAUSAGE; FOILS HOLDUP

One piece of sausage did more yesterday than help feed the hungry. William Rostek, 3237 North Leavitt street, a meat truck driver, used it as a bludgeon on a Joliet penitentiary parolee who climbed aboard his truck in front of 4255 North Campbell avenue, snarling "Give me your money!"

The sausage didn't flatten the parolee, but it took so much fight out of him that he did not pull the trigger of a .45 caliber revolver in his hand. Rostek and a store clerk, Gus Ankerberg, 2622 Argyle street, who was helping to unload the meat truck, disarmed the gunman and held him until a police squad arrived.

The parolee said he was Frank Harrison, 46 years old, originally of Pontiac, Mich. Harrison was released from prison a year ago after serving 10 years and 45 days for robbery. He told police that altho he holds a degree of doctor of medicine all the work he could get was a $20 a week job in a garage. He said he needed more than that to rehabilitate himself.

FUEL OIL SELLER BLAMES OPA FOR CHAOS YEAR AGO

P. J. Healy, president and manager of the Arrow Petroleum company, 7419 Franklin street, Forest Park, yesterday laid at the door of the office of price administration the blame for chaotic conditions under which the company was forced to operate last winter under the fuel rationing program.

He made his statement during closing arguments of a hearing before Joseph Harrison, OPA hearing commissioner, in which the company was charged with violating OPA regulations by delivering fuel oil without receiving the proper amount of coupons.

A few minutes later Harrison took the charges against the company under advisement, after Bernard Friedman, an attorney on the regional OPA staff, had demanded a six month suspension for the company. Harrison said he probably would make his decision today.

"The Arrow Petroleum company had no intent and has no intent today of doing other than abiding by the proper rules and regulations of any duly constituted agency," said Healy.

Boy, 11, Seriously Hurt in Three Story Fall

Seldon Haas, 11 years old, 3540 Douglas boulevard, was seriously injured yesterday when he fell from the roof of an untenanted three story flat building at 1327 Millard avenue, which police said had been condemned by the city.

WILLKIE DODGES SPECIFIC REPLY TO G.O.P. QUERIES

Prefaces Stand on Party Support with an 'If.'

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 15.—Wendell Willkie tonight failed to give specific answers to a questionnaire sent to him by Missouri Republican leaders seeking his views on international and domestic issues, but he did give his views in generalities on some of the questions raised.

In a speech at a state G. O. P. meeting the 1940 Presidential nominee said he would not discuss problems like "a school boy answering questions" and proceeded with an address which here and there touched on some items mentioned in the questionnaire.

One of these was the question whether, if he is not the nominee next year, he will support the Republican nominee. Willkie prefaced his answer with an "if" which was interpreted by some as looking somewhat like a straddle.

Asserts Party Must Be Sincere.

After declaring the Republican party must be sincere in advocating "real international coöperation," Willkie said: "If the party selects from among its many able men, as its candidate for President in 1944, a man whose record leaves no doubt that he is qualified for the leadership of such a cause, I will, of course, support him. And it is unthinkable that the party will select any other kind."

The tone of party leaders as sampled here during the day appeared to be preponderantly anti-Willkie, altho the meeting was arranged by the G. O. P. state committee, and Grover Dalton, state chairman, was picked to preside and Barak T. Mattingly, national committeeman, to introduce Willkie.

This was described as a "courtesy." Willkie's internationalist views have alienated some of his old supporters in Missouri.

Leaders Generally Averse.

Politicians say that leaders, both in the cities and in the courthouse crowds in the rural counties, who will have much influence in picking national delegates next year, in general are averse to Willkie.

Local newspapers commented that Willkie was met at the train by only two G. O. P. leaders, in contrast to the welcome he received on his pre-convention visit here in 1940, when a delegation was waiting to cheer him.

As to the questionnaire on his views which brought a controversy leading to tonight's meeting, Willkie remarked with chuckles at the conference that he was indebted to the authors of the questionnaire for free advertising. Altho Willkie is not a publicly avowed candidate, his speech was heralded as being his first major one in the pre-convention campaign. About 3,500 attended.

The fourth term was denounced by Willkie in his speech as "hazardous to the perpetuation of free government." Without speaking of President Roosevelt by name, he said the administration plays the public information agencies "like an accordion." "It saturates our news reels, our radio programs; it manipulates the release of the news to suit its purposes, and censors opinion in hundreds of subtle ways," he said.

Willkie took issue on world internationalism with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, listed as a possible Presidential candidate next year. Last month Dewey came out for a military alliance between America and Great Britain. Willkie said any two nation alliance "will but divide, not unite the world."

Willkie advocated a world basis for a council of the allied nations.

Leadership Action Urged.

"I should like," he said, "to see this country exercise its utmost qualities of leadership and moral force to bring Great Britain, Russia, China, and the United States to a point of understanding where they will make a joint declaration of intention as a preliminary to forming a common council of the united nations and other friendly nations and eventually of all the nations."

Willkie quoted from the resolution on foreign policy adopted at Mackinac Island by the Republican post-war advisory council passages urging permanent peace and participation by the United States in a post-war coöperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent military aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world.

Some observers noted he made no mention of the "sovereignity" declaration in the Mackinac report, which declared that constitutionalism must be preserved as expressed in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution itself, and the Bill of Rights.

Asks Single Money Standard.

What appeared to be a response to items in the questionnaire asking whether Willkie believed in absolute freedom of trade, and if a world monetary system should be established, was discerned when Willkie, in talking of international coöperation, gave his idea of two of its purposes: That unnecessary and artificial trade barriers and tariffs may be broken down and that a monetary standard may be recognized around which the currencies of the world can be stabilized.

At noon Willkie was a luncheon guest of Robert L. Lund, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

POST-WAR PLAN ATTACKED ON 2 SIDES IN SENATE

Bloc of Internationalists Wants Definite Pledge.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—Opposition to the declaration of post-war principles drawn earlier in the week by a subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee arose from two quarters today in the senate.

Sen. Robert M. La Follette [P., Wis.], in a telegram from Madison, Wis., where he is ill in a hospital, said he opposed the resolution because he does not believe any stand should be taken at a time when other allied nations have not made their own positions clear.

Shortly after the La Follette wire was made public, a bloc of internationalist senators headed by Sen. Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.] served notice they will attempt to amend the resolution, presumably along the lines of the Ball-Hatch-Burton-Hill resolution, which favors a league of nations and an international police force.

Senators to Get Treaty.

This supposition was strengthened in the senate when Hatch obtained an order to have mailed to each senator a copy of the Versailles treaty and the covenant of the league of nations for their study.

Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the foreign relations committee and of the subcommittee which drew the senate resolution, had expressed hope it would be received as a compromise and would be approved within a week by the entire committee.

Hatch's statement today, representing the opinion of a bloc of 11 senators, was disquieting to those who had hoped the compromise resolution, which combines features of the Republican Mackinac Island resolution and the Fulbright resolution adopted by the house, would receive quick acceptance by the committee and the senate.

Want Definite Pledge.

The 11 met this morning and issued a statement saying the group is convinced that "in order to strengthen American influence in building a durable peace," it is necessary to state at the present time the principles which the senate believes "should prevail in the peace settlement and the extent to which it is willing to go in American commitments to maintain world peace and stop future aggression."

Sen. Connally on Wednesday warned supporters of the Ball-Hatch-Burton-Hill resolution that the compromise made by his subcommittee was the "best they can possibly get." He suggested that they not push their international police force plan, predicting that its defeat would lead to misunderstanding in foreign quarters.

Truman May Join 11.

It is understood that the 11 senators who met this morning were Senators Hatch, Joseph H. Ball [R., Minn.], Harold H. Burton [R., O.], Lister Hill [D., Ala.], Charles O. Andrews [D., Fla.], Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], Joseph F. Guffey [D., Pa.], James M. Mead [D., N. Y.], Burnet R. Maybank [D., S. C.], Styles Bridges [R., N. H.], and Homer Ferguson [R., Mich.]. Reports are that Senators Harley M. Kilgore [D., W. Va.], and Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], are expected to join in the fight to "strengthen" the resolution.

Consideration of any post-war resolution by the senate as a whole is not expected until the second week of November, or possibly later.

COLIN KELLY'S WIDOW WEDS NAVY OFFICER; HERO'S DAD PRESENT

Crozierville, Pa., Oct. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Colin P. Kelly, Jr., widow of the nation's first air hero of the war, and Lt. [J. G.] J. Watson Pedlow were married here today by the Rev. John Kneustub with only members of the family and a few close friends present in Calvary Episcopal church.

The wedding party gathered so quietly that not even residents of the village knew who was being married.

Three-year old Corky Kelly, whose father died when bombs from his plane struck the Japanese battleship Haruna early in the war, grinned during the ceremony, sitting with his grandfather, Colin P. Kelly, Sr., who flew from Florida for the ceremony.

His mother said earlier, when asked if Corky would go along on the wedding trip:

"I think his place is with his mother, don't you?"

Mrs. Pedlow said she and Corky would live with Lt. Pedlow in Washington as long as he is stationed there.

DRIVERS TO GET ESSENTIAL GAS IN SPITE OF CUT

OPA Orders Coupon Slash Difference Restored.

The office of price administration has notified its local boards in the Chicago area that motorists should be issued gasoline for all essential driving, regardless of the reduction in value of B and C book coupons from three to two gallons on Oct. 1, Michael F. Mulcahy, area director, said yesterday.

Motorists were told not to apply for restoration of occupational mileage more than 30 days before their current rations become exhausted. Restoration will hinge on a board finding that the applicant cannot otherwise perform the driving necessary to carry on his occupation, that he has a full ride-sharing car or that there is no adequate means of transportation and he is carrying as many persons in his car as possible.

These regulations were in effect before the cut was made. Boards were instructed that the restoration in each case must not exceed the amount of the cut, and if the applicant has a nonpreferred mileage rating, and thus holds a B book, the restored ration may not exceed the B ceiling of 480 miles a month.

Mulcahy admitted he got his first headache from ration book 3 yesterday when the Greater Chicago Shoe Retailers association called on him to protest the way the book was printed.

Carl Burgstahler, head of the association and past president of the retailers' national organization, said that airplane stamp 1 in book 3, which becomes valid for a pair of shoes on Nov. 1, looks just about like every other picture stamp in the book, and that "confusion is certain to result."

Late registrants for book 4, applications for which will be received in schools next week, may have to wait several days after others have received theirs, Mulcahy said. Late applicants, he added, will have to file their requests with their local boards which will be busy with the distribution of the books.

Local ration boards this week penalized 43 motorists convicted of speeding, Mulcahy announced. Penalties ranged from the revocation of one A coupon to the suspension of A books for 30 days.

A survey of 1,833 Chicago retail meat markets showed 790 had violated ceiling price regulations of the office of price administration, Mulcahy said yesterday. Thirty-one stores were found to have violated the regulations "flagrantly and willfully," and their cases have been referred to the enforcement division for further investigation and possible suspension proceedings.

American Soldiers Using Buna-S Rubber Footwear

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 [Special].—American soldiers wearing rubber footwear henceforth will tread exclusively on Buna-S, the new synthetic rubber being produced in this country, the quartermaster corps disclosed today. The only crude rubber in the new product will be a fractional amount used as rubber cement.

TARIFF TO HELP SYNTHETIC TIRES OPPOSED BY F.D.R.

Stands Against High Duty on Rubber.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—President Roosevelt today announced his opposition to any post-war tariff on natural rubber for the protection of America's new synthetic rubber industry.

Mr. Roosevelt's position closely paralleled the views expressed by Vice President Henry A. Wallace in the early days of Wallace's global thinking, when the Vice President proposed this country resume large scale rubber importation from the far east after the war, to promote his good neighbor policy.

More recently the Vice President has attacked such international groups as those which controled rubber before the war and accused the Standard Oil company of New Jersey of trying to halt development of the synthetic rubber industry.

Foresees End of Regime.

Mr. Roosevelt mentioned, for the first time in memory of many who heard him, the possibility that he might some time quit the White House, and took cognizance of opposition to his regime, in discussing the rubber situation at his press conference.

There was some confusion as to the remarks, but as they were finally revised by the White House, they were:

"I hope that when I am out of the White House — I might get beaten on it otherwise — that the congress won't put the kind of tariff on rubber for American automobile tires just to keep some synthetic plants going.

Favors Natural Rubber.

"That would mean every man in the United States who owned a car would have to pay 50 per cent more for his rubber. I believe in cheap tires, and more of them; and the only way to get that is to use the tires that are made by nature."

While the President based his objection to protecting the synthetic rubber industry on price, and not global planning principles, his view clashed with that of William M. Jeffers, retired rubber director who discounted assertions synthetic rubber need be more expensive than natural.

SENTENCE FOUR MEN TO PRISON TERMS IN LEND-LEASE FRAUD

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP).—Four persons were sentenced in federal District court to prison terms today upon conviction of conspiring to defraud the government in the production and shipment of dried-egg powder sent abroad under the lend-lease program. All from New York City, they were:

Julius Cohen, secretary-treasurer of Samuel Dunkel & Co., Inc., New York City, four years' imprisonment on one charge, one year and a day on another, and a $5,000 fine; Charles Cohen, executive of the Dunkel firm, three and one-half years on one charge and one year and a day on a second, and a $5,000 fine; Carl Ebbighauser, manager of the Dunkel firm, and Sidney S. Atlas, manager of the Sondra Egg Products corportion plant at Walton, N. Y., one year and a day each and $1,000 fine each.

NUMBER DECIDES WHEN A LAWYER GETS DRAFT CALL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—Advertising men, stock brokers, lawyers, salesmen, and others in similar occupations may take some comfort in their draft order numbers, a war man power commission spokesman said in an interview today.

He asserted that all draft registrants whose occupations do not qualify them for deferments will be called for induction according to their order numbers. [These numbers were assigned at the time of registration.] This procedure, he said, does not apply to men whose jobs are listed on the WMC nondeferable list, such as dancing teachers, bartenders, and sales clerks.

He dispelled rumors that men in so-called less essential or nonessential jobs would be drafted ahead of men in essential or war industries who do not hold key jobs.

JEFFERS PLEADS FOR MORE GRASS ROOTS THINKING

Ex-Rubber Czar Lauds Tribune Tire Tests.

After more than a year in Washington, D. C., directing the nation's war time rubber program, William M. Jeffers has arrived at the conclusion that "there are too many experts telling the rest of us what to do and how to do it, and too little grass roots thinking."

Jeffers, who returned recently to his job as president of the Union Pacific railroad after getting the rubber program off to a flying start, expressed his views on national thinking yesterday at a meeting of the American Automobile association in the Palmer House.

"Let People Do Own Thinking."

"Give the people the facts and let them do their own thinking," he said. "More candor with the people from those in high places will enable us to do a better war and post-war job.

"I'm not much in sympathy with those planning elaborate post-war blueprints. Let's win the war first and then work out our plans. Big businesses must do a job that the people will approve, and if we don't do it right millions of returning service men will raise hell."

Jeffers advised the automobile men not to worry about reports of another rubber tire crisis, but cautioned that the shortage of automobile repair parts caused by the lack of material and man power threatens to become as serious as was the tire shortage early in the war.

All but three of the synthetic rubber plants are in operation and the rest will be in use by Jan. 1, turning out rubber at the rate of 850,000 long tons annually, he said.

Praises Tribune Test.

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is carrying on a very interesting test of synthetic tires and reports on the tires, run over all types of roads and in all kinds of weather, have been favorable," Jeffers said. "Synthetics aren't yet as good as tires made of natural rubber, but they should be within a year at our present rate of progress in manufacturing technique."

He referred to Tribune tests of tires made with previously-wasted newspulp mill by-products as the basic ingredient. Other synthetics use petroleum products as a base.

Jeffers said the rubber industry, altho hampered by shortages of man power and equipment, should be expanded to meet the demands of synthetic manufacture. He added that the war production board already had approved an expansion giving the industry AA1 rating on critical materials.

OPA LETS ARMY BUY EGGS ABOVE CEILING PRICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—The office of price administration has received a complaint about its price ceilings from an unexpected source—the army quartermaster corps, it was disclosed today. As a result the OPA permitted the army to pay half a cent a dozen above the legal price ceiling on eggs.

The quartermaster corps, largest food buyer in the country, notified OPA it could not buy enough fresh eggs for soldiers because of current ceilings. Egg dealers, it was reported, would not sell eggs at prices OPA established.

The OPA's solution was to grant the army temporary 60 day authority to exceed the price ceilings—the same privilege held by small independent retailers who buy in small quantities. The army will now be able to buy fresh eggs in carload lots on the same footing as the grocer who buys one or two cases at a time.

BOMBERS BLAST 3 JAP AIR BASES ON NEW BRITAIN

P-T Boats Sink Enemy Coastal Vessel.

ALLIED HDQ. IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Oct. 16 [Saturday] (AP).—The 5th air force and swift P-T boats have struck blows at Japanese air bases and shipping on New Britain on the opposite end of the island from Rabaul, which was pulverized by a 350 ton bombing attack on Tuesday.

The sector of New Britain closest to Gen. MacArthur's potential invasion springboard on the Huon gulf of New Guinea felt the weight of air assaults announced in today's war's bulletin.

Cape Gloucester, New Britain air base, was given a 42 ton pounding by heavy bombers. Its runways were torn up and fires were started among installations.

Raid Two Airdromes.

On the north side of the coast, about half way up to Rabaul, medium and heavy bombers hit the Cape Hoskins airdrome and destroyed a coastal vessel. Directly south across the island from Cape Hoskins heavy bombers struck the Gasmata airdrome and near-by anti-aircraft positions.

Mitchell bombers flew low along the coast from Cape Gloucester to Sag Sag, bombing and strafing Japanese occupied villages and destroying or damaging five barges.

The P-T boats sank a Japanese coastal vessel, destroyed or damaged eight barges, and strafed shore installations around Rooke Island, which is between the western tip of New Guinea and New Guinea's Huon peninsula.

Attack at Low Level.

On New Guinea, in the Madang-Alexishafen area toward which Australian troops are driving north and northwest in the Ramu valley, Mitchell medium bombers attacked at low level. More than 30 tons of bombs wiped out supply dumps and anti-aircraft positions, and spread many fires, as well as destroying two Japanese fighters on the ground. There was no enemy interception.

In the Ramu valley the Australians pushed ahead in an area less than 20 miles from Bogadjim, the Japanese defense post for Madang. More than 400 Japanese dead have been counted in the Ramu valley campaign, the war bulletin said.

Northwest of Australia allied bombers raided three Japanese bases on Timor—Hansisi, Dili, and Lautem—and fighter planes strafed and bombed the Tanimbar Islands.

The Japanese air force, which has been active on a limited scale, sent 12 planes against Buna and Oro bay, New Guinea, causing minor damage.

4 MILLION NAZIS KILLED IN WAR, SAYS LONDON

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—About 4,000,000 Germans have been killed in this war, or more than twice as many as were killed during the last war, Minister of Economic Warfare Selborne said today.

Addressing an audience at Gosport, the British minister said that nine-tenths of the Nazi losses had been suffered in Russia, and added that the vast war supplies which Hitler had accumulated were now expended to a great extent and the German position is very serious." He warned, however, that, while the allies have entered the ous. He warned, however, that, fighting still lies ahead.

RED PRESS CALLS 2D FRONT MAJOR PARLEY ISSUE

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 15.—With the Moscow tripartite conference scheduled to begin next week, the Communist news sheet "The Week" said today the real question will be "how far the British and Americans are prepared to make this a practical military conference for winning the war and how far they will attempt to shelve this question in favor of speculations about the future of Europe as yet unliberated."

"Allied Forces Built Up."

At the same time the news bulletin issued by the Anglo-Russian parliamentary committee quoted Moscow as saying "the victories of the Red army against four-fifths of the land forces of the enemy have made it possible for Britain and the United States to build up powerful land, sea, and air forces, only a small part of which have been engaged in battle." This publication contended the formula for a Moscow victory in 1943 was "the speediest opening of a second front in Europe."

From these statements, it was believed generally here that opening of a second front will be the chief Russian demand at the Big 3 parley and that if Josef Stalin has his way it will take precedence over any discussion of geographical frontiers or future political setups in Europe. There has not been the slightest indication or discussion to the effect that America's war against Japan will be mentioned at Moscow.

Could Cede Bases.

But the Portugal formula, whereby Lisbon last week argued in ceding naval and air bases in the Azores to Britain that she had not violated her neutrality, might also be invoked in connection with Russia. As military experts have long pointed out, Siberia is a natural base from which America could strike directly at the heart of Japan. If a neutral country can cede bases, how much greater is the obligation of an ally to make such a concession.

BLAST GERMANS FROM WRECKAGE IN UKRAINE TOWN

Reds Gain 7 Mi. South of Zaporozhe.

LONDON, Oct. 16 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian soldiers blasted the Germans from the wrecked buildings of Melitopol yesterday in hand to hand fighting, and advanced seven miles southward along the railway from fallen Zaporozhe in an attempt to break thru the northern door to the Crimea, Moscow announced early today.

More than 4,500 Germans were killed in the area comprising a 56 mile front from Zaporozhe to Melitopol in the southern Ukraine, a bulletin said.

Part of the battlefield was reported flooded by the Germans, who announced they had destroyed the rebuilt Dnieper dam, a few miles from Zaparozhe, in an attempt to stall the attack. The Russians, however, made no mention of the dam.

Reds Use Bayonets.

Fighting for three days in the center of Melitopol, the Russians were forced to use their bayonets and hand grenades to pry the Germans from fortified buildings, including a factory and a church. More than 2,000 Germans were killed in the town. The Russians made no claim that the town had been captured.

At Zaporozhe the last remnants of German troops were cleared from the Dnieper river's east bank and 1,500 were reported drowned in the stream as they sought to escape.

Other Russian columns fighting their way southward along the railway that leads thru Melitopol to the Crimea captured six populated places and five railway towns.

Dislodge Nazis from Lines.

On the middle Dnieper German counter-attacks withered before massed Russian guns at bridgeheads on the west bank of the river north and south of Kiev, the Ukrainian capital. The Germans are being dislodged from one line after another, a front line dispatch said.

In White Russia the Germans launched several counter-attacks south of Gomel, trying to force the Russians off the western bank of the Sozh river. After more than 800 Germans were killed, the Germans withdrew and the Russians moved up to improve their positions.

YOU VIOLATED NEUTRAL STAND, AXIS TO LISBON

Protests Giving Bases in Azores to Britain.

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Germany and Japan lodged formal protests in Lisbon today over the granting of anti-submarine bases in the Azores to Britain. Altho Germany hinted at reprisals, neither Berlin nor Tokio showed any disposition to go to war with Portugal on the issue.

Both nations, according to Tokio and Berlin broadcasts, charged Portugal with violating her neutrality. Protest notes were handed to the Portuguese government in Lisbon.

Berlin Makes a Threat.

A Berlin broadcast said, after charging Portugal with violating her neutrality:

"From this, the reich government reserves for itself the right to take counter-measures in accordance with the changes of the situation in the Azores. That is, the reich reserves the right in the future to define on its own discretion to what extent it recognizes Portugal's neutrality. What consequences this may have for Portugal are obvious."

Despite the suggestion of retaliation, it seemed doubtful that Germany would declare war on Portugal because this would cost the Nazis a valuable listening post and spy center in Lisbon. The Germans stressed the theme that Portugal was forced to take the Azores action under pressure from Britain.

Law Violated, Japs Say.

A Domei news agency broadcast from Tokio quoted a Japanese spokesman as saying that the Azores case was "one more example of Anglo-American violation of international law, as in the case of seizure of Madagascar, and of strong and unjustified pressure exercised on a weaker power."

Portuguese Timor was occupied by the Japanese before the British moved into Madagascar. Portugal in recent weeks has been reported on the verge of declaring war on Japan over the occupation of Timor.

U. S. LIBERATORS RAID JAP BASE ON MAKIN ISLE

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Oct. 15 (AP).—American land-based navy Liberator bombers made a "light bombing attack" on the Makin Island Japanese seaplane base in the Gilberts Wednesday, Pacific fleet headquarters reported today. The announcement said the bombing force suffered no loss.

[The Tokio radio disclosed the raid in a broadcast Thursday night, saying six bombers carried out the attack.]

Makin is the northernmost of the Gilbert group. It last was bombed Sept. 18, both by land-based heavy bombers and carrier-planes.

HALF OF 593 ON 60 LOST 'FORTS' BELIEVED SAFE

May Be in Nazi Hands, Says Gen. Arnold.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The high command today said the great American bombing raid on Germany's roller bearing industry at Schweinfurt—a raid from which 60 Flying Fortresses and 593 men failed to return—was worth its high cost because the fountainhead of a critical enemy industry was shattered.

There was no disposition to minimize the loss, the highest for any American raid. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of army air forces, said, however, that at least half of the men who failed to return are believed to be alive as German prisoners of war.

President Roosevelt said that, while the cost was very heavy, he saw little chance that losses over an extended period would exceed additions to the air force. He commented that we cannot afford to lose 60 planes every day, and we are not doing so.

Schweinfurt a Prime Target.

A very large industrial plant probably has been put out of commission, thereby retarding the enemy's war production, the President said.

Arnold said the air forces selected the Schweinfurt bearing industry because it was a "potential war production bottleneck." Schweinfurt plants make at least half of the ball bearings manufactured in German occupied Europe and 75 per cent of those turned out within Germany itself. Therefore, Arnold said, the raid "amputates a huge part of the Nazis' ability to keep moving machinery in operation"—including tanks, trucks, gun carriages, and submarines.

The attack, Arnold predicted, will have a definite effect on the Nazi war economy "within a reasonably short period of time—in some extremely important phases within a month—and will result in shortening the war."

Ranked with Ploesti Raid.

Arnold ranked the Schweinfurt raid with the American bombing last summer of the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania. While the air chief did not compare the effect of these raids, the result of the Schweinfurt raid presumably will begin to show on the German war effort before those obtained by the Ploesti bombing. Arnold said it is "impracticable to assemble any considerable stockpile of ball bearings."

The Schweinfurt attack, Arnold said, was more than a spectacular air raid.

"It was an engagement between large armies, a major campaign," he said. "In a period of a few hours, we invaded German-held Europe to a depth of 500 miles, sacked and crippled one of her greatest industries."

FREED ON DISORDERLY CHARGE.

A disorderly conduct charge against Frank Uchiek, 26 years old, 2330 Thomas street, was dismissed yesterday by Judge John R. McSweeney in Racine avenue court.

U.S. BOMB RAIDS WILL KNOCK OUT NAZIS—GENERAL

Holds They Will Beat Germany by Spring.

A U. S. BOMBARDMENT HDQ. IN ENGLAND, Oct. 15 (AP).—German war industry will be so smashed by spring as the result of the allied aerial pounding that the Nazis will not be able to fight effectively any longer on land or sea or in the air, Brig. Gen. Curtis E. Le May, commander of the United States heavy bombardment division, said today.

"The winter holds no hope for Germany," the 36 year old veteran of a year of European air battles said. "By spring the allies will have destroyed enough German war industry that they cannot fight effectively any more.

"The enemy will be pounded as frequently as strength is available. The more Flying Fortresses we have here the shorter the war is going to be. And the more fighters we have to protect the Fortresses the smaller the losses will be."

Nazis 'Shoot the Works.'

The Germans are shooting the works on their last hope of defense—fighter planes—but it is not much of a hope, he said, "and once they run out of airplanes and supplies they are done."

He contended that yesterday's bombing of the Schweinfurt ball bearing plant virtually put out of commission 50 per cent of the enemy's war production.

"What other method of warfare could be used to destroy that much war effort with a loss of 600 men?" Le May asked.

United States bombing losses have been increasing recently, he continued, but the percentage, considering the forces employed, has remained almost constant at less than 5 per cent.

The fact the Germans are using rocket-gunned planes of every type, some obsolescent, "may be a measure of desperation," Le May concluded.

Nazi Plant Obliterated.

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Photographs today revealed the giant Nazi ball bearing factory at Schweinfurt was obliterated by the American heavy bomber assault yesterday that cost the 8th air force 60 bombers.

The reconnaissance photographs revealed that Schweinfurt's plants were wiped out by the precision-pattern crews who had been told a successful blasting of the target might shorten the war by six months.

"We had expected our losses to be heavy, and they were," said Brig. Gen. Fred L. Anderson, 8th air force bomber wing commander, "but the damage done to the enemy was much greater. The bombs were concentrated upon vital points in the area."

German broadcasts said 139 American aircraft were shot down on the Schweinfurt raid. Fourteen German fighters were reported lost. The Nazis said 300 bombers took part in the raid.

MOUNTBATTEN AIDES CHOSEN; AMERICAN IS GIVEN SECOND PLACE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—Appointment of Lt. Gen. Henry Royds Pownall of the British army to be chief of staff for Adm. Louis Mountbatten in the southeast Asia allied command, and Maj. Gen. Albert Coady Wedemeyer of the United States army to be his deputy chief of staff, was announced today by the war department.

Wedemeyer has been on the war department general staff since June, 1942. He has seen service in both the World war and the present conflict. In July, 1936, Wedemeyer went to Berlin and attended the German war college until August, 1938.

GREEK PATRIOTS OPEN NEW DRIVE ON NAZIS, REPORT

4,000 Germans Repulsed, London Hears.

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Greek guerrillas were reported today to have repulsed a force of 4,000 Germans in central Greece and advanced toward the railroad town of Karditsa, 160 miles north of Athens, in a new offensive adding to the Germans' already grave Balkan problem.

The Germans were said to be pouring reënforcements into Belgrade in Jugo-Slavia to meet the menace of attack from irregulars in isolated battle grounds thru 800 miles of territory from the Istrian peninsula south tothe Greek Peloponnesus. One Cairo dispatch said the Quisling police chief of Belgrade had been assassinated by patriots. He was identified as Pavle Djordjevic.

Claim Allied Attack Near.

German press and radio reports said allied forces were poised for thrusts into Jugo-Slavia and Greece. They said the allies had established a number of jumping off points on Aegean Islands after the Italian capitulation and that Greece was a favorable target for Anglo-American amphibious warfare.

Greeks in London said German troops were moving back from the southern provinces in the Peloponnesus peninsula taking hostages with them. The German commander in Thebes, north of Athens, was reported killed.

The province of Thessaly in central Greece saw fighting between German and Greek patriot forces in the Tempe valley and Nazi planes were machine gunning villages in the Volos and Larisa areas west of Karditsa.

Fight in Street.

In Jugo-Slavia, where Marshal Erwin Rommel was reported taking over the German command, street fighting was said to be enveloping Zenica, 140 miles west of Belgrade.

In eastern Bosnia other Jugo-Slav forces occupied the lumber industry center of Zivnica near Tuzla.

Jugo-Slav informants here scoffed at reports that Josip [Tito] Broz, leader of the partisans, and Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, the government-in-exile's war minister, were near a union of their armies.

"The two forces are farther apart than they ever have been," Jugo-Slav leaders said.

Both British and Germans were said to be rushing fresh reënforcements into the Dodecanese, Aegean Island pathway into the Balkans.

Nazis Report Island Seized.

The situation was still unclear since no official reports have been issued by the allies, but unconfirmed accounts from Turkey said the Germans reoccupied the islands of Kos and Castelrosso after the British seized them from the Italians. Leros and the Greek island, Samos, to the north, were also reported held by the British but imperiled by the loss of the air fields on Kos and Castelrosso. The British also have been reported in the Cyclades Islands in the Greek archipelago.

German troops have occupied the Dodecanese island of Simi, just north of Rhodes, the German news agency DNB said in a Berlin broadcast recorded by Reuters [British news agency]. The broadcast said the island was "taken in battle from British troops," but did not give the date of the occupation.

TELL HOW U. S. SHIPS SURPRISED AND SANK 4 JAP WAR VESSELS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—Running without lights on a moonless night, American destroyers tracked a Japanese force and sank four vessels before the enemy ships knew what hit them, the navy reported today in revealing details of the Aug. 6 action in Vella Gulf of the Solomons. [Main results of the action were announced some time ago.]

Officers and men stood tensely by after 24 torpedoes were loosed at the enemy. "After what seemed many minutes, but apparently were only three or four," said Torpedoman Carter Wells, Los Angeles, "the results were apparent." Lt. Comdr. Francis T. Williamson of Philadelphia, added:

"Four torpedo hits were observed in rapid succession. Each produced a red ball of flame followed by violent internal explosions. Two ships were literally blown to pieces. A heavy cruiser soon became a mass of flame."

Two Jap destroyers sank immediately. The cruiser stopped dead in the water, burning furiously. Gunfire from the American destroyers sank the third Jap destroyer in 20 minutes and the cruiser five minutes later.

JAP FORCES GAIN IN YUNNAN; LOSE EAST CHINA CITY

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Chinese high command tonight said reënforced Japanese troops were driving forward west of the Salween river in Yunnan province, but that on the east China front the Chinese recaptured Potien. Japanese troops attempted to land on the coast of Fukien, north of Foochow, but were driven back to the sea.

Tonight's war report said the Yunnan fighting had increased as the Japanese received reënforcements. One column occupied Pienma. Another gained in a northward thrust along the west bank of the Salween river.

A British war report yesterday said British and Japanese patrols have clashed for the second time in recent days near Maungdaw, about 100 miles northeast of Akyab, Burma.

United States bombers blasted three important targets in Burma, Oct. 13, a 10th air force bulletin announced at New Delhi, India. They smashed a ferry crossing at Myitnge between Sagaing and Mandalay on the Irrawaddy river, blasted Toungoo railway yards on the main line from Rangoon to Mandalay, and hit the rail center and river port of Prome, west of Toungoo.

Eleven American Liberator bombers attacked the Japanese held port of Rangoon, Burma, on Thursday, the Tokio radio reported. It claimed one of the raiders was shot down.

CANADA LIFTS WAR TIME BAN ON 6 ORGANIZATIONS

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 15 (AP).—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King today announced the amendment of the defense of Canada regulations to remove a war time ban applied against several organizations.

These were listed as Jehovah's Witnesses, Technocracy, Inc., the Ukrainian Labor-Farmer Temple association, the Finnish Organization of Canada, the Finnish society, and the Finnish Society of Toronto. Property previously owned by all these organizations, which was seized some time ago by the government, will be restored to them.

A number of organizations still remain banned, including the Communist party of Canada. The statement gave no details of the reasons for amending the regulations.

California Legislator Flays Communism.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15 [Special].—State Sen. Jack B. Tenney, chairman of the California legislature's joint fact finding committee on un-American activities, drew a sharp distinction today between soviet Russia as an ally and the machinations of the Communist party in the United States.

"We have no quarrel with the Russian type of government," Tenney said, "if they want it for themselves, but we certainly have a right to protect ourselves against a diabolical plot to destroy our own nation."

He's for Americanism.

Addressing the Friday Luncheon club of the Native Sons of the Golden West, Tenney said:

"It seems amazing that to speak out against the Communist party can be considered treason by some. I am anti-Fascist, anti-Communist, anti-Hitlerism, anti any 'ism' except Americanism and if that be treason make the most of it."

The legislator declared that the Communist party was established in the United States for the revolutionary overthrow of the government and that it never has deviated from that goal.

Recalls Relief Expose.

Tenney traced the history of the communist tactics from the days of 1940 when a legislative investigating committee found every key position in the California relief administration, from the assistant administrator on down, filled by a bona fide member of the Communist party.

The party, he declared, has worked under many disguises and thru many organizations patently formed to oppose Naziism, Fascism, and militarism, but actually designed to overthrow the American democracy and to destroy its religious freedom and other liberties.

Gene Tierney's Baby Placed in Incubator

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—Gene Tierney, screen actress wife of Oleg Cassini, Hollywood dress designer, became the mother of a 3 pound, 2 ounce daughter at Columbia hospital today. Both the mother and child, which has been placed in an incubator, are in good condition, the hospital reported. Cassini is a second lieutenant in the army.

Browder and British M.P. Brand U.S. Senators Unfair

Says It's 'Shameful'

New York, Oct. 15 [Special].—Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, tonight assailed "a group of senators" who, he asserted, were urging present and post-war commercial advantages for the United States over our allies. He addressed the opening session of a "special national convention" of the Young Communist league.

Browder linked this "shameful spectacle" and "sordid exhibition" to what he termed this nation's and Britain's "default" in "our elementary duty" of opening a second front in western Europe.

Altho the Communist leader did not mention any senators by name, his reference to the senators recently returned from a tour of world battle fronts was unmistakable. Some of them had openly criticized Russia's failure to grant bases to the United States from which Japan could be bombed, and had mentioned our failure to insist upon retaining, after the war, the bases that we have built.

Propose Change in Aim.

The convention was called by the organization's national council to consider a proposal "to change the name and program of the Young Communist league."

Other speakers included Dr. Harry F. Ward, former chairman of the American Civil Liberties union and professor emeritus of the Union Theological seminary, and Ferdinand C. Smith, Negro leader and secretary of the National Maritime union, CIO.

Browder contended that the opening of a second front to relieve Russia would be a major contribution toward shortening the war. He praised our war production and fighting machine, but asserted that he was "profoundly dissatisfied with the performance of our country in carrying the war to victory, with our incomplete adjustment of particular policies to the high moral level of our general position."

Calls It Crude Struggle.

"At this moment, in the highest legislative body of our country, in the United States senate," Browder continued, "we are witnessing the shameful spectacle of a group of senators, to the applause of all defeatists, dragging the war policy of our nation down to the level of a crude struggle for advantages over our allies, to push upon them even more of the military burdens of the war, and to seize from them commercial advantages for our country in the post-war world.

"This sordid exhibition in the senate of the worst aspects of our country's national character has been made possible by the default of our whole nation, together with Britain, in our elementary duty of opening the second front in Western Europe in time to make a major contribution to shortening the war, to the military crushing of Hitlerism. And this is the most direct way to the defeat of Japan."

Charges Bad Faith

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Capt. Peter D. MacDonald, Conservative member of parliament, gave notice today that he would ask Prime Minister Churchill at the next session of parliament "whether his attention had been called to the specific charges of unfair action and bad faith made against the British by five United States senators, and whether to avoid a diffusion of ill will he will place on record the British view of the facts?"

Another Conservative, Capt. Alec S. Cunningham-Reid, said he would ask Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden what government facilities were accorded the five senators who recently toured fighting fronts.

Official Voices Anger.

The senators' off-the-record report was critical of lend-lease, particularly as it affected Britain, and immediate United States' post-war commitments.

George Morgan Garro-Jones, parliamentary undersecretary to the ministry of production, said in a speech at Liverpool:

"When we reflect, as sometimes all of us must, that the blood of men of all nations and the silent tears of their bereaved are shed in the belief and consolation of a future better than the past, we must feel contempt for any, whether American senators or British critics, who by pettiness, falsehood, or selfishness sow new seeds and weeds of bitterness on earth."

Coöperation Beclouded.

He said also that the United States' part in post-war coöperation was beclouded by the fact that "whatever arrangement the United States President may make would be subject to the same constitutional ambiguities that led to the repudiation of Wilson after the last peace conference.

"Plans which will affect the future of the world for centuries must necessarily be laid during the year before the Presidential election in the United States."

WAVES TO MARCH BY HUNDREDS IN NAVY DAY EVENT

More than 400 WAVES will take part in the Navy day parade here Oct, 27, Clarence E. Cross, general chairman of the Navy day committee of the Illinois council of the Navy league, announced yesterday.

Capt. George M. Weichelt, parade chairman, said latest indications are that 12,000 navy, marine, and coast guard members will be in the parade instead of 10,000 formerly estimated.

At the end of the parade, 50 Chicago girls will be sworn into the WAVES. Christening of the first of a new line of navy hospital ships by Sister Elizabeth Kenny, poliomyelitis practitioner, will be another highlight.

POOL EUROPE'S POST-WAR FOOD, FRENCH DEMAND

'Americas Must Supply Most of It.'

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED HDQ., ALGIERS, Oct. 15.—Strict centralized control of all food distribution in France and the rest of occupied Europe after the war ends. Use of existing systems of distribution under stringent rationing for a long time. Food to be supplied largely by the two Americas, if possible, beginning immediately after allied landings, to prevent starvation and shorten the period of relief.

These are the keynotes of proposals which the French committee of national liberation will submit to the allies' conference on post-war relief next month in the United States. They were outlined today by Jean Monnet, commissioner of supplies, armament, and reconstruction, who is leaving soon to represent the committee at the conference.

Greatest Peace Problem.

The problem of supplying food and raw materials to Europe until it can take up the burden on its own is probably the largest the world has ever had to face, Monnet said. He described it as infinitely greater in magnitude than any system of relief offered by welfare organizations and asserted it obviously must be administered thru centralized control.

Resources for this gigantic task, the commissioner continued, must come from all over the world, with North America and South America as the principal contributors.

There must be no distinction, he added, between external and internal supplies. Those shipped from outside must be pooled with all those available in Europe and then distributed equitably on the basis of need.

Any dislocation of France's meager supplies by an effort of allied troops to live off the country, Monnet asserted, would result in an almost immediate calamity. He pointed to Corsica, where, he said, an emergency was created by the arrival of troops to free the island which was relieved only by the immediate shipment of flour and other staples from North Africa.

Eating Too Little Now.

Stressing the inadequate and unbalanced diet now prevailing in France's large cities, Monnet said that before the war the average Frenchman consumed 3,000 calories daily. In England today, despite strict food rationing, the average daily consumption is a little more than 2,600. Germany at the end of the last war was on a ration of 1,600. Experts estimate the average office worker not engaged in physical labor requires 2,400 calories a day, but France today subsists on slightly more than 1,000.

"There are now 2,000,000 Frenchmen within Germany," said Monnet, "of whom 1,600,000 are prisoners of war. Immediately after Germany is defeated, they will return to France augmenting the relief problem."

"Bullets will kill Germans," Monnet warned, "but not enough bread will kill Frenchmen."

HOD UNION HEAD FORBIDDEN TO HANDLE FUNDS

Moreschi Accused of Preying on Labor.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 [Special].—Justice F. Dickinson Letts of the federal District court today issued a temporary restraining order preventing Joseph V. Moreschi, president, and other officers of the International Hod Carriers union from having anything to do with the funds of Washington local 74 of the union.

The order was signed after 40 members of the local demanded a preliminary injunction and appointment of a receiver to preserve funds and property of the union. They charged that since last spring the union treasury had dwindled from $110,000 to $44,000, and the local's building fund had dropped from $15,000 to $1,700.

Called Head of Racket.

Moreschi was described in papers filed in court as "head of a nationwide racket preying on the rank and file members" of the organization.

Embezzlement was charged against Larry Kelly, president of the laborers district council of Washington. It was asserted Moreschi and Rivers entered a conspiracy with Kelly, now a fugitive from justice, and officers of the local to retain the latter in power, as a result of which the local funds were stolen from the treasury.

The plaintiffs were represented by Hyman N. Glickstein of New York City, and Samuel Levine of Washington. Glickstein's firm, appearing for local 17 of Newburgh, N. Y., previously won a battle against Moreschi and other international officers.

Last June the New York State Supreme court held that Moreschi and others had conspired to deplete the treasury of a Newburgh, N. Y., local.

Charges against Kelly, who was chairman of local 74's building committee, allege that more than $19,000 was stolen from the local treasury to buy liquor for a Washington night club he partly owned; that $15,000 was stolen to buy a house for Kelly in Berwyn, Md.; that the defendants spent $100,000 for land for a building for the local, but kept some of the money;

TEACHER TELLS HOW REDS HOPE TO CONTROL U. S.

New Deal Program Ties In with Their Plan.

equalitarian basis, as desirable from a permanent point of view. They must be accustomed, in short, to the communistic system.

"That," Canter leaned across his desk for emphasis, "already has begun."

Extension Already Predicted.

Several New Dealers recently have issued statements in which they have predicted an extension of rationing long after the war. Last week, Marvin Rife, regional educational adviser for the OPA in Chicago, issued a statement in which he said: "We will have rationing for the duration of the war and for a long time afterwards."

Later Rife told a Tribune reporter: "I don't see how there can be any abundancies of food or manufactured articles for many years after the war. The government will not be able to remove its controls over our domestic economy for many years after the war is over." Rife is a guest lecturer at the communistic Abraham Lincoln school.

"Next," Canter resumed, "the present administration in Washington must be assured of an extended tenure of power."

"You mean the Ned Deal administration?" the reporter murmured.

Mentions Tribune Attacks.

Canter nodded. "Call it any name you wish. Unfortunately the name 'Communist,' because of vicious attacks by newspapers like THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has become in this country a name that scares people. In a country where the political situation is in a highly precarious state of flux, as here, caution must be used with names.

"Communists often are forced to use other names or to join organizations whose purposes originally are different from theirs. After all, it is who is in control that is important, and not the name of the organization."

THE TRIBUNE Thursday disclosed that seven men prominent in the New Deal administration in Chicago, the majority of them advisers on public education and labor relations, are members of the faculty or guest lecturers of the communistic Abraham Lincoln school. Six other members of the faculty and guest lecturers are former New Deal office holders.

Explains Next Move.

"But this next step," the reporter persisted. "Just how is the New Deal going to be assured of an extension of its tenure of power?"

Canter smiled. "That next step is now in process of execution. All talk of an early or negotiated peace must be labeled as subversive. War work must be greatly intensified, military operations must be concentrated entirely in Europe, where a second front must be demanded quickly. More men must be placed in the army, the government must build more industrial plants, produce more of everything for the war effort and lend-lease."

"And that," the reporter interjected, "will place more men and more industrial facilities under control of the New Deal administration?"

Canter nodded. "The war will be brought to a more intensive stage soon. There will be an extended, highly critical period in the war. It will last thru 1944."

The reporter grinned. "You mean we can expect another crisis in international affairs about the time of the Presidential election?"

Canter smiled. "A demand that we change horses in the middle of an international crisis can be labeled as unpatriotic," he chuckled. "It could even be called subversive."

"And then what?" the reporter persisted.

Counts on Crisis Over Russia.

"If soviet Russia doesn't take over occupied Europe before next fall," Canter said, "and create a real international crisis, it will happen not much later. By that time, however, the Communists will be sufficiently organized to hold the reactionary elements here in line."

THE TRIBUNE Wednesday quoted Canter as saying a prolonged war was sought by the communistic labor leaders of the United States to give them needed time in which to cement an alliance between American, soviet, and British labor unions, thru which they expected to gain enormous secret world political power; that already 27 million soviet labor union members and between five and six million British labor union members were allied in the Anglo-soviet labor council.

"And when the war ends?" the reporter prompted.

"By that time Russia will be in control of Europe," Canter replied confidently. "Thru affiliations with soviet and British labor union the Communists will be able to hold America in line.

Won't Need Older Plants.

"After the war this country won't need the older, less efficient industrial plants still privately owned. The government owned plants will be transformed for civilian production and easily will be able to take care of the nation's economic needs."

"How about the owners of those private plants?" the reporter asked.

"They'll be thru," Canter replied. "If they won't retire voluntarily, competition of government-owned plants will bankrupt them in a short time. The workers in those government-owned plants will be dependent on the administration for their jobs. There are 10 million men in the army and navy. When they eventually are demobilized, they'll be dependent on the administration for jobs. However, the administration will keep the 10 million men in uniform under orders for a long time after the war."

Recently government spokesmen have announced that "it will be necessary" to keep our army and navy virtually intact for "a long time after the war."

Whip Hand Over Industry.

"Remember," Canter admonished, "the administration's stake in American industry gives it the whip hand!"

The Index issue previously quoted said the administration is "currently buying for war purposes more than 50 per cent of the country's industrial output" and that "the government now owns 60 billion dollars' worth of materials, ranging from ships to shoes.

"And that is the Communists' plan to complete transformation of the United States from a capitalistic to a communistic system?" the reporter asked.

Canter nodded. "For a peaceful transformation, yes! However . . ." He did not finish his sentence.

"But you said that a world superstate modeled on the soviet Russian system was the inevitable end of the Communists' program," the reporter said.

Goal: a Red Superstate.

"From a communistic national state to a communistic international state is but a very short step," Canter said.

The faculty of the communistic Abraham Lincoln school, at which Canter is instructor in trade union problems, is heavily loaded with Communists and internationalists. The school is headed by A. D. Winspear and William L. Patterson.

Winspear is a Rhodes scholar and an avowed internationalist. He was born in England and did not become a naturalized citizen of the United States until June 8, 1942.

Patterson was educated in soviet Russia and is a leader of the Communist party in this country. He was Communist party candidate for mayor of New York City in 1932 and ran as Communist party candidate for congressman from the 1st district here in 1940.

BRITISHER DESCRIBES MIDWEST AS CENTER OF RUGGED IDEALISM

Dixon, Ill., Oct. 15 [Special].—The English view the middle west as the center of strong sentiment for local government in America, Graham Hutton, director of British information services in Chicago, said here tonight at the opening session of the 44th annual meeting of the Illinois State Historical society.

"The midwest has always been more 'anti' anything than 'pro' anything," he asserted. "The men who developed it were rugged individualists."

Saying that he did not think the middle westerners were less cultured than easterners or any other American region's inhabitants, Hutton described them as forthright and individualistic. Their readiness to switch their thinking, he said, is one reason why for over 100 years the middle west has been the region whose electoral decision is the most difficult to predict.

CHILDREN IN WAR JOBS ASSAILED BY CLUB GROUP

The education committee of the City Club of Chicago charged yesterday that the board of education has been lax in regulations under which children are allowed to take war time jobs.

The board of education stoutly defended its policies, saying it has complied fully with state and national child labor laws, and has co-operated with the war man power commission and the American Federation of Labor in attempting to keep children in school.

Illegal employment of children under 16 years old is widespread, the City club charged. Children under 16 have been able to get work permits with alarming ease was another charge.

"Within the next six months 300,000 more workers must be found in the Chicago area," the City club statement said. "Unless firm action is taken now it is likely that thousands of high school students will sacrifice their education for a haphazard drift into employment, most of it of the dead end type."

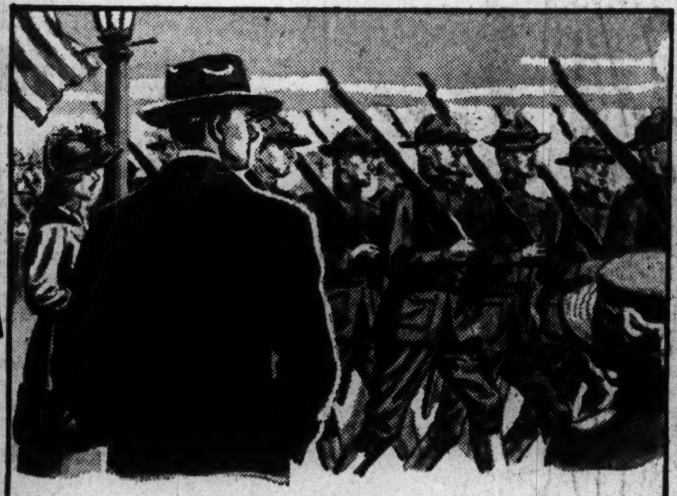
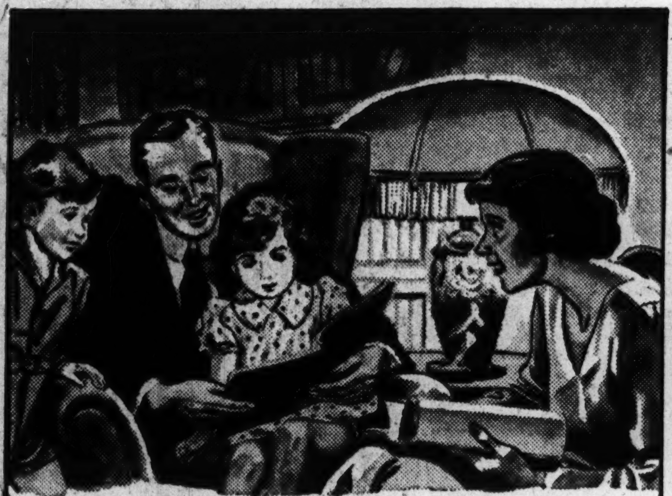
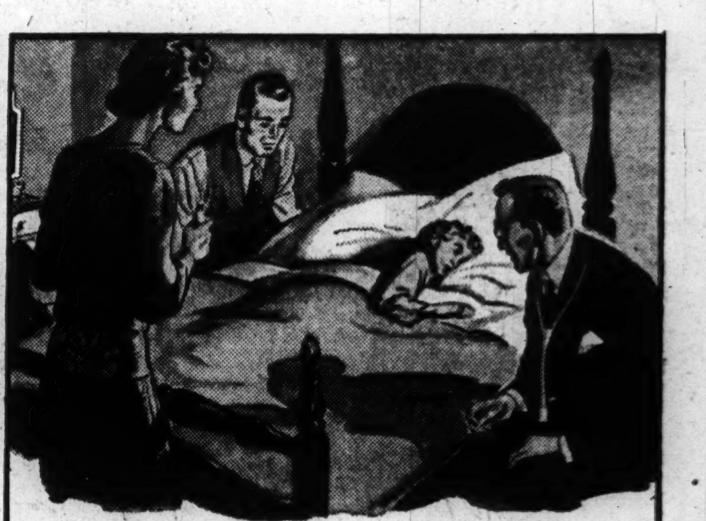
A MAN WHO BOUGHT WAR BONDS FROM 1917 TO 1919 TELLS HOW THEY PLAYED A PART IN HIS LIFE FOR 20 YEARS TO COME...



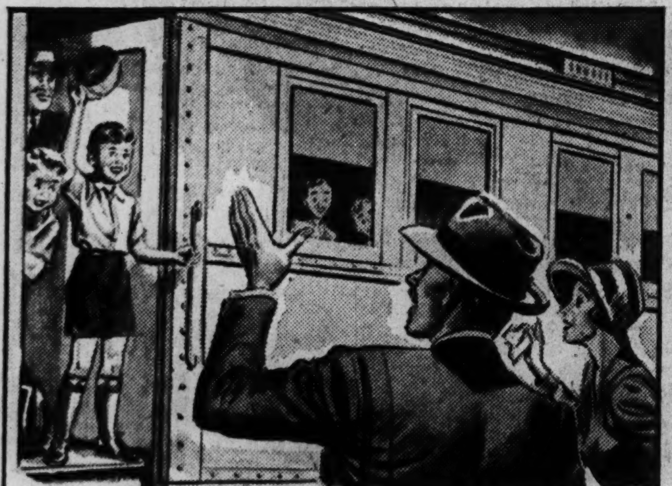
"I bought my first Liberty Bond because it seemed to be my duty."



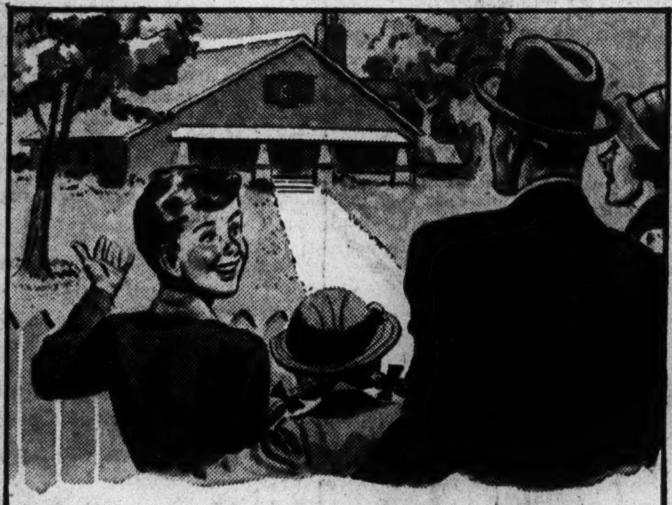
"After showing his bond to Mary we decided to purchase Liberty Bonds regularly as a means of consistent savings. And began to teach the children how and why to save. None of us had saved on a regular plan before."



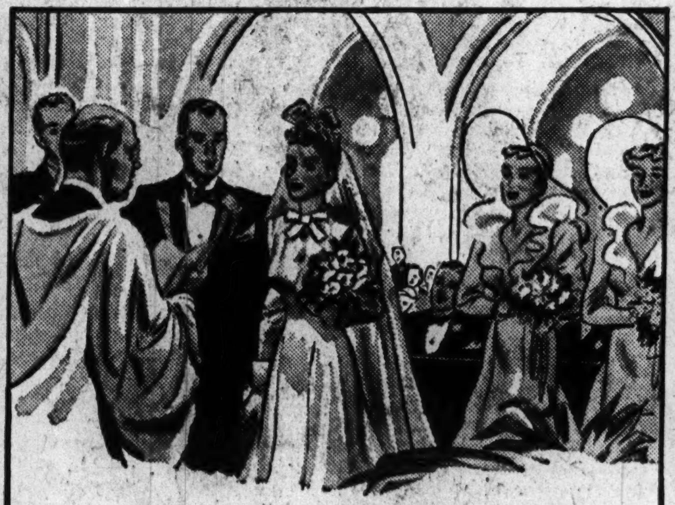
"When Jane was sick for so long we were able to take care of the doctor bills promptly because we obtained a small loan on our Liberty Bonds at a very low rate of interest."



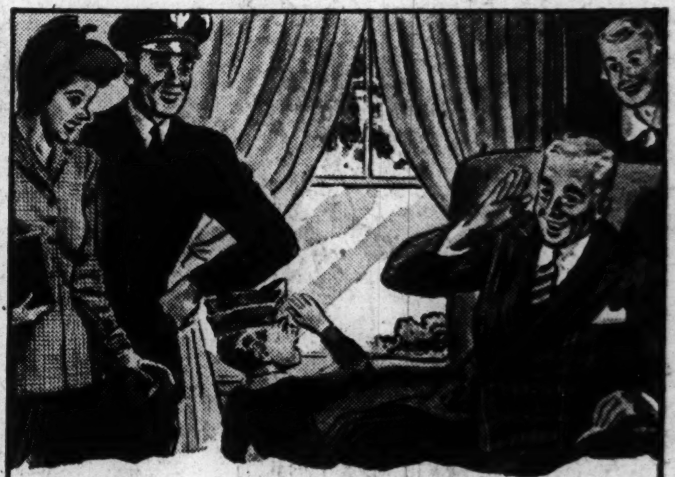
"When Jimmie graduated from grammar school we were able to send him away for a whole summer at camp. We paid for this trip out of our savings plan which started years before with the purchase of Liberty Bonds."



"The happiest moment of our lives was when we made the first payment on a home of our own. Our little fund, starting with the one Liberty Bond and progressing into a regular monthly savings plan, is still growing."



"We were able to give Jane a nice wedding when she got married. Her husband is a fine boy and when he heard about our regular monthly savings plan he started right out with a savings plan of his own."



"Jimmie is in the Navy now, in the South Pacific. Jane's husband is about to go overseas; all of them are today buying War Bonds regularly and this is the foundation of their savings plan for the future. Mary and I are buying War Bonds again, to keep us in our old age and maybe we will have some left for the grandchildren too."

Oscar Mayer employees have learned to save through War Bond purchases. Both the Chicago and the Madison, Wisconsin plants of Oscar Mayer & Co. fly the U.S. Treasury War Savings Flag. This signifies that over 90% of the employees are buying War Bonds. Employees are now in their second year of regular weekly savings on a planned program for the purchase of War Bonds. ARGENTINA ENDS BAN ON JEWISH LANGUAGE PRESS

3 Foes of Axis Replaced in Cabinet.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 15 (AP).—A bar on Jewish language newspapers in Argentina has been lifted, President Pedro Ramirez's press office announced tonight a few hours after President Roosevelt had sharply criticized it.

Roosevelt had said in Washington that the ban, affecting all Jewish newspapers printed in Yiddish, was an act in character with "the most repugnant features of Nazi doctrine."

Announcement of the ban's cancellation was made shortly after an official disclosure that Gen. Ramirez had named an author of books, anti-Semitic in tone, and two other men to fill cabinet posts vacated by advocates of a diplomatic break with the axis.

No Comment on Rebuke.

Government officials declined to comment on Roosevelt's statement, saying they had not yet been formally told of it. Later, however, the statement was approved for publication.

[A Montevideo dispatch said that the announcement of the cabinet appointments noted that the post of foreign minister, which has been vacant since Segundo Storni resigned after being refused lend-lease aid by the United States, had not yet been filled. This was taken to mean that foreign affairs had passed into the background, with the possibility of a rupture of Argentine-axis relations farther away than ever.]

The new cabinet members and their posts:

Gustavo Martinez Zuviria, an author and director of the national library, minister of justice and education; Cesare Ameghino, former Buenos Aires province finance minister, minister of finance; Naval Capt. Ricardo Vago, minister of public works.

Well Known Author.

A former university professor and a national deputy, the 70 year old Zuviria is one of the nation's best known authors. [A Montevideo dispatch described him as the writer of a trilogy of violently anti-Semitic books.]

Ameghino, a 72 year old lawyer, had held several political posts, including those of provincial deputy vice president of the Buenos Aires legislature, provincial tax collector and superior court judge. He was minister of finance in the province in the government of Manuel Fresco, Nationalist leader.

The appointment of Capt. Vago places two navy men in the cabinet. The other is Rear Adm. Benito Sueyro, navy minister.

CHAMIS DENIED NEW TRIAL FOR SLAYING OF WIFE

Judge Rudolph Desort in Criminal court yesterday denied a motion for a new trial for Chris Chamis, 25 years old, who was found guilty by a jury of the murder last May 17 of his wife, Grace, in their home at 7869 Eggleston avenue. The jury fixed his punishment at 14 years in prison. Chamis testified during his trial that he shot his wife when she taunted him with accounts of infidelities. Hearing on a motion for arrest of judgment was set for Monday.

MARINES TO GIVE JUDO EXHIBITION AT NAVY DISPLAY

Marines will demonstrate their methods in hand to hand combat at the "Back the Attack" navy show in Tribune Square at 3 p. m. and again at 8 p. m. today.

A team of about a dozen men will wrestle, tumble, demonstrate various arm breaking and neck breaking grips, duel with bayonets, and in general give the navy show crowds an accurate idea of what happens to Japanese soldiers when they get too close to a marine. Lt. Jack Smith, instructor in hand to hand combat tactics at Navy pier, will be in charge of the demonstration.

The marines call this sort of thing judo. Judo is the same as jujitsu, a Japanese invention which is now being turned on its originators. The marines also will put on demonstrations of their famous precision drill.

Another event of the week-end will be the arrival, some time tomorrow afternoon, of a 750 ton destroyer escort from the Bay City, Mich., yard of the Defoe Shipbuilding company. The Sunday concerts this week will be played by a talented Negro band from the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

BACK TO THE CHURN AND DASHER.

Until now the restrictions, taxes, and restraints placed on the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine have seldom been a serious concern to the middle western housewife.

Middle westerners have always had plenty of butter because they have been close to the source of supply. In peace time margarine was the poor man's food, but a family had to be mighty poor if it could not afford butter. Butter was given away to relief clients and even the penitentiaries, which maintained their own dairy farms, served it liberally to inmates.

The Dairy Record, a magazine of that industry, said in 1941: "In short, the dairy industry must set as its goal the complete extermination of oleomargarine. It must never rest until the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine has been outlawed in this country."

This was the extremist point of view, but middle westerners paid little attention to it until recently because butter was plentiful and moderately priced. Up to 1939 the two principal ingredients of margarine were cottonseed oil, produced in the south, and coconut oil, imported from the Pacific islands. Restrictions against margarine manufacturing raised some protests in the south because they were, in effect, a ban against a southern agricultural product.

Today margarine is on the dining tables or in the kitchens of millions of families in the United States, the middle west included. Not only are the 16 ration points required for every pound of butter prohibitive, but often there is no butter to be found in grocers' cases even when a family is willing to spend the required points.

The housewife now has cause to look on what the dairy industry has done to oleomargarine. Federal taxes on uncolored margarine—unappetizing in appearance—now stand at ¼ cent per pound, plus the following license fees: $600 for the manufacturer, $200 for the wholesaler, and $6 for the retailer each year. For colored [yellow] margarine, suitable for table use, these additional taxes are imposed: 10 cents a pound, $480 a year for wholesalers, $48 a year for retailers.

Because these additional taxes are so high, housewives for the most part are able to buy only uncolored margarine in stores. They must heat the package to room temperature, stir in a bowl with the small amount of yellow dye inclosed in each package, mix thoroly, pack down to eliminate air, and then cool the mixture.

The margarine industry points out that the "homework" required to make every pound of margarine into a table spread for family use wastes not only the housewives' time but the fat content of the product. The manufacturers say that this job should be done in the factory and at least one of them prints a statement on each carton of retail margarine declaring that the maker would be glad to do the coloring if federal taxes did not make it prohibitive.

The question of whether the dairy industry was justified in demanding and securing what amounts to an internal tariff protection for its product against the competition of cheap margarine during peace times need not be entered into. The New Deal and the war have so changed our home economy that butter has been disappearing from our tables and the dairy industry no longer needs protection.

For the duration, at least, congress should remove at least part of the restrictive taxes on margarine so that it can be purchased, colored and ready to use, in any grocery store in the country. The time housewives spend coloring margarine can be put to better use, and any tax that forces this work upon them is an unjust and unnecessary burden.

Middle western farmers are finding an increasingly active market for soybeans, and the margarine industry is in part responsible, consuming more and more soybean oil. Domestic soybean oil has virtually replaced the imported coconut and palm oils, and margarine makers in 1943 relied upon soybeans as the second largest source of their raw material. Cottonseed oil furnished 46 per cent of the margarine content and soybean oil 43 per cent during 1943, according to figures compiled by the margarine industry from internal revenue reports.

A bill to lift some of the restrictive taxes on margarine is now before congress and it should be passed, with necessary amendments if not as it stands, so that housewives can be freed from what amounts to churning their own butter substitute. The protection given the dairy industry could be restored automatically when the war ends.

LITERARY NOTE.

Three recent books so exactly complement each other that it would be easy to reach the conclusion that they were written in concert, in a joint intrigue to subordinate the United States and deprive it of its independence.

Mr. Wendell Willkie's travelog, entitled, "One World" [Simon & Schuster], seeks to create the illusion that everybody loves everybody or can very easily be brought to that attitude. Accordingly, we can commit ourselves to any internationalist scheme without risking anything. The worst that can happen to us is that we shall be smothered with kisses.

Mr. Walter Lippmann's "Foreign Policy" [Little, Brown & Co.] is directed toward the same conclusion in a more limited sphere. We have nothing to fear from an alliance with Britain and Russia [and maybe China] to rule the world. With a great deal of historical inaccuracy to establish this interesting thesis, Mr. Lippmann signs off.

Finally, there is a volume entitled, "Under Cover" [Dutton & Co.], written by a certain Arthur Derounian, who may have had another name before that one, and has since operated at various times as George Pagnanelli, Thomas L. Decker, George Page, John Correa, and Rudolph Eibers, in addition to the Roy Carlson which he has attached to his recent book. Mr. Derounian Pagnanelli Decker Page Correa Eibers Carlson's thesis is that those who believe in American independence and the preservation of our republican institutions are scoundrels. His method is to show that some few people who have opposed Mr. Roosevelt, internationalism, and the soviet tyranny are bigots and some few others have acted from dubious motives. The scheme is to smear all patriots by tying them in a bundle with a handful of greasy characters. In short, if a citizen's devotion to his country, his common sense, and his historical reading make it impossible for him to accept Mr. Willkie's palaver and Mr. Lippmann's insights, that citizen deserves no hearing. He is an outlaw, a Fascist, and, in general, a very wicked person.

As was noted above, the appearance of a conspiracy among these three authors may well be only an appearance. It could easily be dissipated if [a] Mr. Willkie were to expose the historical inaccuracies in Mr. Lippmann's work; [b] Mr. Lippmann were to expose the baloney in Mr. Willkie's work; [c] both would denounce the book of the man of many aliases for the excrescence it is, and [d] Dutton & Co., who have borne a generally good reputation in the publishing business, would offer a reasonable explanation of their recent vagary. As it is, they all lie under deep suspicion of being in a despicable conspiracy against America.

THE PRINCIPLES OF THE NEXT PEACE.

Those who are insisting that America today give an unconditional guarantee to maintain whatever terms of peace may be written into the treaties that will follow this war had better read again the words of the America-British-Russian statement concerning Italy's prospects.

Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin announced that the terms on which Italy surrendered will be modified "in the light of the assistance which the Italian government may be able to afford the united nations' cause."

That is practical politics and it means that the more the Italians do for us the better treatment they can expect at our hands. It would be foolish to criticize this arrangement because that's the way human beings have behaved with few exceptions since history began. All we wish to point out is that territorial and other adjustments made on the basis of help rendered in war are none too durable.

If the Italians help us materially we shall be in honor bound to treat them well. We shall be indebted also to the Jugo-Slavs. The trouble will be that the two nations have conflicting ambitions for the territory at the head of the Adriatic. It won't satisfy either if we divide it between them. It won't satisfy one if we give it to the other. The conflict will remain as a potential source of irritation and war as far ahead as any one can see.

That situation is repeated at a dozen points in Europe. There is not a nation on the continent which has ever been fully content with its boundaries. Either they are not sufficiently strong in the military sense or they break up an economic integer or they leave fellow countrymen under the control of an alien government. With the best will in the world the men who write the peace will have difficulty in drawing up terms that will be tolerably satisfactory to the peoples concerned and therefore lasting.

We know already that this is not to be a peace of reconciliation. We know it from the statement regarding Italy. We know it, also, from the declaration of Pravda that the Russians will not even discuss Baltic boundaries at the forthcoming conference of foreign ministers in Moscow. The Estonians are going to be bolsheviks, regardless of their wishes. The post-war world, like the world before the war, is to be ordered not by principles of justice but by force.

That isn't surprising, but it takes the ground from under the internationalists in this country. They want to commit us to a guarantee of the peace of Europe before they even know the terms. The internationalists, if they are sincere, must believe that the peace will be so fair to all concerned that there will be no disposition on the part of any nation to upset it and we shall therefore not have to send our men and our money to Europe in another 20 years to fight a new coalition of discontented nations.

From what we already know the forthcoming treaty is not likely to be any more durable than the last one. Those who want to commit us to the enforcement of the peace, sight unseen, are deluding themselves if they think that they have the key to perpetual peace. In fact, they are preparing America's obligatory entrance into the next war.

LAWYER'S HEAVEN.

[Indianapolis News.]

The average American is inclined to regard the complaints of business men about governmental interference as exaggerated. But the average American would be shocked if he had to manage a business these days. He would quickly discover that American enterprise has become a legalistic paradise.

Hundreds of orders were issued this last week, as usual. There was one on malted grains. WPB revoked order M-288, relating to malted grains and malt sirup, because it was superseded by order No. 66 of the food distributing administration. Miss Jones, call the lawyer.

Then there was one on CMP, whatever that means. The WPB announced simply that use of the quarterly identification symbol in connection with the placement of orders under CMP procedure has been clarified thru the issue of Interpretation 14 of CMP regulation 1. Tell him to hurry, Miss Jones.

Those are just samples. There were changes in PRC P-98-C; in Order L-257; in Conservation T-1; in MPR 444, and in Ration Order 13, among other things. Where's that lawyer?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

MR. PEPYS AND HIS BOOK.

16th Oct.—Have finished my work on the Linebook of 1943 and am ready to tell my publisher to take it away to the presses. Feel like a soldier who has laid down his pack at the end of a long march.

Preparing this book is a process which runs in the following steps: Collection, selection, weeding out, estimating space, pasting up copy, reading proof, pasting up dummy, reading page proof, making changes, re-reading page proof, finding artist for cover design. It has to be done between times and causes me to lead for six weeks the life of a triple-decker club sandwich. The printers also have to double in metal, and I wish to thank them all, beginning with Mr. Hess, the compositor.

Another month will be required for electroplating and color plating, and running thru the presses, and binding, and whatnot, with which I happily have no concern. So on or about Nov. 19, which happens to be my natal day, the Linebook of 1943 will be on sale and ready for mailing to all corners of the world. It will reach American soldiers from Alaska to Australia, and from Iceland to India.

The artist of the cover design is William H. Wisner, whom I call THE TRIBUNE's cartographer in chief, because of recent years he has become famous for his maps of the global war zones. But before he became a one-man geographic society he was a comic artist, and his cover for this year's book amuses me no end. Page 34 of the Linebook will explain its symbolism to any one who never heard of a totem pole.

Now to refresh myself with a sight of the Wildcats at bay in Dyche stadium, with the footballers from Great Lakes naval station as their dreaded adversaries. Am pleased to hear the sailors will bring their band and glee club. Heard these choristers do a little singing not long ago, and they are better than the chorus of "The Student Prince."

CUISINE MODERNE.

Let's consider the vitamins, those life-giving things
Possessed of a traveling mood;
Those elusive, disease-killing fellows with wings
That caper at will in our food.

Altho cooking be mastered and infinite care
Be exerted, these creatures get loose;
If you open an orange, they take to the air
Before you can swallow the juice.

But the imps have been captured while potent and active
By scientists of today,
And dressed in overcoats gay and attractive—
(In a pillular sort of way),

Now the lowlier elements floating about
With these nice alphabetical chaps
Our innards would do very nicely without,
And give us less trouble, perhaps.

Therefore, why bother to boil and to bake,
Or fuss with a salad dish,
Or trot here and there in search of a steak
And finally settle for fish?

Hear ye, O, hear ye, all meal-weary wives:
Discard every kettle and pan.
You can nourish your families—and lengthen their lives—
By way of the capsule plan. A. E. F.

The Wand of Aesculapius.

Linemaster: Your mention of the wand of Aesculapius with intertwined serpents [Oct. 7] calls to mind the difficulty I once had making a design for the cover of a medical journal. We had what we presumed to be an Aesculapius drawn by a fine artist; it had the customary two serpents entwined around a staff, like those on the United States army medical corps insignia and on all the medical printing that we could find.

The covers were finally printed and the books bound; then one of our learned friends asked us to look up "caduceus" in the dictionary. There, illustrating the definition of the caduceus, was our conception of an Aesculapius. A further search in the dictionary revealed the fact that the wand of Aesculapius properly has only one serpent. The caduceus is "the herald's staff of office, specifically that of Mercury"—really a good symbol for Western Union.

Just where the medical profession went astray in its selection of the symbol would be an interesting bit of research. Robert Packard.

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS.

A stained glass window sheds its light
Upon the pews, row after row,
And thru a figure robed in white
There comes a brighter afterglow.

Within His arms a small lamb lies,
Now safe from any hurt or harm.
He heard the tiny bleating cries
And calmed its anguish and alarm.

The colors change with clouds and sun
Like troubles in the lives of men;
At times their light is nearly done,
But then comes brightly back again.

It holds the elements without,
While casting tinted light within
To soothe the worshiping devout
Like gentle music after din.

The stained glass window sheds its light
Upon the pews, row after row,
But it should also be as bright
To those folk passing by below.

Salesman's Soliloquy.

M-m! Pretty narrow in the chest, aren't we? Well, if anybody can build 'em up, we can.

M-m! A lopsided shoulder, eh? Well, a lot of padding will take care of that.

M-m! What a waistline for such a narrow chest! Well, we can't all be built like an Adonis, can we?

M-m! Boy, what hips! Well, we can at least try.

M-m! One leg is a good deal shorter than the other, isn't it? Well, a pair of scissors will remedy that.

O. K., mister. When you get into this suit after we've remade it you'll really look like something.

SHORTER PERIODS IN BED AFTER SURGERY.

A FEW months ago, in one of our discussions, mention was made that clots are likely to form in the veins of the extremities when prolonged quiet and rest slow the circulation. It was not surprising that many correspondents, including physicians, suggested that—as a preventive—more freedom might be permitted those who have submitted to surgery.

This calls to mind that some years ago several experts adopted this régime, apparently with much benefit. There seemed to be no good reason why the person recovering from a routine appendectomy should not sit up in bed, vary his position frequently, or even occupy a chair for a short time during the second day of convalescence.

On the other hand, a fair number of authorities questioned the advisability of the procedure. They cited experiences wherein abdominal wounds opened, presenting complications which demanded an extended hospital stay. Naturally there will be some cases to which the program will not apply. Good judgment will need to be exercised. But anything which tends to lessen thrombophlebitis [inflammation within a vein] should be encouraged.

Recently Leithauser of Detroit reported 464 consecutive operations in which the average confinement was but a single day. Furthermore, the total sojourn in the hospital for each patient approximated five days. Cases included appendicitis, removal of gall bladder, hernia, pelvic operations in women, etc. In only three instances was it necessary to readmit a member of this group for subsequent care. Obviously, with these individuals, a longer hospital period would have been safer.

For the most part, an anesthetic injected into the spinal canal was employed. On return to the room, two ounces of water were given every two hours for the first 24 hours. If abdominal distention developed, a suction tube was utilized. Morphine was used for pain. All were instructed to practice deep breathing, and were assisted in changing posture every hour. The morning following surgery, patients were allowed to hang the feet over the edge of the bed and were supported in a sitting position.

After a brief rest they were asked to stand on a stool and urged to cough. This had the effect of expelling mucus plugs from the finer bronchi and aided in clearing the lungs. If nausea or weakness were present, the maneuvers were postponed until the second or third day. Walking was then instituted, the sufferer taking a few steps, increasing the exercise gradually.

While every surgeon will not agree that the plan is sound, nevertheless it is worthy of consideration. Certainly the old rule of two weeks in bed, with but little movement, is contrary to nature, particularly if the individual has been accustomed to activity.

The main objective is to stimulate the circulation and, for this purpose, deep breathing is ideal. It is interesting to note that in a series of 527 appendix operations 58 per cent took a few steps about the room on the first day, 23 per cent on the second, 8 on the third, and the remaining 10 per cent shortly thereafter. Bronchial infections developed in only 13.

For Every Man a Village.

Has any one been reading those Russian war communiques lately? If you haven't, don't fret. The communiqués have not stopped, nor have their contents changed. The Russians still are recapturing villages.

Naturally this is splendid, but it is also baffling, for the total of recaptured villages long ago became astronomical. One would think, on the face of mere statistics, that every Russian village had been retaken long ago, but, no. In leafing thru the last three weeks' reports, we found that thousands more are being recaptured, often as many as 170 in 10 miles.

For example:

Sept. 23.—"In advances along the Dnieper, the Russians won back 864 villages in 15 miles. . . . In the Gomel area, 260 villages in 14 miles. . . . In the Roslavl area, 80 towns. . . . In the Pavlograd area, 90 villages in 12 miles. . . ." Total, one day, 1,194.

Sept. 24.—863 villages.

Sept. 26.—". . . near Smolensk, 60; below Smolensk, 350 . . . drive on Kremenchug, 120."

Sept. 28.—1,320, the greatest single day's haul of the war.

Sept. 30.—". . . 120 villages in nine miles."

Oct. 1.—"Captured more than 170 villages in advances up to 12 miles in the battle for White Russia . . . and 50 localities in advances up to seven miles . . . and more than 30 towns and hamlets in advances northwest of Smolensk . . ."

Oct. 2.—". . . 460 more towns and hamlets . . ."

Oct. 3.—". . . routed the Nazis from 320 villages in White Russia . . ."

And so on, racing breathlessly to Oct. 11 where "the Reds recaptured several [villages] in the Kiev region . . . a height village on the western Dnieper . . . and plunged [The Associated Press was by this time getting hysterical] to the north along the Polish and Latvian borders, sweeping thru 200 villages etaoin shrdlu . . ."

Now this listing, which skips the dull days, gives a total of 5,451 villages, towns, hamlets, and "populated places"—the communiques confuse these terms with facility. This is for only three weeks of war. Not bad; just baffling.

However, we think we have it figured out. Before the war there were 160 million Russians, and altho five million Russians have been killed, the estimates still speak of 160 million Russians. There are, we now feel confident, 160 million Russian villages, a village for every Russian. Each is known as a collective farm. This doubtless is what is meant by collective security.

Lost Not Found.

A distraught gentleman called Tuesday at the lost articles department of the Milwaukee road in the Union station and asked the railroad's venerable Robert J. Walker, who at 83 has been with the road 60 years, if any one had turned in an umbrella he had left on the Hiawatha the night before. Some one had, and it was handed him. The delighted gentleman hooked its handle over the edge of the counter while he signed a formal receipt, commented kindly on the honesty of mankind, asked that his thanks be conveyed to all involved, shook hands with Mr. Walker, and departed . . . leaving the umbrella.

HE WANTS HELP, NOT CREDIT.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—This isn't entirely our war. Why should we finance most of it? In fact, our war duty actually is in the Pacific. But very little help is being given there. By the time they decide to do it, the Pacific may be so tied up we may not be able to get help thru.

If we had another general out there the Japs would have control now. But thanks to Gen. MacArthur, a real soldier, we have kept the Japs back.

When Mr. Roosevelt said the Japs are on the downgrade, he underestimates them, and is either too optimistic or just doesn't care. But when he did say it, he didn't give any credit to Gen. MacArthur and his small force, who have to carry supplies in canoes.

THOUGHTS OF A 1-A.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—It is most admirable to be compassionate, to be desirous of aiding all the needy in this world. But it is both mad and traitorous to attempt this impossible and unappreciated undertaking when, with the induction of fathers, there will be countless cases of great hardship at home.

I have been 1-A for more than a month and, according to my draft board, my induction is imminent. Yet the administration has far less to say about the present welfare of my wife and pre-Pearl Harbor children than about the future welfare of others so far away.

Yes, I have read of an increased allotment. I have listened to the promises of a bonus, of "mustering out" pay—if and when one returns to civilian life—but, dismally, I recall other promises. So, too, have my landlord, grocer, insurance agent, and a parade of others who, I am sure, would not accept this problematical windfall as collateral for the necessities incurred by my family during my absence.

It shouldn't take a psychiatrist to discover that a man constantly worried and overwhelmed with bitterness would not make the best soldier. W. S. JR.

THE FIVE SENATORS.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Three rousing cheers for our five undaunted senators! What a relief to know that at last these Paul Reveres are rousing the countryside from their slumbers, regardless of threats from the administration, before we are again sold down the river to the British.

It is too late to save those boys who have already lost lives and limbs in this great crusade to not only recover the British empire but to add greater power and territorial conquests to her crown. What will the United States of America get out of it? More broken lives, more casualties, higher living costs, greater taxes, intensified dictatorship, or will we uncover the truth before we, too, will be swallowed by this empire?
MRS. F. DORN.

PROOF TO CONTRARY WELCOMED.

GYM AND THE ARMY.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—My 18 year old son enlisted in the army on his last birthday, and the physical tasks assigned to him since that time make me most happy that he was interested in athletics before he joined up. His participation in sports gave him the physical strength and endurance to hold up under the strenuous work assigned to him by his officers. I began to think about it after reading "A Guardian Mother's" letter in last Sunday's TRIBUNE, in which she complained that gym work twice a week was too strenuous for her child, who showed "signs of considerable fatigue . . . with extreme stiffness and pains in arms, thigh and spine muscles." I doubt if a child who suffers such tortures after a gym workout is as "healthy and normal" as his mother believes. If he or she is "healthy and normal" and still suffers so after gym workout, it's probably because of need of physical work to build up strength. I hope, for "Guardian Mother's" sake, that her child isn't anticipating a call from the army. ANOTHER MOTHER.

Well, Mr. Spetter, that one reason, I submit, is that THE TRIBUNE is Americanized. In support of my contention I would refer you to Mr. F. A. Reckart's letter in the same issue.

RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES.

Lombard, Ill., Oct. 11.—Among the rights and privileges of British citizenship which would be conferred upon Americans by the joint citizenship plan of Churchill, Roosevelt, et al, would there be included the right to be conscripted into the British army for the purpose of holding in check Britain's subject peoples, and the privilege of paying taxes to support Britain's effete, hereditary aristocracy?

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Frances Figura, 2539 Southport avenue.]

THE QUESTION.

What do you think of Frank Sinatra?

WHERE ASKED.

Girl's academy, 1444 West Division street.

THE ANSWERS.

Theresa Ozart, junior, 2630 South Trumbull avenue—The first time I heard the man sing in "Ship Ahoy," I really was struck by him. I saw the show several times just to look at him and hear him sing again. But now that I've seen him in "Revelry with Beverly," I've suddenly grown very tired of him. I had a crush on him, all right, but it wore off in a hurry.

Bette Baran, junior, 2228 Iowa street—I think he's perfectly wonderful. When I listen to him, my mind never strays from the theme of his song. I think his singing is different. His voice has personality. If I were the swooning type, I think one of his songs could cause it quicker than anything else.

Betty Barwig, junior, 2856 North Ridgeway avenue—When I first heard him I thought he was O. K., but now I think he has been spoiled by sudden publicity. He even has changed his style of singing a little. He has exaggerated what we called his "natural style," and now it isn't any good at all.

Loreene Kunz, junior, 1427 Wicker Park avenue—He doesn't begin to be the singer that Bing Crosby is. And if I did like him, I wouldn't like to admit it—because so many girls who do like him are so silly about it. I don't want to be like that. Personally I think I'd like him better if he didn't try to sing.

Evelyn Lenard, sophomore, 1501 Huron street—Frank Sinatra, as yet, never has made me sigh, swoon, or faint—and I haven't exercised any will power. I know other girls who like the way he slurs from one note to another, but I don't like the way he sways in front of the microphone.

Dolores Modura, junior, 5010 Nelson avenue—Bigger singers have come and gone and I think he's going quicker than most of them. I don't think he's worth all the comment he's getting. There are boys in our choir at church to whom I'd rather listen. I wouldn't give a nickel for one of Sinatra's coat buttons.

Tropical Storm Reported East of Bahama Islands

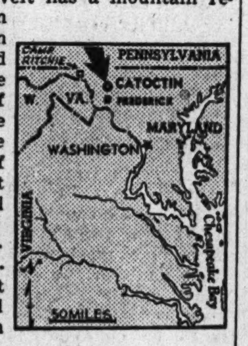
Miami, Fla., Oct. 15 (AP).—A small tropical storm, with winds of near-hurricane force, was reported by the weather bureau here today to be moving in a northerly direction about 12 to 15 miles per hour and about 175 miles east northeast of Turks Island, in the outer Bahamas.

SECRET HIDEOUT FOR ROOSEVELT NOT SO SECRET

Catoctin Natives Knew All About It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—President Roosevelt has a mountain retreat in western Maryland where he finds relief from the war time pressure of his office, it was learned today.



The President's haven is part of a federal reservation known as the Catoctin recreation area, near Frederick, Md., about 50 miles from Washington. It was developed by the civilian conservation corps several years ago.

Exact Location Secret.

Because of the censorship of news relating to the President's travels, neither the White House nor the national parks service would disclose the exact location of the President's resort nor the dates on which he has been there.

Residents of the district in the Catoctin area were surprised to learn that there had been any secrecy about the President's visits. It is well known there that White House groups have made frequent visits to the spot. Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain has been among Mr. Roosevelt's guests on one or two occasions.

WACS and WAVES Nearby.

Camp Ritchie, an army reservation, is a few miles from the Catoctin area. Week-end visits to that area of groups of WACs and WAVES have added to the martial air of the section.

As in the case of the Rapidan, Va., mountain resort of former President Hoover, President Roosevelt's resort is located in a famous trout fishing country. Lawrence Richey, one time secretary to Hoover, has a camp near Roosevelt's resort.

SALES TAX SEEN BY CIO AS EQUAL TO ARMY DEFEAT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The CIO, arguing that a federal retail sales tax would be "the equivalent of a military defeat," teamed up with the administration today in a determined effort to turn back the fast developing drive in congress for enactment of such a levy.

Philip Murray, CIO president, told the house ways and means committee that if this tax became law organized labor "would be compelled to demand a proportionate increase in wages to make up for this unjustified wage cut."

Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson predicted a sales levy would cause demands for wage and price increases, and open the way for wild inflation.

A sales tax, Murray said, would be a violation of the obligation given by this government to the working people that wages and prices are to be stabilized at the level of Sept. 15, 1942.

RECOVERING FROM GUNSHOT WOUND.

Sam Viscoglioli, 60 years old, 3233 Grenshaw street, a musician, was recovering yesterday in County hospital of a bullet wound fired accidentally while he was cleaning a gun in his home. He was wounded across his abdomen.

SCHOOL SUBSIDY FEARED AS ROAD TO U. S. CONTROL

Willis Recalls a Familiar Look to Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—Sen. Raymond E. Willis [R., Ind.] today told the senate that the pending bill to provide federal aid to schools thruout the country may represent the opening wedge for outright federal control of the nation's educational system.

Warning that "who has the purse strings has the power," Sen. Willis traced the course of other federal aid plans which, he said, started out to permit state and local governments to distribute and spend the money, but wound up with virtually complete federal control of the manner and purposes of expending the federal funds.

"It has become a fixed principle, lately sustained by judicial opinion, that the authority to subsidize carries with it the power to regulate," Sen. Willis said, adding that the "sponsors of nearly every one of our myriads of governmental aid agencies disclaimed any intention of regulation."

Gives Commissioner Powers.

The bill under consideration, sponsored by Senators Lister Hill [D., Ala.] and Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], has been written in a manner that proponents say assures complete local control over the spending of the 300 million dollars provided.

Commenting on this, Sen. Willis said:

"The bill, however, authorizes the United States commissioner of education to make such rules as may be necessary to facilitate its administration. . . .

"Notwithstanding the intended advantages of this bill for the cause of education and morality, always potent objectives in the American way of living, my conscience forces me to conclude that the greater good lies in unhampered state control of the education of our future citizens."

Economic Need Questioned.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], joined Sen. Willis in questioning the economic need of the states for the federal educational subsidy and quoted department of commerce figures to show that the states which stand to benefit most from the grants are those which have shown the greatest percentage of increase in total income of individuals.

Sen. Hill asserted that federal aid to education is "now a war measure." He cited the inroads which war industry and the military services have made on teaching personnel in nearly all states. To this argument he added the subject of illiteracy which has caused many rejections by the army and navy.

Fails to Aid Negroes.

Sen. Vandenberg asserted that the small increase for teachers which the federal aid bill would allow would not have prevented the migration of teachers into highly paid war jobs. Sen. Robert A. Taft [R., O.] said that federal aid would not assure equality of education between Negro and white pupils in southern states.

Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council, opposed the proposed law in a statement terming the bill "another New Deal hoax of the Negro's constitutional rights."

CHICAGO OFFICER DIES IN CRASH IN CALIFORNIA

Blythe, Cal., Oct. 15 (AP).—Ten crewmen were killed last night in the crash of a four engined bomber attempting an emergency landing four miles southeast of Blythe army air base.

The dead included:

Second Lt. Charles E. Owen, 25 years old, pilot, 3916½ North Kedval avenue, Chicago.

Sgt. John E. Thomson, 21, aerial engineer, Butler, Ind.

Sets House Afire.

Columbus, O., Oct. 15 (AP).—A P-40 army pursuit plane crashed in flames today and set a farmhouse afire three miles south of Laurelville in Hocking county. The pilot, whose name was withheld, was killed. The Lockbourne army air base public relations officer said the plane was on a routine carrying flight from Buffalo, N. Y., to the Romulus, Mich., army air base.

SHIPYARD CREW ASKS NAVY RULE KEARNY PLANT

Workers Return After Strike of 7,000.

Kearny, N. J., Oct. 15 [Special].—About 800 day shift employes of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company, producers of warships and auxiliary craft, marched to the office of the yard navy supervisor today to request the navy department to take over the plant, after more than 1,000 of the 17,000 first shift employes walked out, a company spokesman said.

The unauthorized work stoppage tonight, however, appeared to have ended, the spokesman said, as the night shift reported to work.

Failure of 85 steel handlers, who had been out since Monday, to return for the day shift caused a bottleneck in production during the day, but the spokesman said work tonight probably would "be normal." He said attendance of workers tonight "appeared normal for rainy weather."

6,000 on Night Shift Out.

An estimated 6,000 employes left their jobs on the two night shifts last night, the company reported. Some members of the day shift left, a federal official said, because of rain and others because there was no work for them to do.

Meanwhile Union county draft board 2, in Union, a neighboring town, reclassified into 1-A all of the 21 federal workers to whom deferments had been issued. Men reported by the company to have stayed on the job would be put back into their previous classifications, the board explained.

Last night's walkout was the first widespread work delay at the yard since 1941, when a 91 day strike resulted in navy operation of the plant.

In New York Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.] said the Connally-Smith anti-strike bill "offers a remedy at Kearny or at any other plant in the country." The government can take over the plant and operated it, he said, adding, "This remey has worked before."

2,000 Quit at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 15 (AP).—Cramp Shipbuilding company, wholly engaged in war work for the navy, disclosed today that approximately 2,000 workers failed to return to their jobs after the midday lunch period.

"The Chimney Crashed"

SYNOPSIS: Lady Hyacinth calls at the office of her husband, Peter Gloam, and demands money for a venture in shipping antiques to America. With her are her two cousins, Joanna Fripp and Cyril Brockett. Wren Dancey is Peter's secretary; Sam Molesey, the bookkeeper, and Harold, the office boy. The office has been bombed. Ronald, now Capt. Warre, calls to see his uncle. Sounds of falling bricks are heard in the inner office where Lady Hyacinth and Peter are quarreling. Peter suffers a stroke. During a violent air raid, Lady Hyacinth arranges for immediate removal of furniture, by van, to a Dorset cottage. Parker, the cook, tries to warn Wren of the amazing things Lady Hyacinth has been doing, but, interrupted, she runs to an air raid shelter, and on the way is murdered. One of the van drivers, Mike Riley, is the next victim of foul play. A bomb has sent Lady Hyacinth to the hospital with a broken leg. She sends Wren to Dorset to look after the furniture. Wren is happy to be alone, but her rejoicing is cut short, for Joanna descends upon her. After the local constable warns Wren of a light showing in the cottage, his body is found near a brush, with a service man's button in his hand. Cyril and Sam Molesey, with Groucho, the cat, arrive. Groucho leads Wren and Cyril to a gruesome discovery of blood and a tuft of the constable's hair. Ronald, who comes to visit, is sure Lady Hyacinth hid something she plans to dispose of illegally, and that Cyril and Joanna are after it, too. Police call at the cottage and talk to Wren, Joanna, and Ronald, from whose coat a button is missing. Then suspicion falls upon Lem Gallus, van driver. Ronald asks Wren for three days in which to search the cottage. They check up on Cyril and Joanna and find Joanna has not been to Framleigh, then visit Gridley's poultry shed where Mike Riley was murdered. Inspectors find the defective catch and nail which scratched the constable's hand, and that the packing cases have been tampered with. Cyril agrees to advise Lady Hyacinth, by telephone. When the others leave the cottage, Wren and Ronald engage in their treasure hunt.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

RONALD QUESTIONED.

The mirror had sustained a villainous crack, in addition to which one entire flange of bordering glass lay in winking fragments on the floor. Ronald said:

"One antique gone to pot. I'd have said it was too heavy to capsize."

Wren found her iodine pencil and took it to Joanna who, in a vile temper, was nursing her wounds.

"What?" she snarled at Wren's question. "O, I left them fiddling with the phone. Something has gone wonky with it."

At any rate, the attempt to ring Hyacinth was being made—under Sam's supervision. Had Joanna been balked in some aim?

"Look, Jo," Wren said tentatively, "if Lady Hyacinth is agreeable, how about me handing this job over to you?"

It was a sheer try-on. Joanna's eyes bulged from her head.

"Me camp on my own in this awful place? No fear!"

"Jo, listen. Does this murder business make you feel jitters?"

Joanna lighted a cigaret. "O that!" Slowly, contemptuously she smiled. "If you want my opinion, the whole thing's a gigantic sell."

"Sell! How?"

"Cyril's fault," Joanna shrugged. "Such a fool. He goes and brings that unspeakable little guttersnipe here and what happens? The miserable scum sets to work to cook up a perfectly hair raising story for no earthly reason than to prove how much cleverer he is than the police.

Joanna couldn't by remote chance believe what she was saying.

Ronald, having swept up the debris, was in the bedroom, undoing the hasps of Peter's old gladstone bag.

"You're right, there's nothing here." Ronald replaced the bundle of old letters he had drawn from the bag, but ran an exploring hand into a shrunken side pocket. "What's Joanna up to now?"

"That's it, I can't make it out. She's made me all squirmy."

Ronald had fished forth what seemed to be a mere margin fragment of aged paper. It had the tail ends of script on it, but in brown ink so faded as to be indecipherable in the now dimming light. Sinking her voice Wren explained that Joanna's attitude had changed.

"She's still secret and devious; she's infuriating; but why did she leave those two at the Thistle and sneak back here if not to get her own innings while she could? We were being quiet upstairs, for all she knew we'd gone off. I think she'd got a hunch. The way she's acting now may mean she's got what she'd been after—"

"Got it?" His eyes blazed.

"Either that or she's pretty darned sure she can lay hands on it. I don't like leaving her alone."

At the door a sound from Ronald made her turn. Still squinting at the torn paper he muttered, "Well, well! I always said she had the devil's luck; but I imagine even he does occasionally slip up. She's slipped, that's certain. She was in a rush, of course . . ."

"Will wou stop jabbering?" Wren began, exasperated. "Have you found something? If so—— Here's our detectives again."

Ronald pocketed his discovery and joined Wren in the hall just as the inspector made gruff apologies for having intruded during her absence.

"That's all right," Wren assured. "Tho I will say it's a beastly idea, this having a murder committed in a perfectly good cottage. There's no doubt about it, I suppose?"

"Not a stiver," the inspector replied, then relaxed into a sly chuckle. "Your London friend—Molesey, is that the name?—was a help, mentioning as he did how the animal kept scratching at that door. See what a good job it was, having such a clutter of stuff no really proper sweeping could be done! We'd have lost that hair, the smear of blood might have got by. What's that, sergeant?"

The grizzled Peters growled that he, for one, would never have overlooked the damp carpet. Wren, not liking the sergeant's dour scrutiny of her face, retorted that on her arrival even the blankets were soaked.

"Ah, it's like that in empty places," the inspector agreed amiably. "Let's see, when exactly did you take possession? Wednesday. Just so. Coming direct from London? Just you alone . . . got a car in Bexminster, did you? Expecting presently to have company?"

"Not at all. I supposed I'd be entirely by myself."

"Surprised, were you, when four London friends turned up?"

Wren hesitated. "Well, yes, in a way."

"I'd like a word with this gentleman now. Captain—?"

"Warre," Ronald replied stepping forward. "I was just pushing off. You wanted to ask me something?"

"In private."

Blood pounded suffocatingly in Wren's ears. Even as she passed through into the living room she heard Ronald saying:

"It matches, doesn't it, inspector? O, you needn't tell me where this button came to light? I had that item slung at me this morning, also the fact that you ransacked my car."

"I see, captain. Your batman was laid up, but to the best your belief you left London with all your buttons intact. That, you tell me, was on Wednesday afternoon. Tuesday night you spent where?"

"In my new billet. It's the Blue Anchor, Dracott, Wilts."

"Dracott? Thirty miles north of here . . ."

Thru her nursing home window Lady Hyacinth gazed on the meandering Thames. One elephantine leg stretched stiffly on a cushioned rest, her face was a parchment mask. The nurse entered and smiled.

"No, no, ducky, I'm not being horried to you just yet! It's a different wee spot of bother. Would you believe it, there's a police inspector asking to have a word with you. Seems he had some communication from—Devon? No, Dorset. Now, if you'd rather. Matron or sister dealt with him."

"Policeman? Show him in."

MORTON WARNS: LIMIT ARMY OR CRIPPLE NATION

U. S. Bearing Too Heavy a Load, He Says.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 15 [Special].—America soon must make a choice between curtailment of a fast growing military establishment and further sacrifice of efficiency in agriculture and industry, Sterling Morton, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, asserted here tonight.

The increasingly serious man power drain leaves no alternative, he told the association's southern division, and concluded:

"Further inroads on man power may have most serious repercussions on both the military and civilian supply situations. The top men may soon have to decide which is to be our contribution to the cause of the united nations—an abundance of food plus a flood of munitions, or a mass army. It begins to look as tho we could not contribute both."

Army Needs Change.

Morton said the tide of war had swung to the side of the allies since the United States decided its military personnel needs and asserted:

"In view of the figures recently released on the number of fully trained men still in this country, it would seem possible that inductions, except for the 18 year olds, could cease for a while.

"Perhaps we should now revert to our original function of being principally the arsenal and granary to the united nations, to say nothing of furnishing the money."

Near Breakdown Point.

A survey of manufacturing plants shows that the dilution of skilled personnel has already been carried "almost to the breakdown point," he said, and any further dilution will bring about a disproportionate loss in efficiency. Loss of 5 to 10 per cent more would be "very serious," he asserted, and 10 to 15 per cent more "really crippling."

Morton credited Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] with a national service in pressing for a congressional investigation of the entire man power problem, thus carrying out a duty given congress by the nation's founders.

"The basic idea [of the founders] seems to have been that the supreme civilian authority—the congress—should determine the size of the armies and how they should be raised, and that the commander in chief, also a civilian, should carry out the desires of congress," Morton said.

3 Million on Pay Rolls.

Morton said that the government, by a recent count, had more than 3 million civilian employes in a civilian army increasing at the rate of 300,000 a year. He commented that "we are following in the footsteps of the French pretty fast if one in 12 of our working force is a civilian government employe."

Morton criticized conditions which lead to inefficient use of man power in industry.

"We just can't spare many more men from industry if production is to be kept up," he said. "Any cushion of employable persons which may have existed has vanished.

Urges 48 Hour Week.

"Adoption of a 48 hour basic work week would take a great load off the backs of present and future taxpayers, and, incidentally, probably increase production while retarding inflationary tendencies. Our record on production is marvelous; our record on costs is deplorable."

Morton is an executive of the Morton Salt company, Chicago.

Is This News? Wild Deer Manages to Elude Police

Burlington, Ia., Oct. 15 (AP).—Police Sgt. William Anderson was taking the sixth telephone call in as many minutes about a wild deer that was roaming thru Burlington when the deer appeared at the police station. Both the deer and the officers were startled, but the deer moved first. It eluded police in a chase thru the business district, crashed into one automobile, narrowly missed a second, and disappeared into the country.

EX-BOSS OF NYA HIRED TO BOOST FARMERS' UNION

Move Laid to F. D. R.; Outfit Held Leftist.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—Aubrey Williams, New Deal social worker who resigned Sept. 10 as head of the national youth administration, has been named to direct an intensive membership drive in 22 eastern and southern states for the National Farmers' union, James G. Patton, president of the union, said today.

The NFU has been branded radical and leftist by rival farm organizations, one of which charged that Williams' selection is part of an administration backed attempt to form a left wing farm bloc.

With New Deal 10 Years.

A professional social worker since 1920, Williams will enter a field entirely new to him, his associates said. He will be director of organization for the union, which claims a membership of 400,000 "working farmers" mostly in the west and middlewest.

Williams' new job terminates 10 years' association with the Roosevelt administration, first as an executive in the federal emergency relief administration, and since 1935 as administrator of the NYA, which expires Jan. 1 by congressional order.

Move Laid to Roosevelt.

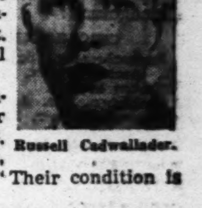
Commenting on Williams' affiliation with the farmers' union, Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, asserted in an interview that the move was engineered by President Roosevelt in a campaign to organize a left wing farm bloc to fight the traditional farm groups.

"We knew all along that the left wingers in the administration have been trying to set up their own farmers' organization," O'Neal said. "They are putting Williams in the job to direct the drive to get new members. They have the President's blessing."

PROBE MYSTERY IN ODD ILLNESS OF NUDE COUPLE

Both Taken Unconscious to Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cadwallader, both presumably victims of a poisonous gas that escaped from a defective mechanical refrigerator in their apartment at 1431 Lunt avenue, are in a critical condition at St. Francis hospital in Evanston.



Russell Cadwallader.

"Both are unconscious," their physician, Dr. G. Howard Irwin, said last night. "Their condition is critical."

Cadwallader, 27 years old, an assistant personnel manager for the Harvey Restaurant company, and his wife, who is 26, were married in July and moved into the apartment Oct. 1. When their condition was discovered Thursday they were wandering about the apartment nude and dazed.

In Apartment Since Monday.

Edward Heyink, janitor of the building, told Rogers Park police they apparently had been in the apartment since Monday—victims of gas that left them too dazed to explain their condition but still able to wander in and out to the corridors.

Dr. Irwin said the cause of their illness had not yet been determined definitely. At the hospital it was said that Mrs. Cadwallader's condition was the more serious.

Gerald Gearon, a city health inspector, visited the apartment yesterday and reported that while he found a defective gasket thru which gas was leaking from the refrigerator, the amount escaping seemed insufficient to have caused illness.

Sgt. Tom Kelly of the Rogers Park station recalled that last January poisonous gas from a refrigerator at 1344 Lunt avenue, a block from the Cadwallader apartment, was blamed for the death of Mrs. Betty Daniels of Bridgeport, Conn.

One Victim Recovers.

Kelly said Mrs. Daniels came to visit her mother, Mrs. Adelaide Talbott, after Mrs. Talbott had been made ill by gas in her apartment and removed to a hospital. While staying in the apartment, the daughter was overcome and died Jan. 9. Mrs. Talbott recovered.

The bathroom in the Cadwallader apartment was spattered with blood. A broken glass was found in the kitchenette and another in the bathroom. An opened box of baking soda was found and a brown pint bottle was near the davenport.

Mrs. Cadwallader's father, Carl Moehle of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, arrived in Chicago yesterday to be with his daughter.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 15 [Special].—Farmers in the southern part of this state have been waging a violent battle against a new enemy in the last two weeks. There are thousands of midwestern hunters who would give a right arm to be able to get in the fight. The foe is one of the greatest migration of wild ducks in the history of the state.

As chilly weather creeps over the north the ducks have started their fall trip to the southlands. On the way they have dropped off in Oregon grain fields for a quick meal and a rest.

The birds have descended in flocks numbering in the thousands. They have destroyed many acres of fall grains and are a menace to newly seeded fields. The farmers have been trying every stunt in the book to get rid of the tasty fowl.

Try to Scare Them Off.

When the first flocks arrived the farmers tried running out to the fields and scaring the birds with shouts and arm waving. This merely succeeded in driving the ducks into the fields of neighbors, who promptly arrived to go thru the same antics and chase them back. Many new enemies were made among farmers in those first few days.

Next the farmers took to driving down to their fields at night in cars. Bright headlights and horn honking were tried. This merely stirred most of the birds up and they settled back quickly after the farmers left.

Then the farmers tried driving around the fields with noisy farm machinery tied behind their cars. Some dragged chains and others drove their tractors and biggest pieces of machinery around the invaded areas. The results were the same as before.

Pilots Fly Over Fields.

In desperation, the farmers now have hired private airplanes from near-by air fields. The pilots are paid to roar over the fields a few hundred feet from the ground. This has proved successful but costly.

Several unthinking gentlemen went to their fields with shotguns and blasted away fiercely at the ducks. The birds stayed away as long as the shotgun shells held out, which wasn't long.

This type of warfare was designed more to scare than to kill and now the farmers have no shells, and only a few dead ducks, while thousands of live ones still are consuming their grain.

★ The GARDEN ★

ANOTHER of the rare vegetables which will come to the attention of gardeners next season is tampala, a new type of spinach. It was grown on an experimental basis in the sample gardens this year, but the seed will not be available to the general public until next spring.

Tampala grows in clump form, and has long, narrow leaves which reach a length of 10 to 14 inches. It can be cut often, like Swiss chard. In the opinion of farm residents who tasted it, tampala is as flavorful as Bloomsdale spinach [the common type grown here] and has the advantage of being plantable and usable at any time of the growing season, whereas Bloomsdale does not thrive during the warm days of midsummer.

The farm gardener attempted to transplant tampala, and the results were not beneficial, since after transplanting the clumps did not thrive. Next season the plants will be allowed to stand where planted, and should provide an excellent leaf vegetable for midsummer serving.

LIBERTY SHIPS TO BEAR NAMES OF 22 NOTABLES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—Twenty-two American notables will be honored when Liberty ships now under construction at Wilmington, Cal., and Baltimore, Md., are christened with their names.

Included in the 10 ships at the California Shipbuilding corporation yard are Nicholas Longworth, named for the Republican speaker of the house of representatives from 1925 to 1931.

Other Americans for whom the California ships will be named include: Edward Paine, Connecticut born Revolutionary soldier and Ohio pioneer who settled land near what is now Cleveland; Orland S. Loomis, attorney general and governor elect of Wisconsin in 1942, who died while waiting to take the oath of office; Carl R. Gray, Union Pacific railroad executive and Chicago bank director; Charles T. Yerkes, the Chicago banker and stock broker who financed the famous Yerkes observatory; Sylvester Patie, Kentucky pioneer who led the first Americans into California in 1828, and who was the first American buried in California soil.

Ships at the Baltimore yards will be named for Frank A. Vanderlip, who organized the Spanish war loan of 1898, the first war loan in the United States, and former financial editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and Samuel M. Ralston, governor of Indiana from 1913 to 1917 and later a United States senator.

THREE BANDITS GET $800.

Chicago police yesterday were searching for three men who Tuesday evening invaded the Tocin Savings and Loan association, 6540 Cermak road, Berwyn, and robbed the cashier, Miss Pauline Fila, of $800.

Elizabeth Bard Is Engaged to Lt. Farrington

BY JUDITH CASS.

AN announcement of interest comes from Mr. and Mrs. Roy Emerson Bard of Winnetka, who today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Channon, to Lt. John Dow Farrington Jr. of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Farrington, also of Winnetka. The Bards are not giving a party to celebrate the engagement as Lt. Farrington could not be here for the occasion.

Miss Bard attended the New Trier High school and was graduated from the Master's school at Dobbs Ferry last June, and while she is of debutante age this year the announcement of her engagement automatically removes her from the debutante list. Lt. Farrington, who is instructing at Camp Hood, Tex., is a graduate of the Lawrenceville school and of Princeton university. The announcement of the engagement of his sister, Miss Dorothy Farrington, to Corp. Preston Kelsey Aishton, son of the Richard A. Aishtons of Winnetka, was made known on Oct. 2. Miss Bard's older brother, Roy Jr., is serving with the navy.

Wedding News.

In a quiet ceremony at 4:30 p. m. on Sept. 25 in the Princeton university chapel, Miss Gloria Shirley Warner was married to 1st Sgt. Ellsworth Faris Jr. The bridegroom's father, Dr. Faris of Lake Forest, professor emeritus of the University of Chicago, read the service, and a dinner followed at the historic Princeton inn. Mr. and Mrs. Faris and the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Warner, went east for the wedding. Sgt. Faris and his bride went to New York on their wedding trip and then to Syracuse, N. Y., to see his brother, Robert E. Lee Faris, who is a professor at Syracuse university. They will live in Princeton while the bridegroom completes an army course he is taking there. Mr. and Mrs. Warner returned home by way of Pittsburgh, where they visited friends.

Mrs. Michelson Maher and Neville Gardiner of London, who is with the British information service in Washington, D. C., will be married quietly this afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John Bitter, in New York. Another sister, Mrs. Beatrice Michelson Foster of Washington, and a few close friends will be present. The marriage is a second one for both the bride, who was formerly the wife of Philip Maher and lived in Lake Forest, and the bridegroom, who also was divorced. Mr. Gardiner and his bride will live in Washington.

Brooks McCormick has gone east for the marriage today of his sister-in-law, Miss Joan Baldwin, to Pvt. John Woodbridge Patton Cartwright of the marine corps reserve. Young Mrs. McCormick left last Friday to attend the parties preceding the wedding, in which she will be matron of honor. Mrs. McCormick and the bride are daughters of Capt. and Mrs. Alexander T. Baldwin of Bedford Hills, N. Y., where the ceremony will take place.

Here and There.

Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith have invited a group of their family's friends to drop in between 5 and 7 p. m. today in Lake Forest to say "happy birthday" to Mr. Smith's stepfather, John V. Farwell. Mr. Farwell, a lifetime Chicagoan, is 85 today. His daughter, Mrs. Farwell Carpenter, is unable to come from Connecticut for today's celebration, but the families of his stepchildren—Hermon Dunlap Smith, Perry Dunlap Smith, Lawrence Dunlap Smith, Elliott Dunlap Smith, and Mrs. W. Dow Harvey—will be well represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Ingram will celebrate their 20th wedding anniversary tomorrow afternoon at cocktails from 4 to 7 at their Lake For-

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ensign and Mrs. Louis Lee Hemingway Jr. following their marriage yesterday at St. Chrysostom's church. The bride is the former Eleanor Cochran, daughter of the John Lewis Cochrans.

Eleanor Cochran Is Married in Colorful Church Ceremony

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

The near north side knew there was a wedding yesterday at St. Chrysostom's, for the church's silver voiced carillon pealed out Mendelssohn's wedding march as Ensign Louis Lee Hemingway Jr. led his bride thru the long porte-cochere to the limousine that waited to whirl them off to the Casino, and kept up its concert until the last guest had left the church.

Despite rain and raw winds, a scattering of spectators gathered at the entrance to the church for a glimpse of the popular Eleanor Cochran in her bridal satins and of the handsome young easterner who claimed her as his bride. Within the church, almost every pew was filled, for the ceremony which the John Lewis Cochrans planned for their elder daughter's marriage is bound to be one of the most fashionable in Chicago this winter.

Ensign Hemingway's own composition, "Andante," which was included on the program of organ music preceding the ceremony, sounded particularly appropriate in the vaulted church for all its cool, medieval harmonies. As the organist slipped into "Connais Tu Le Pays?" from Mignon, attendants across the narthex from the entrance were folding up the screen which had hidden the bridal party from arriving guests.

Two by two came the bridesmaids—Miss Anne Ryerson with Miss Diana Hill, Miss Shirley Hopkins with Miss Dudley Winston, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Donald Keefe, with Miss Leonore Cudahy—wearing wine velvet gowns and pink plumed hats and carrying pink Sally roses. The bride's sister and maid of honor, Miss Nancy Cochran, wore a paler shade of rose velvet.

There was unusual variety among the corps of groomsmen, for Sgt. Henry Faurot III. and Pvt. David Baldwin wore the uniform of the army; Ensign George Young, Ensign Gene Halverson, Lt. [j. g.] William Morgenrath, and the best man, Ensign Robert Fitzwilliams, represented the navy, and Robert Ireland, J. Gardner Fabian, and W. France Anderson Jr. were in civilian dress.

Among the wedding guests, who hurried to their seats in the church lighted by an aisle of tapers rising from heavy wooden crosses twined with smilax were Miss Eunice Hale, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Stanley Keith, the Henry Faurots and their daughter, Alys; Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley, Mrs. Seymour Wheeler, whose hat was a tower of glowing feathers; Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the Louis C. Sudlers, Mrs. James C. Thompson, and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase. The Cyrus Hills and the Edward T. Ryersons found their places in the front pews.

Some of the many others who went on to the reception at the Casino were Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, who lent the dark haired bride her great-grandmother's lace wedding veil; Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, the Kent S. Clows and their daughter, Mrs. Lloyd W. Bowers; Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Miss Joan Hixon, and the J. Hampton Monroes. Ensign Hemingway and his bride will be at home temporarily in Cambridge, Mass.

Other Weddings

The Rev. Christoph Keller, who baptized Miss Roberta Bosworth, will officiate at the 5 p. m. ceremony today in which she will become the bride of Lt. [j. g.] E. Gardner Counselman. Following the wedding in the Highland Park Trinity Episcopal church, Dr. and Mrs. Robert R. Bosworth will give a reception in the Hotel Moraine On-the-Lake.

With her wedding ensemble the attractive bride will wear an heirloom lace veil lent by a family friend, Mrs. James A. Lytle of Highland Park. The bride's Connecticut college roommate, Mrs. George Neiley Jr. of New London, Conn., will be matron of honor. Bridesmaids are Miss Barbara Bowes, Mrs. William E. Peters Jr., Miss Shirley

Composer, 21, Hears His Work Performed by Boston Symphony

Boston, Mass., Oct. 15 (AP).—A youthful New Yorker—21 year old Lukas Foss—today became the youngest American composer ever to have a composition performed by the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Young Foss came out on the stage after the world premiere of his orchestral piece, "The Prairie," to receive a friendly hug and a fatherly pat on the head from Conductor Serge Koussevitzky. Based on an original cantata set to Carl Sandburg's poem, "Prairie," the new work proved pleasantly agreeable and definitely uninspired.

The youthful composer was a conductor-pupil for three years at Koussevitzky's Berkshire music center. Born in Berlin in 1922, he studied at the Paris conservatoire from age 11 to 15 and then came to America.

Ballet Russe's 'Red Poppy' Is Disappointing

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Check off "The Red Poppy" as the first disappointment of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo season. As danced at the Civic Opera house last night to open the troupe's annual visit, Igor Schwezoff's version turned out to be a lifeless travesty on the popular soviet original, drawing its chief vitality from Frederic Franklin's brilliant leading of the famous Russian sailors' dance, which is what American knows best of Glière's score.

Propaganda is all things to all men, and the outbreak of war with its changing lineup of allies has jiggled "The Red Poppy" considerably out of its homeland focus. As Mr. Schwezoff has rearranged it for American consumption, a Chinese girl is the symbolic heroine, menaced by a dastardly Japanese, but protected by a Russian sailor, who in turn is backed up by the American and British navies. This might be a vivid and fascinating piece of propaganda. Unhappily, the story is silly, the choreography commonplace, and the décor by Boris Aronson is neither annoying nor exciting. When certain stellar dancers take the stage, "The Red Poppy" perks up. Otherwise, it wilts for three scenes and a prolog.

Yet even of the stellar dancers, the crackling Franklin and the lanky Yankee James Starbuck are the only ones fully utilized. The lovely Danilova is exotic in rich costumes and long golden nails, but her dancing opportunities are negligible and her dreams are haunted by those batmen out of a thousand dull ballets. Igor Youskevitch dances vividly with a long and rippling ribbon, but what he does has no more to do with the action than Ruthanna Boris' undulations. And tho the time is presumably contemporary, Mr. Schwezoff indicates that the Bunny Hug or its equivalent is still the rage in Chinese waterfront dives.

The evening opened with Nijinska's cool and remote "Chopin Concerto," again with Rachel Chapman as the solo pianist. Nathalie Krassovska did some beautiful dancing, her high spirits caught in a firmer silk of technical discipline, and a long legged girl called Tallchief kept her good company. In minor roles both Dorohty Etheridge and Ruthanna Boris danced with skill, but the men of the troupe looked like self-conscious intruders, unable to capture the lift Nijinska demands of her ballets. Perhaps they were happier in the expanded version of "Prince Igor," which will be reviewed after tomorrow's repetition.

Franz Allers conducted all three ballets, leading an orchestra which strikes a higher average than some of the dance troupes have been able to achieve.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

Virginia Ward operating power sewing machine in demonstration booth set up by Johnson & Johnson gas mask division.

The gas mask division of Johnson & Johnson, manufacturers of surgical supplies and now in war production for the chemical warfare service, last night introduced a new method of acquainting potential women workers with the types of activity in which feminine hands engage in the plant at 4951 West 66th street.

Because 98 per cent of the gas mask division's personnel is women, the displays in a large tent, set up at 6640 South Western avenue, constitute women in a war work exhibit, showing how workers in uniform create the masks.

The tent is open every day until 10:30 p. m. In addition to workers demonstrating how the masks actually are made, there are movies taken at battle fronts, music, brief talks by service men who have returned from war theaters, and exhibits of the uses of gas mask equipment by volunteer lecturers recruited from among wives and friends of the gas mask division's executives and employes.

Johnson & Johnson mask workers operate sewing machines, a type of work to which women are especially suited. Employes are paid while in training, and good workers are advanced as their skill increases, in line with an efficiency standard which the company has found to be effective.

Executives of the company stress the point that the many more workers needed in the gas mask division must be women, for two reasons: Woman power must replace man power, due to the labor shortage, and the operations involved in making masks are the precision kind to which women's hands are especially suited.

A dinner at 7:30 p. m. in the Venetian room of the Southmoor hotel, 6646 South Stony Island avenue, opened the unusual Johnson & Johnson labor recruitment program. Executive officers of the chemical warfare service were present to explain the army's great need of more gas mask equipment.

A young woman who came to Chicago for a vacation and stayed to take war training will be graduated Oct. 29 as an engineering draftsman from the Illinois Institute of Technology, and subsequently will enter industry, where the demands for her services will be great.

She is Miss Dorothea Koehler, 19 years old, of Medford, Wis., whose uncle is chief engineer in a Chicago war plant and encouraged her in her new studies. Her brother also is an engineer and enthusiastic about the for-the-duration career she has chosen.

Miss Koehler was well launched, at the University of Wisconsin, on a program of study preparing her for a home economics degree, but she has shelved that career temporarily in favor of doing something constructive in the present war emergency.

Armed with a high school diploma, plus training in mathematics and drawing ability, Miss Koehler was eligible to take the Illinois Tech course, which has no further requirements. The training is tuition free, since the United States office of education, thru its engineering, science, and management war training program, underwrites the cost of instruction.

The need for more women in engineering drafting is urgent, government and industry spokesmen have informed Prof. John I. Yellott, head of war training at Illinois Tech. Women interested in taking the course may apply at the war training for women office, 1951 West Madison street. A new 10 week course in engineering drafting will open shortly after the current one is concluded.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

Good Morning!

Presented for your approval, with my hearty indorsement—which probably means little in your lives—is the new comedy team of Evelyn Keyes and Allyn Joslyn.

For suave, fast "business" patter and pantomime, believe me, these two have everything—besides being mighty easy on the eyes and complementary as to personality.

"Dangerous Blondes" is the sort of title that would make me steer clear of a film were I just a customer on the loose. On the cheap ballyhoo order. Well—you see—you can't always tell by signs. The picture is a brightly written, swiftly moving, beautifully acted, and snappily directed murder mystery that keeps you interested and amused from start to finish.

Mr. Joslyn is a writer of murder fiction. Miss Keyes plays his blonde wife. . . . The two of them love to sleuth on the side, and this opus turns them loose in a commercial photography studio where murder is committed.

Other blondes involved are Anita Louise, as a friend, Ann Savage, as wife of the studio boss, and a couple of models. For gentlemen who prefer blondes the picture is a natural.

The plot is developed easily and excitingly and whittles off to a sharp, clean finish.

Please notice the excellent cast, including Frank Craven, Edmund Lowe [Hello, Mr. Lowe! So NICE to have you back with us!], Mary Forbes, and John Hubbard.

See you tomorrow.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 diamond	1 heart	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

"I was South. West opened the eight of diamonds. East won with the ace and returned a heart. I ducked and West, who obviously thought that his partner wanted to prevent diamond ruffs, went up with the heart ace and returned a heart. Dummy's jack won, East discarding a diamond. I reëntered my hand with the diamond king and led a club. West hopped up and, apparently deciding that he would like to ruff a club, returned the five spot. Dummy's jack lost to East's ace. East now rightly decided that a spade lead to dummy's tenace would be foolish, hence returned a diamond. I ruffed, laid down the king and queen of hearts, and then led a spade toward dummy. West, a cautious player, split his honors. Dummy's ace won and the club queen followed. West ruffed and laid down the spade king, neatly smothering his own partner's queen. He then had to make me a present of the last trick in spades, and my doubled contract.

"Am I right in thinking that East was at fault in leaving in the double of one heart? In his position I certainly would have rebid my diamonds."

Undoubtedly, East erred in leaving in the double of one heart. He had an unbalanced hand, only a singleton heart, and his general honor strength was not so great that he could hope to aid materially in the defense against such a low contract. Even if East-West had defeated the contract one trick [which they should have done] the result would have been unsatisfactory as against what they could have made offensively.

Thru the Looking Glass

Pretty, white hands, spanking clean and free of any sign of grubbiness, are a pleasure to behold and a joy to possess. And they are not hard to achieve even with more and more of us performing tasks that expose the hands to dirt and grime. There are protective lotions, softening agents and all sorts of aids to hand beauty, but one of the best aids is the little hand brush for scrubbing away soil that is apt to become imbedded in the skin, graying, and dulling it.

Those who have formed the habit of using a hand brush know that the best type to choose is one that is not excessively hard; there are many good ones on the market made of medium strength bristles that will do an efficient job without harming the skin.

Use warm water and plenty of soap with the brush, working up a rich lather. Scrub well around the knuckles, freeing every particle of grime from them. The area under the nails and around the cuticle should get the best of attention from the bristles. These places are the telltale points of cleanliness and more often than not are overlooked in an ordinary handwashing. If you are doubtful of this take a searching look at the nails when they're free of polish—you'll be amazed at how neglected looking they can be. Too, brushing is the best method of cleaning under the nails since there is no chance of digging too deeply and injuring the nail as is apt to happen with a file or sharp instrument.

Mothers who have a hard time getting their youngsters to keep their hands in at least a reasonably presentable condition will find that introducing the child to a hand brush and showing him how to use it correctly will help solve the problem.

LOUISE DOOLEY.

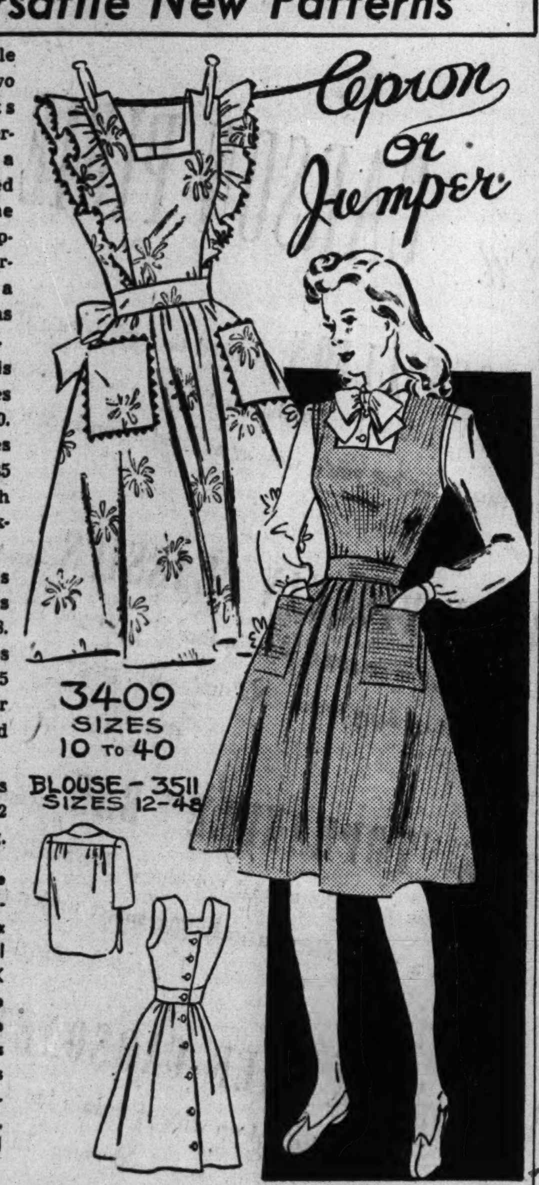
Versatile New Patterns



This versatile pattern has two tricks up its sleeve. In one version it makes a ruffle shouldered apron. In the other it's a jumper. For both versions there's a tailored blouse as companion piece.

Style No. 3409 is designed for sizes 10 to 20, 36 to 40. Size 16 requires 3⅜ yards of 35 inch fabrics with 4 yards of rick-rack braid.

Style No. 3511 is designed for sizes 12 to 20, 36 to 48. Size 36 requires 2½ yards of 35 inch material for long sleeved blouse.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The pattern book is 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with pattern.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 15.—"The Fabulous Invalid," by Kaufman and Hart, laid a fabulous egg on Broadway. But it will no doubt fare better in the movies. RKO bought all their stars, including Ginger Rogers, Cary Grant, Paul Henreid, Rosalind Russell, George Murphy, Maureen O'Hara, and Gregory Peck. Another saga of show business from vaudeville to burlesque. . . . W. C. Fields is writing his own gags for Andy Stone's "Sensations of 1944." I can hardly wait. I wish he had Charlie McCarthy to throw his quips at. . . . Who says blowing your own horn doesn't pay? Harry James parted with $85,000 to house his canary, Betty Grable, and their little canary. . . . Warners paid Sol Lesser $250,000 for his rights to the "Hollywood Canteen" picture. Out of that Sol got $60,000. . . . Eddie Sherman, after he launches Abbott and Costello's first air show, Nov. 4, lights out for Mexico to produce pictures on his own.

Too Bad.

All the little girls who copied our Cinderella, Deanna Durbin, are mighty mournful at her divorcing a man in uniform. She's been seeing much of Joe Cotten. They played hot love scenes in her last film "Hers to Hold." In fact, Rita and Orson Welles and Deanna and Joe were a well known foursome around town during the making of that film. . . . The day Eleanor Powell announced she'd marry Glenn Ford on Oct. 23, she took both his and her mother and her secretary shopping for a trousseau. They ended up at the Florentine Gardens, which was filled with English soldiers who are in town. They begged Eleanor for a dance, so after the final show, when the orchestra had gone home, she took a turn around the room with each. It's not true she's retiring from the screen. In January she does a picture for Andrew Stone whose "Hi Diddle Diddle" is cleaning up.

Ho Hum.

Mr. and Mrs. Miniver are out of character again. Mr. Miniver [Walter Pidgeon] seems to be taking an enforced vacation in the wilds of Connecticut. Greer Garson kept Gladys Hall, one of our best writers, waiting five weeks for the story of her life, with a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stenographer taking down every word that fell from her lips—in fact, 30,000 of them. Story was called "My Past Up to Now" by Greer Garson. 'Twas done for a national magazine. Then, at the last minute, the whole thing was canceled out by Mrs. Miniver herself. Which just goes to show what happens to a person getting the title "First Lady."

We're Proud of Him.

Who says an actor can't keep a secret? In 1936 Robert Montgomery, then president of the Screen Actors guild, got the lowdown on Willie Bioff and his gang, but never peeped except to the government—which told it. It was Bob Montgomery who helped the actors out when all salaries were cut 50 per cent. Bob fought back and saw to it that that little deal only lasted eight weeks. He was also our first player in uniform—long before we entered the war. . . . Labor isn't against Gary Cooper doing the life of Eddie Rickenbacker. Coop's only had three letters of protest. But our own Hollywood labor groups are. All six of them got together to ask him not to do it. Seems like another whispering campaign, not against Rick or Cooper, but Producer Winfred Sheehan.

Herculean Job.

Bill Cagney, for Jimmy's next, is trying to find a story that will top "Yankee Doodle." Well, he's trying for the impossible. There was only one George M. Cohan. . . . Veronica Lake sure gets around. She's driving Johnny Meyer's car now. . . . What goes with the Joe Mankiewiczes? Are they actually rehearsing for the last round-up? Reginald Denny's been added to "Four Girls and a Jeep." . . . I asked Orson Welles if his former guardian, Dr. Bernstein, would accompany him to England. He said, "Heavens no. Somebody's got to stay here and earn money so it can be sent me when I go broke." . . . Blanche Ring, even tho she hasn't worked for Metro, had her option lifted.

Old Friends.

Gene Autry paid Smiley Burnette five bucks for "Ridin' Down the Canyon" 10 years ago. It's now on the hit parade of all cowboy bands. . . . Chester Conklin, Keystone cop and pie thrower de luxe, got a day's work in "Knickerbocker Holiday," but is so good they've lengthened his part. His stuff is even funnier between takes. . . . Honeychile Wilder, fresh from her triumph in South America, on the arm of Louis Shurr, again is getting admiring glances from our males. What she wants is another crack at the screen. . . . Frank Borzage's hoping lightning will strike again. He's trying to get "Seventh Heaven" as a starring vehicle for Diana Lynn. She has the same quality Janet Gaynor had when it was first made.

Child's Colds Need Prompt, Adequate Care

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It's so easy to be careless about the common cold, but it's a dangerous practice.

The wise mother, if she feels pretty sure that her child has a cold at bath or bed time, will pop him into bed and keep him there the next day, and for as long as she considers it necessary thereafter. This is the only intelligent procedure in the face of a cold, regardless of how much trouble you find it and how it interferes with all you think you must accomplish each day.

If mothers with school children would keep them home when the first cold symptoms appeared they would accomplish a twofold good. First, they would be benefiting their own children, and, second, they would reduce the number of colds among other children.

Rest, an even room temperature, and a light diet give nature a chance to fight the germ. Keeping an active child actually undressed and in bed is the only way you can be sure he or she is resting and out of drafts. Sometimes a cold can be quickly "knocked out" by this method, or if the germ is a vicious one its effects will usually be lessened or serious consequences prevented.

And after the cold is over, don't send your child back to school too soon. Colds "take it out" of any one, and children don't realize it because they can't interpret their feelings, as do adults.

Prevention is, of course, better than cure. Be sure your school child has plenty of sleep, plenty of fresh air and exercise, well chosen food, good elimination, and he is warmly, but lightly dressed. In addition to your own intelligent care, it pays to consult your physician, and to follow his suggestions for cold prevention during the winter months to come.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY

Send-off.

You'd have to live in a small town, or at least understand how a small town enjoys a practical joke, to know the background of the story a white collar girl tells on herself. When she decided to come to Chicago a few years ago to take a job, everybody in town heard the news in two minutes. And, when she went to the station to catch the train for the big city, well nigh the whole town was there to bid her good-by. Just before she boarded the train a young man she knew slightly appeared breathlessly and announced that he had to go to Chicago, too, and wasn't it fortunate! They could ride together! She thought that was very nice, indeed—that is, until, as the train pulled out, the townspeople drew forth bags of rice and pelted the couple.

The white collar girl took the unwarranted bridal shower good naturedly and shook the rice from her suit as they settled in their seat, whereupon the young man, as prearranged with the waggish townfolk, simply hopped off the train at the next station and left the poor girl to face the gaping stares of her fascinated fellow passengers.

The Case for the Older Worker.

The October issue of Commerce magazine reports that at the Servel plant in Evansville, Ind., the grandmothers are organized into "Servel War Working Grandmothers of America."

The Dodge plant of the Chrysler corporation in Detroit has a division where the ages of the workers average 66 [and some are over 80] who call themselves the "Old Man's Division."

Vocational and adult education schools in Wisconsin conducted a survey not long ago to determine the relation of age and efficiency, with emphasis on retraining of older men and women.

"If all industrial activity required such physical exertion as prize fighting, professional football, or marathon running, the great majority of workers would be retired at the age of 35," is the opinion of Dr. A. J. Carlson in stating the case for the older workers and jobs suitable for them.

A study by Ross A. McFarland of the older worker in industry shows that older workers are less likely to meet with accidents in a textile mill than in other industries. "The older worker should be made to feel he is needed and wanted," says Mr. McFarland.

Latest Hosiery Has Fit, Color and Full Length

BY REA SEEGER.

New hosiery is timed for the fall and winter wardrobes now being assembled. New celanese mesh stockings are grand finds for the money, feel super smooth on the ankles and, what's more, stay snug and fitted after repeated laundering. They are the special celanese that dry to beat all existing records—over night, to be specific. The shades are flattering and slenderizing.

If you want to feel the softest, silkiest stuff you've held since you last touched silk stockings, try the spun rayon lace numbers. You'll blink, not believing rayon can be so resilient, so soft and silky. The lacey mesh is very effective and fine, and colors are available for duty with any and all your precious shoes and slippers. These stockings do not dry as speedily as celanese, but fit and achieve the same slenderizing trick.

Shoppers who have tried frantically to locate extra length stockings are now treated to a special break. Those extra inches are available in some beauties of rayon mixed with an occasional thread of silk. All tall shoppers can rejoice because this hosiery is a special job and the shades are obliging, all purpose hues to wear with brown and black or any colored footgear you are fortunate enough to possess.

In the same shop are cold weather finds for the people pestered with chilly feet. The first wool and rayon mixtures of the year are here in a stunning tweed mixture shade, a combination beige and gray mixture likewise ready for all purpose duty. They're not cheap, but worth the price because of the wool content and the service you can expect.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 15.—Ohio State university, football champion of the Western conference, will open defense of its title against undefeated Purdue tomorrow afternoon in Municipal stadium. And when this contest has been completed before an estimated crowd of 50,000 the list of leading contenders for 1943 conference football honors will have been reduced to this winner, to Michigan, and to Minnesota, which opens its Big Nine season next week in Ann Arbor.

Iowa, Indiana, Northwestern, Wisconsin and Illinois now have been handicapped by defeat in the embryonic conference race which finds Purdue a top ranking eleven by virtue of four victories, including an overwhelming conquest of Illinois. These facts, however, meant little today as thousands gathered for tomorrow's conference inaugural in the mammoth lake front stadium. The vast majority came to cheer the Buckeyes' stand against Boilermaker power and they disregarded Ohio State's losses to two service teams in their earnest support of the Ohio youngsters who carry the burden of a title defense.

Buckeyes Inexperienced.

The champions' defense, in the main, will be conducted by inexperienced players, but Ohio, long proud of its superior high school teams, still is not convinced its high school graduates cannot cope with Purdue's veterans. Then, too, the Ohio State team nominated to start by Coach Paul Brown will have such workmen as Bill Willis, left tackle, a regular on last year's team; Jack Dugger, end, and Gordon Appleby, center. The last two were 1942 reserves.

This preview is out of focus unless other facts are added. The Boilermakers, because of great guards and tackles and an excellent full back, are deemed a veteran eleven. Actually Purdue's ends, on leave from Illinois, never played collegiate football until this season. Purdue's center, Walter Poremba, was a 1942 freshman at Case, and the left half back, Bill Stuart, who has replaced the injured Stan Dubicki, was a member of the Boilermaker reserve squad a year ago.

Weights Mean Nothing.

Then, too, there is the apparent advantage Purdue holds in comparative weights. No Ohio State player, not even Willis, is listed as weighing more than 199 pounds. We are not revealing a secret, however, when we write that the Ohio State program weights are as inaccurate as a Nazi communique. We are informed that even the 10 per cent mark down in weights, which the Big Nine practiced in its hypocritical days, has been exceeded.

Performance takes precedence over weight and the Buckeyes rightly fear Tony Butkovich and the Boilermakers' guards and tackles. But Ohio State has speed in the running of Dean Sensanbaugher and Ernie Parks. If Glen Oliver does not start at full back, Sensanbaugher will get that job and left half will be filled by Bob McQuade.

Tomorrow's kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p. m., central war time.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADISON, WIS., Oct. 15.—The National Football league's four undefeated teams will be playing on gridirons less than 100 miles apart tomorrow. . . . The Washington Redskins, world's professional champions, will meet Green Bay in Milwaukee and the Phil-Pitt Eagles, who appear to be headed for their most successful season in several years, will be the Bears' opponents at Wrigley field. . . . The Bears and Packers played to a 21 to 21 tie two weeks ago, but none of the four teams has been defeated. . . . The results of these two games will give fans a direct line on the relative strength of the eastern and western divisions of the league. . . . Overtime periods, ruled out of National league hockey when war time transportation problems caused several teams to miss trains, will continue to be taboo this season. . . . Don't blame Roundy Coughlin, Madison's high voltage journalist, because the Badgers took an upset drubbing from Illinois last Saturday. . . . Roundy, principal speaker at a pep session the night before the game, really sprinkled the pepper, but the pepper had a low pollen count or something. . . . It was the first time the Badgers had lost for several seasons after listening to formal Roundy oratory. . . . Bob Westfall, one of Michigan's all-time great full backs, is learning signals again as an AAF radio operator at Scott field, Ill. . . .

Many experienced observers say Frank Leahy's 1943 team is the strongest in Notre Dame's brilliant football history. . . . That may be true. . . . Its decisive victories over Georgia Tech and Michigan, two of the nation's outstanding elevens, are submitted as important evidence. . . . However, Notre Dame's great teams—1919, 1920, 1924, 1929, and 1930—carried on for a full season without meeting defeat. . . . It remains to be seen whether this year's squad can survive a schedule that still includes some of the most formidable gridiron units in the land. . . . One of the reasons the Cubs gave for running out on the City series was that "the weather is always bad." . . . Assuming the Cubs could have carried the White Sox to the limit, the series would have gone seven days from Oct. 5. . . . The temperature at game time in those seven days was never lower than 72 degrees—and shot as high as 82. . . . And bright sunshine every day. . . . Henry Cotton, England's greatest pre-war golfer, who recently was invalided out of the R. A. F., is restricted by an ulcer diet to 18 holes a day. . . . Purdue's Boilermakers, rated among the season's gridiron greats, conduct unusual drills on Mondays. . . . The back fields and lines reverse positions, with the result that you'll find Full Back Tony Butkovich centering the ball, and Tackle Mike Kasap calling signals.

ILLINI PICKED TO BEAT PITT FOR A CHANGE

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 15. — The University of Illinois football players tonight are enjoying the pleasantly reassuring thought that it will be considered an upset if they lose to Pittsburgh tomorrow in Memorial stadium. Contemplation of this idea is an exquisite luxury for young men who must face Notre Dame and Michigan on the next two successive Saturdays.

The basis for the general confidence in the Illini this week-end is the fact they dealt Wisconsin a 25 to 7 defeat last Saturday, and showed on previous occasions they could give a good account of themselves, even when taking a licking from high class opposition. They scored three touchdowns, for instance, against Purdue and three against the Seahawks. Their opponents tomorrow are considered definitely in a lower division than the above mentioned teams.

Illini Situation Strange.

These circumstances somewhat cramp the style of advance comment on the game because it has become traditional to think of the Illini as dangerous fighters of unquenchable spirit, facing considerably stronger opponents. It's hard to visualize them as big bruisers about to give a weaker team a beating.

The Pitt eleven, of course, won't subscribe to this view of the situation. It is understood Clark Shaughnessy, coach of the eastern squad, is confident his boys have it in them to whip the lads who have been prepared so capably by Ray Eliot. When Pitt beat West Virginia, 20 to 0, last Saturday, the Panther quarter back, Joe Mocha, was widely hailed as one of the very best of the younger players in the country.

Bray Named Captain.

Eddie Bray, one of the outstanding members of the Illini team, has been rewarded for his brilliant work in recent games by being appointed captain for tomorrow's game. From his position at left half back, he did some of the Illini's most potent work against the Seahawks, Purdue, and Wisconsin.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 15.—Iowa's Hawkeyes, one of the few surviving civilian football teams in our country, tomorrow will attempt to score their first victory of this 1943 campaign against an Indiana university team also lacking in navy players, which last Saturday thoroly surprised a Nebraska eleven, thanks to Bob Hoernschemeyer and a fellow townsman of his from Cincinnati, O., Don Mangold. The Hoosiers have won two games, lost one, and tied one, including the incredible contest with Northwestern in which they outdid the Wildcats in first downs, 15 to 2.

Now, it is suspected, Bo McMillin has a team to be dreaded. On the other hand, Slip Madigan, who took over the job vacated by Maj. Edward Anderson, also is having his trouble. Jim Cozad, regular tackle, has been absent from drills because of a siege of stomach trouble and will be weakened for tomorrow's battle, while Bill Baughman, durable center, who has played every minute of the Hawkeyes' first three games, has a bad boil on his left thigh that will handicap him.

Madigan Is Ready.

Yet Madigan, who in his time has turned out a few fairly good foot-ball teams at St. Mary's in California, tonight is quietly awaiting the arrival of McMillin and the Hoosiers. He has uncovered a lad who may cause the visiting Indiana team unexpected headaches. The find, Howard [Shorty] Larson, who was Iowa's most promising back field man in summer practices, joined the Hawkeyes this week after receiving a medical discharge from the navy.

Madigan promptly put Larson into the role of a passer, with the result Iowa's aerial attack may show surprising strength.

Bob Leads in Offense.

Indiana took a light drill at the Coe college field in Cedar Rapids, Ia., and will arrive here about noon tomorrow with Master Hoernschemeyer equipped with the same sort of bombardment with which he shelled the Huskers last week into a 54 to 13 defeat. Bob's feat last week sent him into the No. 1 spot among the nation's offensive men.

He has handled the ball in 143 plays in four games, accounting for 886 yards. His six touchdown passes against Nebraska also made Indiana the leading passing team, with 30 completions in 66 attempts.

So exclusively will this be a battle for freshmen that eight first year candidates have been named to start for each team.

THEY'LL PUT IN A BUSY DAY

Don Buffmire (left) veteran Northwestern full back, will be called upon for plenty of service today when the Wildcats meet Great Lakes in Dyche stadium. Recent acquisition of man power has given the Wildcats confidence they will give a good account of themselves. Dewey Proctor (right) Great Lakes back who played three years for Furman, is an outstanding performer in baseball, basketball, and boxing, too.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.—Everybody around here seems to think the well rested Minnesota Gophers should beat the Camp Grant Warriors here tomorrow by about three touchdowns altho some of the commercial calculators say there will be less than a dozen points between the two outfits when the soldiers head back to camp tomorrow evening.

Some of the Gopher followers, always partial to heft in the line, point with awe to the Warrior forward wall's average of 216 pounds. But there is some question about this flaunted apprehensiveness.

The real Gopher fears, if any, probably come from the thought that Minnesota may be thinking about Michigan and the little brown jug tomorrow, when they should be concentrating on the problem of the moment instead of those they may face in Ann Arbor a week from now.

Sixth Game for Warriors.

The fact the Warriors will be playing their sixth game, while the Gophers will be facing their third foe—and the first able to put up stiff opposition—has not been accepted as having special bearing on the prospects for tomorrow. So unimpressed with the Warriors' experience are some of the observers here, that they have been urging upon Coach Doc Hauser that tomorrow will be a charming time to trot out some of the Gopher reserves who have been forced to hide their lights under bushels or blankets or something, because of the skimpy character of the Minnesota schedule to date.

Despite this clamor for a clinic, the Gophers will stand by their first stringers until they see just how frisky the Warriors are in what is rated as their last big chance to gain the pigskin prestige they didn't acquire in losing to Purdue by 19 points and Michigan by 25 points.

Palmer to Start at Full Back.

The most notable change, possibly the only one, by the Gophers, will be the starting of Loren Palmer at full back instead of Hoyt Moncrief who may be on the premises but he's behind in practice because he has been at the bedside of his father in Louisiana.

BADGERS CAN WIN FAME TODAY —IF THEY DEFEAT NOTRE DAME

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 15.—Harry Stuhldreher's University of Wisconsin football players left Camp Randall practice field this afternoon with the realization that by the same hour tomorrow they may be the most famous team in the land. All they have to do to attain that rating is to defeat Notre Dame, currently regarded as the strongest college gridiron unit in this or any other world.

The Badgers, victorious in only one of their four starts, will take the field against the Irish thoroly relaxed. They were conceded a chance to whip the first four opponents on their schedule, but not even the most enthusiastic alumnus expects them to beat Notre Dame. If they hold the score to a margin of 30 points, they will have done well, critics predict.

They Tied Last Year.

The situation is not devoid of psychological aspects for Notre Dame, however. Last season the Irish were tied twice and defeated twice. They already have paid off the opponents who trounced them in 1942—Georgia Tech and Michigan. Tomorrow they have an opportunity to make up for that 7 to 7 score with the Badgers.

A Wisconsin victory tomorrow would stand as one of the greatest upsets in football records. As a coaching achievement it would equal, at least, the remarkable job Stuhldreher turned in as leader of the 1943 college All-Stars. Wisconsin has lost all of the regulars and reserves who last year painted the skies with its name. Its squad is made up almost entirely of predraft or deferred youths. Most of Notre Dame's personnel comes from naval units.

Injuries Add to Problems.

Injuries have added to Stuhldreher's problems this week. Three back field players who were scheduled to start against Notre Dame are said to be out of the lineup. The heaviest blow to Badger hopes was the leg accident that sent Don Kindt, right half back, to the hospital last night for a possible operation. Kindt, who prepped at a Milwaukee high school, was Wisconsin's best ground gainer and punter.

Paul McLaughlin, left half back, has an ailing toe that will keep him on the sidelines, and Doug Hodges, who opened at quarter back against Illinois last Saturday, has a leg injury. If you still have a dry spot on your handkerchief, save it for tears for Clarence Esser, Wisconsin's leading tackle, who incurred an injury against Illinois that may incapacitate him for another two weeks.

There are two Badgers who are said to be enjoying excellent health —Center Joe Keenan and Full Back Ray Dooney, both of whom were freshmen at Notre Dame before their induction into the armed service, which may or may not be significant.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Northwestern's Wildcats who have grown a new fur coat to replace what was sheared off by that Michigan football knife two weeks ago, will subject their fresh apparel to the hazards of a navy assault in Dyche stadium this afternoon.

Reinforced by a sprinkling of V-12's and refreshed mentally as well as physically by additional schooling in the finer tricks of the football trade, the Wildcats have worked themselves into a sneaking suspicion that they might be able to yank the machinery clean out of the craft which will steam down from the Great Lakes station in time for a 2 o'clock assembly.

To accomplish this the Wildcats have only to mince a line that averages 200 pounds, and also put leg irons on a set of ball carriers who know their way around.

Given a Rough Ride.

The Wildcats innocently took on the sailors a year ago and the ride was so rough that a 48 to 0 trimming resulted. In an effort to make amends for this experience the Evanston lads may arouse themselves to that little extra touch which is sometimes referred to in the football fables as "inspiration." However, inspiration will have to include deadly, quick tackling if such as Steve Lach, one time all-American from Duke, Steve Juzwik, a Notre Dame contribution to the Navy, Dewey Proctor from Furman and one or two others are to be kept from where they plan to go.

The Wildcats, so the railbirds think, will show the same progressive improvement evident in their two previous battles. Against Indiana neither the defense nor offense was impressive, a state of affairs attributed to limited practice. Business was conducted with greater smoothness against Michigan and since then there have been those two weeks devoted solely to planning. In addition there are those recent V-12 acquisitions.

Strength Better Distributed.

The addition of man power has given the Wildcats a better distribution of strength. There are plenty of quarter backs to assist Lynne McNutt. Vic Schwall, previouly tried at full, and Harry Frank are available to help out the always threatening Otto Graham. Dud Kean and Joe Scriba are ready to fill in for Herman Frickey at right half. But the most important item is that Don Buffmire's full backing job can be placed in trustworthy hands if necessary. This previously thin spot now has Tom Caracino, Denver university, who became eligible a few days ago.

The Purple line also has gained thru the recent additions of V-12 men. For guard duty there is John Bicanich who learned his football at Minneosta, Marvin Grubaugh, a tackle from Nebraska and Don Orlich, an end. And it may seem like old times this afternoon for Nick Vodick. He was the Wildcats' regular right half last season but wasn't a 1943 eligible until this week.

PHIL-PITT TEAM DUE TODAY FOR BEARS BATTLE

Eagles in Top Shape for Tomorrow's Contest.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The National Football league's double-barreled team, the Phil-Pitt Eagles, will arrive in Chicago this morning confident of whipping the Bears tomorrow afternoon in Wrigley field. This flat statement was made yesterday by the easterners' advance agent, Al Ennis.

"The Eagles feel they found themselves in last Sunday's game when they came back to whip the Giants after yielding two touchdowns in the first three minutes of play," said Ennis. "They've really got a winning spirit. Some one mentioned that considering the times the Eagles have a good line. Vic Sears, one of our tackles, overheard the remark and declared, 'Look, this is a good line, war or no war.'"

Except for Bob Thurban, half back from Pitt, the Eagles will be in top shape, said Ennis. Thurban got a whack on his knee in the Giant game. The team, representing the combined personnel of the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Philadelphia Eagles, will work out shortly before noon today in Wrigley field.

Bears Scoring Thru Air.

The Eagles have concentrated on pass defense all week, their press representative reported, doubtless having heard the Bears are getting most of their points thru the air. Because most of the players are daytime war plant workers, the Eagles practice in the evening in Shibe park.

Roy Zimmerman, who was Sam Baugh's understudy at Washington for a few seasons and consequently had little chance to distinguish himself, will match his skill as a field general and passer against Sid Luckman, who knows the T-formation from A to Z, including the T. This style of play is new to Roy, who at first had difficulty fading back from directly behind center to pass. Against the Giants he sent two touchdown passes to Tom Miller, rookie end from Hampden-Sydney.

A Slick Pass Catcher.

Miller will not start the game at end, but that's because the Eagles' two starters are Bill Hewitt and Larry Cabrelli, both veterans. The Hampden-Sydney athlete, 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighing 200, is said to be a slick pass catcher.

The Cardinals will leave today for Buffalo, N. Y., where they will meet the Detroit Lions for the second time this season. The Washington Redskins will come thru the city today en route to Milwaukee, where tomorrow they will clash with the Green Bay Packers in Fairgrounds park in West Allis, Milwaukee suburb.

FORT SHERIDAN WINS, 14-0, OVER ARMY HOSPITAL

Fort Sheridan defeated the Gardiner Army hospital, 14 to 0, last night in Shewbridge field. It was the first time a football team has represented Fort Sheridan. Bill Sticklen, former Notre Dame freshman player, led the attack. He scored in the first period from the 2 yard line, and intercepted a pass to set up the other touchdown in the final period. Bill O'Keefe's punting resulted in two more points for Fort Sheridan when Doug Flarity tackled John Hartanov in the Gardiner end zone.

Record Meet at Hawthorne Closes Today

Historic old Hawthorne completes one of its most successful seasons in recent years this afternoon, both from a financial and artistic standpoint. Chicago's oldest race track closes a 35 day meeting that saw records produced in mutuel handle and also in percentage of winning favorites.

The popular west side track, leads all other tracks in the Chicago area in the point of winning favorites, 40 per cent of them nodding to the judges during the session. On one afternoon seven favorites won.

Mutuel Handle Up Over Last Year.

The mutuel handle was up approximately 20 per cent over last year, with two records being made during the last week. Last Saturday's handle of $1,062,287 was high in Illinois for a half holiday, while on Tuesday a week day handle of $719,064 passed thru the machines, producing another record for weekdays.

Today's feature of the nine race program is the 14th renewal of the Illinois Owners' handicap at one mile and a sixteenth. This feature is for bona-fide Illinois owners and trainers and brings out the best handicap stars in the state.

Mrs. Robert McGarvey's Night Shadow has been assigned top impost for the event, toting 117 pounds, and in all probability will face Starter Ruby White as the favorite for the event.

Martan Wins $5,000 Stake.

The three-horse entry of the Happy Hour farm, Martian, Happy Pilot and Rosy Brand is conceded a good chance of winning the handicap. Martian already has won one of the six $5,000 added events contested on the Hawthorne stake program, accounting for the Hawthorne Sprint handicap last Saturday.

Jockey George Burns, who brought in a $42 daily double on Viola Wise and Wildebeest, made it a triple in the fifth race. Burns had the leg up on Sameron and did not leave the issue in doubt after the starter sprung the gate. Sameron drew out to a clear advantage nearing the stretch turn and stayed in front to win easily by two and a half lengths over the favorite, Chipamink. Mercury was third. Sameron returned the price of $13 to win.

Fourteen horses were named in the overnight entries for the $5,000 added Illinois Owner's handicap at 1 1-16 miles for 3 year olds and up. The field, in order of post positions, follows:

	Wt.	Jockey.	Prob odds.

Tomorrow Night—"East Lynne."

Who can recall the repertoire shows
We watched for from year to year,
When the old "opera house" was a blaze of light,
Crowded and all full of cheer?
Monday night, "The Two Orphans,"
Tuesday, "The Wages of Sin,"
But the bill we awaited with breath all bated:
"Tomorrow night—'East Lynne'!"

"Her Dark Marriage Morn" was a little deep,
The kids didn't go for it much,
But "The Count of Monte Cristo,"
"The Denver Express" and such!
Flora de Voss and Kitty de Lorme
Were something to revel in,
But the real highlight of that week so bright:
"Tomorrow night—'East Lynne'!"

When I think of the youthful tears I shed
Over "little Willie's" plight,
When his very own mother in goggles blue
Stole into his crib in the night!
"Human Hearts" we liked a lot,
"Sis Hopkins" we hailed with a grin,
But the creme de creme of that week supreme:
"Tomorrow night—'East Lynne'!"
Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

How About You?

One of the questions to be asked in applying for ration book No. 4 is, I understand, "How much coffee were you stuck with?"
Alyce.

* *

The Wake Depends Upon Its Friends. Help! Help!

Metamorphosis.

The postman placed a letter in the box;
Short days ago I'd quicken at its view,
But now its ghostly presence merely mocks
Because I know it cannot be from you.
Cyan-Ide.

A Father's Farewell.

Dad's going away—good-by my son;
I'll not return till peace is won
And we are free.
You'll be the man while I am gone;
It's up to you to carry on
In place of me.

Remember, lad, and try to do
The little things mom likes you to;
She loves you, guy!
Look out! No tears on my behalf,
She needs you near to make her laugh;
Don't let her cry.

You'll be a soldier, too, my son;
Not every battle will be won
Across the sea.
Just keep your chin up high and fight
All selfish ways—and every night—
Kiss her for me.
Morrison Doc's Wife.

HUNTERS OPEN ANNUAL BATTLE AGAINST DUCKS

Cold Weather Helps Bring in Birds.

BY BEN MARKLAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Canton, Ill., Oct. 15.—Sprightly weather consisting of 40 degree temperature, a mild wind, and a faint trace of snow brought unexpectedly good shooting for many of the duck hunters who opened the 1943 water fowl season along the Illinois river this morning.

The mild weather which prevailed during early October, combined with the scarcity of ammunition, the low water levels, and the travel restrictions, held down the opening day duck hunting population. The nimrods who did overcome the shooting barriers, however, were favored by the weatherman's quick change act.

Get Limit Early.

Jim Raker, a Liverpool sportsman who has been hunting ducks in this area since the market shooting days of 40 years ago, accompanied us into a willow blind on Woodyard lake early this morning. We found pintails, blue wing, teal, gadwalls, and a few mallards trading between the chautauqua refuge and nearby cornfields and before 9 a. m. our limit of 10 ducks was at hand. Many other hunters were heard blazing away with shells, now selling for 10 to 30 cents each on the river valley black markets, and many limit bags were recorded.

Very few mallards were found in today's waterfowl take. Spring flood conditions disrupted the nesting of mallards locally and the weather has not yet been of sufficient severity to drive the favored big ducks down from the north.

Weather Is Big Help.

As we crouched in Raker's blind five miles north of Liverpool we noted several high flying groups of mallards coming in from the north, so the shooters who complete this week-end of hunting should come home with the favored greenheads.

The turn in the weather provided half of the answer to good shooting prospects. Hunters in the area south of Peoria are hoping for rains which will fill their sloughs and marshes, since the river has dropped from its spring flood stage to a level more than two feet below normal.

6,000 IN LAKE COUNTY

The opening of duck hunting in Lake county was signaled by an aerial bomb set off at 6:34 a. m. a half hour before sunrise, yesterday by Livingston E. Osborne, director of the Illinois department of conservation.

Francis K. Lueth, assistant in education and public relations of the Illinois department of conservation, estimated 6,000 opened the season in Lake county, with most of the attention centered around Grass and Fox lakes, where light snow fell. Altho this figure is slightly less than that of a year ago, Harry Kern, deputy game warden for 28 years, stationed on Fourth lake, said this was the smallest crowd he ever had observed for the first day of the season.

Few Violate Laws.

Lueth said 35 wardens were active in Lake county yesterday. They noted few violations, with the chief offense being the shooting of grebes, or hell divers, which seldom fly and thus are protected from shooting.

Ducks were few, but mudhens were quite plentiful, with William Folster of Fox lake, hunting on Blarney Island on Grass lake, becoming the first to bag his limit of 25 mudhens for the third straight year. He went out at 6:39 and returned with his limit at 7:04 o'clock.

Several boats were overturned, as usual, but the only injury in Lake county was suffered by R. A. Jones, 4335 North Troy, Chicago. Jones' gun exploded, injuring his right hand. The Antioch rescue squad administered first aid.

2 FOUND GUILTY, THIRD FREED IN NAZI GOLD CASE

Elbridge Gerry Bates, 42 years old, of Glen Ellyn, an electrical supplies salesman, and Frank S. Smith, furniture manufacturer and rare coin dealer, were found guilty yesterday in a sealed verdict returned by a jury in federal District court on a charge of conspiracy to acquire and sell gold to Nazi agents in violation of the trading with the enemy act.

The verdict acquitted a third defendant, Kurt Erich Schimkus, 37 years old, 14139 South Western avenue, a German alien and research chemist whom Bates induced to pose as a Nazi agent.

Judge John P. Barnes set Tuesday for hearing on a motion for a new trial. Bates and Smith face maximum punishment of 2 years in prison and a $10,000 fine, if their conviction is upheld.

Judge Barnes congratulated the jury of six men and six women and said that had they found Schimkus guilty, he would have immediately granted him a new trial.

Outside of court, Schimkus was met by his wife, Bernice, and for the first time saw their two month old baby daughter, Iris Christine.

BASORA UPSETS ZIVIC IN DETROIT TEN ROUND BOUT

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 15 (AP).—Rugged Jose Basora, Puerto Rican welterweight from New York, scored an upset 10 round victory tonight over Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh before 6,000 fans at Olympia stadium. Basora weighed 151¼, Zivic 150.

Zivic, a 2 to 1 betting choice, fell victim to a stabbing left hand and a stinging right uppercut. There was no knockdown. Basora's victory was by a wide margin. Referee Elmer [Slim] McClelland gave Zivic one round, the first, and called the ninth even. He gave Basora the other eight. The two judges gave Basora all but two rounds which they called even.

Zivic lost the third and sixth rounds by low punches. In the fourth Basora opened a cut under Fritzie's left eye and his later attack was directed at the wound.

The gross receipts were $13,380, with $1,015 earmarked for boxing's service athletic fund.

Noel Coward's story of Sari Linden, as told in his operetta, "Bitter Sweet," will be presented by the Chicago Theater of the Air on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual from 8 to 9 p. m. today as the second in this season's series of operettas and operas.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, conducted by Henry Weber, and the chorus, directed by Robert Trendler, will be heard. Jack La Frandre, writer-director of the series, will supervise production.

Marion Claire, soprano, will be featured in both the singing and speaking roles of Lady Shayne and in the singing role of the young Sari. Donald Dame, tenor, will sing the part of Carl Linden. The supporting role of Capt. August will be sung by Baritone Bruce Foote.

ART WIEBE AND HIS BAKERY ARE HAWKS' WORRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.—Earl Seibert and Red Mitchell, whose absence had caused considerable consternation in the Chicago Blackhawks' training rink here, arrived late this afternoon. Bill Thoms got here last night, Doug Bentley and Bill Mosienko will be here tomorrow, and Cully Dahlstrom will report Oct. 19.

Manager Paul Thompson and Press Agent Joe Farrell, while they continued thoroly out of the lugubrious slump in which they found themselves prior to last evening, remained sketchy about the whereabouts of Art Wiebe, who missed half of last season because he couldn't find any one to mind his bakery.

MILK DELIVERY VOLUME TODAY TO SET RECORD

Wholesalers to Receive 2 Day Supply.

Chicago milk dealers yesterday were preparing for their largest single day's business in history, the supplying of all wholesale outlets in the city with a two day quota of milk and cream.

The move is made necessary by the office of defense transportation's edict eliminating Sunday deliveries to wholesale outlets, and holding retail deliveries to every other day.

Paul A. Potter, executive secretary of Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., said that dairies were having difficulty finding sufficient bottles, cases, and fluid milk to handle the vastly increased volume of business. Most dairies, he said, have striven to enlarge their milk inventories at least 25 per cent.

Hospitals Lodge Complaints.

Potter said that he has received a flood of complaints against the ODT restriction, particularly from hospitals. Many of these, he said, lack refrigerator facilities for storage of a two-day supply of milk, and in some instances have had to curtail their meat purchases and store milk in the meat compartments of their refrigerators.

The same situation prevails among most stores, he said. Few of them have large enough ice boxes to contain a double day supply of milk, nor facilities for handling the additional empty bottles which are returned.

Dairies and retail stores also were puzzled over the conflict of the ODT regulation with a city ordinance which prohibits sale of milk dated Saturday after midnight Sunday.

Sale Time Limit Cited.

"Normally stores purchase enough milk Sunday to take care of their Monday morning trade, as deliveries cannot be made to all of them before Monday afternoon," Potter said. "According to the law, they cannot sell the milk they must buy Saturday. Suburbs have extended the time limits in their ordinances.

"I asked Mayor Kelly about this, and he said: 'Wait and see if the public minds it.' I'm still trying to figure out what he means."

The ODT order was assailed by Thomas J. Haggerty, secretary-treasurer of the Milk Wagon Drivers union, who declared that it defeated its own purpose—that of saving tires.

"Housewives are accustomed to daily deliveries," he said, "and thousands of them are driving their cars to the store on alternate days to buy their milk for that day. I would estimate, from reports we've received, that at least 20 times as much rubber is being wasted now."

JURY CONVICTS CITY TEACHER IN DRAFT EVASION

A jury in the federal court of Judge John P. Barnes yesterday convicted Alston G. Field, 37 years old, of 1841 Orleans street, as a draft evader. Motion for a new trial was set for hearing Oct. 25. Field was employed as a history teacher at the Waller High school. He was charged with falsifying his draft questionnaire by listing his child and former wife as dependents. His former wife denied he had aided in their support.

Arthur R. Kirk, 21, of 2118 Pierce avenue, was sentenced by Judge Barnes to three years in prison as a draft evader. Kirk, who has two brothers in the army, contended that he was exempt from service as a member of a religious sect opposed to war. He was found guilty by a jury of failure to report for induction.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals took under advisement the appeal of William Bernard Wernecke, 36, who is under a five year prison sentence as a draft evader. Wernecke, who is at liberty on a $10,000 bond, claimed exemption as a self-ordained minister. He was convicted last June in the court of Judge Barnes.

FALL FATAL TO BABY.

Lee Jones Saxon, 16 months old, died yesterday in his home at 7924 Perry avenue, apparently of injuries incurred last Tuesday when he fell from the top of his playpen.

PRESS FREEDOM HELD AT STAKE IN LABOR CASE

Publishers Protest Guild 'Control.'

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The question whether a maintenance of membership clause in union contracts covering newspaper men would abridge freedom of the press was fought out in three hours of testimony before the war labor board today, with publishers contending such a policy would run afoul of that constitutional guarantee and CIO American Newspaper guild spokesmen sharply differing with them.

The hearing was ordered at the request of publishers who are opposing guild efforts to have such union security provisions written into contracts with several newspapers and news magazines.

Under such provisions, which the board has ordered into effect in other industries, an employe has 15 days in which to decide whether to resign from a union or stay in. If he elects to remain a member he must keep that membership in good standing or lose his job.

Fear Effect on News.

The general view of the publishers was that this might be all right for war industries, but to extend the principle to newspapers would tend to restrict and color news and hence interfere with freedom of the press.

Guild spokemen replied that publishers had been unable to find a single case where the guild had controled the writing of any man. They added the publishers' fears about freedom of the press were the same "bugaboos" they raised against wages and hours legislation and the labor relations act.

Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president of the New York Times, said William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, had authorized him to repeat what Green had told him on two occasions—that he was opposed to the closed shop or maintenance of union membership for newspapers, and that the AFL could not get its views properly presented in newspapers without bias because the CIO controled the guild.

Would Have to Fire 3.

If his paper had had a maintenance of membership provision, Sulzberger said, it would have been compelled to discharge three of its most valuable writers because all of them at various times had resigned from the guild. He said these men were William Laurence, science writer, Louis Stark, labor reporter, and a "brilliant" editorial specialist, Robert Duffus.

Morris Ernst, attorney for the guild, replied that, "The press is going to lose the freedom of the press unless it wakes up. It is going to lose it to the radio."

Would Destroy Independence.

Ben McKelway, associate editor of the Washington Star, said:

"It is inconceivable to me, as a newspaper man, that the government would compel a newspaper reporter or editor to maintain his allegiance to any organization as a condition of his employment. If you do that, you will have destroyed, in my opinion, a tradition of independent journalism that has given our people, with all its faults, the best and freest press in the world."

Hits Four Shop Windows; Motorist Draws $1 Fine

A reckless driving charge against Leo Moir, 21 years old, 5828 La Salle street, was dismissed yesterday in Safety court after Judge Edward Luczak fined him $1 for failure to have a driver's license. Moir was arrested Sept. 28 after his car struck a mail box, four display windows, a parked car, and a brick wall at 63d street and Wentworth avenue.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with queries.]

M. B. writes: "My wife and I were orphaned children and never knew what a home was until we married five years ago and bought our little house 60 miles northwest of Chicago. I sank every nickel I'd saved up for the last 20 years into this deal and there is still a $4,000 mortgage at 5½ per cent outstanding. I've been reclassified to 1-A and the board tells me to expect induction within two weeks.. This does not give me time to even try to sell the place. My wife can't work and has no place to go. What happens to this property if I have to leave before it is sold? The draft board said the mortgage payments would be 'frozen' for the duration and six months. What about the interest and taxes?"

ANSWER: "Enforcement of any debt incurred before service may be stayed so that the principal plus accrued interest may be paid off after service in equal instalments over a period equal to the full period of service, upon application to a court during service or within 6 months after it ends, unless the debtor's ability to pay has not been materially affected by his service." This relief also applies to taxes or assessments due before or during service. We have an article giving a digest of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief act which is available on request if a self addressed stamped envelope is sent. If you receive your induction notice before you are able to dispose of the property and make reasonable arrangements for your wife, appeal to the state director for a stay of induction.

A. G. writes: "A mother having three sons in the service was told that in the event of the death of all three sons, she will not collect benefits from all three policies. She has been advised the proper thing was for one son to name her as beneficiary of one insurance policy and for the other sons to have named their sisters as beneficiaries, thus insuring themselves of collecting on all three policies."

ANSWER: The mother has been misinformed. Each insurance policy is a separate and distinct contract with the government and will be paid even tho the same person has been named beneficiary of two or more policies. In the event of the mother's death before all payments have been made, the nearest of kin become eligible in a regular sequence. It is best that men and their dependents have a thoro understanding of this insurance before the man goes into service and if a request and a self addressed stamped envelope is sent to us, we will forward a fully descriptive article about national service life insurance.

CHARGE AURELIO SOUGHT BACKING BY EX-CONVICT

Bar Says Candidate Knew Reputation.

New York, Oct. 15 [Special].—The charge that Thomas A. Aurelio, former magistrate, not only thanked Frank Costello, ex-convict, for helping him obtain the Democratic nomination for the Supreme court bench, but also solicited support at meetings of Tammany district leaders which Costello attended, was made in the petition of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York asking the appellate division to order Aurelio to show cause why he should not be disbarred.

Disbarment would automatically remove Aurelio's name from the ballot since under New York state law justices must be bar members.

Assert Duty Ignored.

The petition, commenting on Aurelio's statement that he knew nothing of Costello's criminal record, said Aurelio became aware of it when it was disclosed by District Attorney Frank S. Hogan and that he ignored his duty, which was to eliminate himself as a candidate so the honor and dignity of the Supreme court might not be weakened.

The bar association request was granted yesterday by Presiding Justice Francis Martin of the appellate division, who directed Aurelio to show cause next Wednesday why he should not be disbarred.

The petition, prepared by Harold R. Medina, counsel for the association, said that Aurelio sought Costello's support because he believed he had power and influence in the Democratic party. It granted that Aurelio might not have known of Costello's unsavory reputation at the time, but said his refusal to decline the nomination later constituted professional misconduct worthy of disbarment.

Charge Help Solicited.

The petition charged that Aurelio sought Costello's support at various times and places prior to Aug. 23, the day when the Democratic party nominated him.

Counsel for Aurelio today declined to discuss the bar association charges, but said the answer to the appellate division order would be filed next Tuesday.

INFANT ORDERED BEFORE COURT IN CUSTODY BATTLE

Nine month old Carlo Verdone, a soldier's son, whose paternal and maternal grandparents are waging what Judge John Prystalski termed a "regrettable" fight for his custody, yesterday was ordered brought before the circuit judge Monday.

Judge Prystalski issued a writ of habeas corpus on the petition of Joseph and Rose San Filippo, 1032 South Lathrop avenue, Forest Park, parents of the boy's mother, Antoinette, 20, who died Jan. 1 in childbirth.

The Filippos have been attempting to take the child from Carlo and Anna Verdone, 610 Monticello avenue, parents of the father, Corp. Charles Verdone, asserting that Antoinette made a dying request that they raise the child. The soldier's whereabouts is unknown.

MAYOR FAVORS DEFERMENT OF POLICE, FIREMEN

Mayor Edward J. Kelley yesterday supported the demand of Police Commissioner James P. Allman that members of the police department be deferred by selective service officials. The mayor said he would bring the issue before the United States conference of mayors in New York next month in an effort to get national backing for a ruling deferring both police and firemen.

"These men should get more consideration because they are doing work of national importance," Kelly said. "They are soldiers on the home front.

Michael J. Corrigan, fire commissioner, said he would ask deferment for any of his men called up for induction under the fathers' draft.

$250,000 ESTATE IS INVOLVED IN HUNT FOR WILL

Search for a missing will yesterday marked the efforts of Mrs. Clara D. Pease, former Chicago clubwoman, to obtain the $250,000 estate of her estranged husband, Edwin A. Pease of Aurora, who died on a California-bound train at Warner, Utah, Oct. 12.

Existence of the will was disclosed yesterday by Walter R. O'Malley, formerly Pease's attorney, now an Aurora municipal judge, after an old will, dated 1911, was found in Pease's safety deposit box. O'Malley said he assisted Pease in drawing a subsequent will, which has not been found.

Mrs. Pease sued her husband for separate maintenance in 1908, and the decree was granted in 1912. Pease inherited a $279,000 trust from his father, John H. Pease, pioneer Aurora financier and manufacturer. John J. Binder, Aurora real estate man, has been named administrator by Probate Judge Harry C. Daniels of Geneva.

STRIKE THREATS END SUSPENSION OF 2 POLICEMEN

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 15 (AP). — Faced with a threatened walkout of the police force, Commissioner Joe Boyle reinstated two suspended patrolmen tonight but said other demands of the men cannot be met immediately.

More than 150 policemen served an ultimatum on the commissioner today, demanding reinstatement of the two officers, restoration of civil service and increases in pay. Spokesmen said 75 per cent of the force—estimated at 350 men—were ready to join in a walkout if the demands were not met by Sunday morning.

Boyle reinstated Patrolmen C. A. Kettlewell and M. S. Nicholson, whom he suspended last week pending his inquiry into their handling of a robbery claim.

As for the civil service status, the commissioner replied in a statement that "If it should be restored, it will have to be done by the legislature."

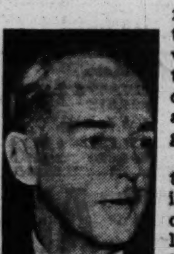
DENIES SALARY LIMIT IS OBJECT OF NEW TAXES

Treasury Counsel Defends Program.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.



Randolph E. Paul.

Randolph E. Paul, general counsel for the treasury, yesterday defended its new tax program, which has been the target of vigorous criticism in and out of congress.

Paul denied the treasury is seeking thru its recommendations to limit individual incomes to $25,000 a year after taxes. Then he modified this statement by saying that it will take a very big income to yield a net of $25,000 after taxes, if the treasury's program is enacted.

"But it wasn't our immediate objective to achieve such a limitation," he said, "altho that result will be attained in a great many cases."

Two Main Objectives.

The purpose of the new program is two fold, Paul asserted, to raise revenue and prevent the country's swelling purchasing power from breaking down the inflation controls already in effect. The program does not aim at social reform, he added.

Questioned on the effect of the proposed changes in federal estate taxes, Paul said it has long been recognized that death taxes were intended to prevent too great accumulations of wealth.

"That goes back to Teddy Roosevelt's day," he said. "It is the idea behind the whole system of progressive taxation. I don't think you take seriously the assertions that the proposed new taxes will result in the destruction of all private capital. After all, estates up to $60,000 are exempt from the federal estate tax."

Stiff Taxes Termed Essential.

Emphasizing the wide margin by which existing purchasing power of the country exceeds the available supply of goods, Paul asserted that a program of stiff taxation is essential to avoid inflation.

"It is true that the cost of living has gone down recently in a period when the inflationary gap has been widening, but it is necessary that we relieve the pressure on prices that are now being held in line by direct controls," he asserted.

Paul said details of the plan to convert post-war tax credits into government life insurance have not been worked out. There has been no decision whether such policies will have a cash value.

"We are in something of a dilemma on that point," he said. "If the policies don't have a cash value tax payers may not be willing to accept them in settlement of their refundable credits. On the other hand, cash values might be an invitation to wholesale surrender of such policies."

Opposed to Sales Levy.

Paul said the treasury is opposed to a sales tax because of the insuperable administrative work it would entail and because it would be "tougher on the little fellows" than the increased income taxes proposed by the treasury.

The treasury counsel discussed the tax program with reporters before making an address in the afternoon at a tax seminar sponsored by the Chicago chapter of the Chartered Life Underwriters. In his formal address Paul discussed problems involved in simplification of the tax system and tax returns.

He discouraged hopes that the tax laws can be greatly simplified.

"The price of too great simplicity would be too much injustice, and too much escape from taxes by too many," he argued.

Recommendations for simplification already made by the treasury, he said, include the elimination of the earned income credit in individual returns and the elimination of the victory tax. The first recommendation was made in 1942. The second came in Secretary Henry Morgenthau's recent message to the house ways and means committee.

Urges Tax Overhauling.

Speaking later before the same group, Neil H. Jacoby, University of Chicago finance professor, said complete overhauling of the federal tax system will be one of the most urgent of post-war needs. Such a revision, he said, is foremost among the steps necessary to assure a sound post-war economy.

The country is overwhelmingly committed to the retention after the war of a predominantly private enterprise economy, he asserted. Federal taxation must be converted from a system to penalize and destroy investment incentive into a powerful instrument for encouraging investment, Jacoby said.

Other governmental policies must be adjusted to create an environment in which enterprise and expansion will be rewarded and new business and industry can develop and grow, he maintained.

Nation's Business—First 9 Months

A. T. & T. Net Profits Gain in Quarter, Year

American Telephone and Telegraph company and subsidiaries yesterday reported net income was $46,216,621, or $2.38 a common share, in the quarter ended Aug. 31, compared with $41,019,026, or $2.11 a common share, for the corresponding period of 1942.

Earnings during the 12 months ended Aug. 31 were $182,878,362, or $9.42 a share, compared with $177,541,781, or $9.14 a share, in the preceding year.

For the parent company alone, net income for the quarter ended Sept. 30 was $42,639,000, or $2.28 a share, against $40,208,112, or $2.15 a share, in the corresponding 1942 period. Demands Met Satisfactorily.

In a message to stockholders, President Walter S. Gifford said most demands for service "have been met satisfactorily altho because of the shortage of facilities due to the material situation there are delays in installing telephones in an increasing number of cases, and delays on long distance calls on busy routes are increasing."

James S. Knowlson, president of the Stewart-Warner corporation, Chicago, notified stockholders that an earnings report for the six months ended June 30 will not be issued at present because earnings refundable to the government thru contract renegotiation cannot be fairly estimated.

NORTHERN SOFT AND HARD WOOD CEILINGS LIFTED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The OPA today announced ceiling increases for northern hardwood and softwood lumber to compensate producers for higher costs from wage boosts granted lumber workers last July by the war labor board. The increases, effective today, may be passed on to ultimate consumers.

A 15 per cent increase on standard northern hardwood was authorized, also increases of 50 cents and $1 a 1,000 feet in certain millworking, and $1.50 a 1,000 feet in kiln-drying charges.

SEC SEEKS TO LEARN WHO HOLDS BULK OF INCREASED SAVINGS

Working thru banks and other agencies, the securities and exchange commission is making an effort to discover who holds the bulk of the increased savings that have accumulated since 1939, Ganson Purcell, SEC chairman, said yesterday.

Individuals and unincorporated business have increased their liquid savings an estimated 35 billion dollars since 1939, he said in an address before the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman.

Purcell said the use to which such savings were put, as well as the large liquid [illegible] of corporations, would be an important factor in post-war economy. He asserted that their existence indicated that some war time economic controls would have to be continued for a time after the war.

If wisely used, Purcell said, the savings can be an important source of needed capital for "judicious" investment at home and abroad.

Profit Cashing Pares Broad Stock Upturn

New York, Oct. 15 (AP).—Stocks extended their recovery today altho volume remained relatively low and profit taking near the close trimmed the gains of many market leaders.

Farm implements pushed up at the finish with J. I. Case bounding 8 points on a turnover of 1,500 shares. Altho there were scattered gainers of 1 to 2 points elsewhere, most advances were in fractions.

The come-back of yesterday was extended at the opening, but buying remained timid. Bullish sentiment revived on the belief the dwindling of selling to virtually nothing indicated that the list was in a position to take advantage of any worthwhile stimulating news.

Farm machinery issues benefited from discussions of wider priorities for agricultural implement manufacturing. Pullman was up 2⅜ on forecasts of increasing orders for railway equipment. Cudahy Packing made a new top for the year with a gain of 2.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices advanced on an increased volume of trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Transactions totaled 21,000 shares. Middle West corporation reached a new 1943 high at 9⅝, but closed down ⅛ at 9⅜. Other volume leaders were Miller & Hart, up ⅜; Chicago corporation common, up ⅛, and Commonwealth Edison, down ⅛.

60 DAYS' GRACE URGED TO SOLVE BREWSTER KINKS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—A move to give the Brewster Aeronautical corporation 60 days' grace to iron out production problems before recommending continuance or cancellation of its naval fighter plane contracts developed today in a house naval subcommittee. Rep. Melvin J. Maas [R., Minn.], ranking minority member, served notice that he would offer a motion to have the subcommittee file an "interim report," and then reopen the investigation two months hence.

Maas' proposal, winning support from some other members, came as Lt. James J. Reynolds, industrial relations adviser for the eastern naval area, reported progress in efforts to develop a working relationship between labor and management.

Court Will Decide Fate of Hotel

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago has another orphan hotel —the Congress, noted old hostelry standing glum and empty, awaiting some one to put it back into the hotel business. When and who that will be is to be determined on Nov. 22 before Judge William H. Holly of the United States District court. Until then, curtains will remain down, shutters closed, and doors locked, said the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the owner.

Also an orphan is $215,415 deposited last April with the clerk of the federal District court by Arthur A. Sullivan, special district attorney, as the government's offer of compensation for rental of the Congress from Aug. 1, 1942, to June 30, 1943, as an army air force school. The lessee of the hotel, the Michigan-Congress corporation, has refused to accept the rent. It's out of the hands of the government, and the RFC cannot touch it.

Damage Claim Filed.

After the refusal to accept the federal offer of rent, the Michigan-Congress corporation filed a long answer recently claiming damages and stating that it does not know whether its lease with RFC is still effective and consequently doesn't know exactly what amount is due the government landlord as rent.

An official of the leasing corporation said he wished to reopen the Congress as soon as possible. The building is depreciating, taxes are mounting, the public is not being served, and the whole situation is "deplorable," he declared.

If the federal court hearing next month permits reopening, and priorities on equipment can be obtained from the government, at least part of the hotel can be reopened to guests within six weeks, he said. Such an opening would synchronize with several big conventions and by the time the 1944 Republican and Democratic conventions are due the whole hotel should be fully equipped and all of its 933 rooms ready for occupants, he added.

Taken Over in July, 1942.

The Congress hotel was taken over by the war department on a "condemnation order for use and occupation" in July, 1942. Sixty days before the expiration of its first year's tenancy, the government served another notice of its intent to occupy for another year, obligating Uncle Sam with another 12 months' rent. Last June, however, the government served a notice of "intent to abandon" and moved out on July 1.

Kemp Advises Sound Growth for Air Lines

Vast expansion in cargo and passenger air transport, both in the domestic and trans-Atlantic field, was predicted yesterday by A. N. Kemp of New York, president of American Air Lines. At the same time he warned that the nation must enter into this expansion sanely to guard against economic upsets.

"While the day is coming when we shall realize this growth, to rush into it might be spelling disaster, both financially and economically," said Kemp, who addressed the Commercial Club of Chicago at a luncheon meeting in the Chicago club.

Pleads for Sound Basis.

"Let us rather move into this new age on a sound economic basis, expanding where expansion is desirable, instituting new routes where they are needed and can be expected to pay their way within a reasonable length of time. Then air transportation will be built on the solid ground of economic sense and we shall not have to pay the heavy price in money and prestige which we should have to pay if we expanded further than warranted."

Kemp, whose company has applications filed with the civil aeronautics board for two Chicago-to-London routes, said he favors regulated competition by the government in the post-war expansion into the foreign field. He said that arguments for other alternatives of operation—government ownership, or monopoly—are unsound.

Favors Chicago as Port.

Kemp said his line's application to make Chicago a terminal port for trans-Atlantic routes is a recognition of the importance of Chicago in international air transport.

"Chicago is now the rail center of the world," he said. "It is so situated geographically that it can likewise become the air center of the world. Whether it does become so or not will depend on the vision and courage and business acumen of the citizens. The facilities will be provded by the commercial air line companies."

AIR LINE POLICY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The state department and civil aeronautical board outlined today the procedure in awarding international air routes to American operators after the war, but shed no light on the role this country plans in world aviation.

This is the procedure to be followed, the joint statement said:

Applications for international air service certificates will be filed with the CAB. The carrier then must show at a hearing that public convenience and necessity are at stake.

Questions of landing rights and other foreign policies will be dealt with in consultation between the state department and the CAB, the diplomatic service dealing with foreign governments for new or additional rights.

PUBLIC IS SHOWN HOW RAIL FLAWS ARE DISCOVERED

How rail flaws are found before they can cause damage was shown yesterday at the first public demonstration of the Buda detector car at the Wildwood yards of the Illinois Central. The railroad has bought the car for use over its system.

The Buda car uses a magnetic detection system developed by the test engineering department of the Association of American Railroads. W. C. Barnes, head of the department, and H. W. Keevil, his assistant, invented much of the equipment during the years of research preceding its going into use.

The magnetic method of detecting transverse fissures [sometimes termed "rail cancers"] is said to be much simpler than the older electrical method used in detector cars. The Buda company builds the two car units and much of the equipment in them, including the 135 horse power gasoline engine which propels them.

BANKS ALLOTTED 3.2 BILLIONS OF U. S. SECURITIES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The treasury announced today it had allotted $3,204,544,000 of securities to banks on the basis of last week's financing operation to supplement the recent 15 billion dollar third war loan, from which bank subscriptions were barred. Final figures on the war loan, already oversubscribed more than 3 billions, are expected next week.

No more large-scale financing is contemplated this year by the treasury. It also reported that approximately 3 billion 149 million of securities were issued in exchange for maturing securities aggregating 3 billion 435 million. The difference was paid in cash.

The banks were allotted $1,626,007,000 of 2 per cent treasury bonds and $1,578,537,000 of ⅞ per cent certificates of indebtedness. Subscriptions totaled $5,530,856,500 and $5,386,065,000 respectively.

Domestic Industries, Inc., Declares 12½c Dividend

Directors of Domestic Industries, Inc., Chicago, formerly the Domestic Finance corporation, yesterday declared a preferred dividend of 33 1/3 cents. Ordinarily the quarterly is 50 cents a share, but because this is the first distribution since the recent merger it covers only the fractional period since the merger. An initial dividend of 12½ cents on the common was also voted. Both are payable Nov. 1. Directors called for payment Dec. 1 the outstanding $739,500 of 10 year 4½ per cent debentures at 102, plus accrued interest.

AID ENTERPRISE BY TAX CEILING, CADMAN URGES

Assails 'Maximum Take' Policy.

Dr. Paul F. Cadman.

A constitutional amendment to fix the maximum limits on corporate and private income taxes and on inheritance taxes was urged yesterday by Dr. Paul F. Cadman, economist for the American Bankers association, as one of three tax reforms essential to the functioning of a private property system.

The other reforms recommended by Dr. Cadman, speaking before the Mid-Continent Trust conference in the Drake hotel, were:

1. Encouragement for and release of enterprise by the assurance of adequate reward, including the right of making proper provision for heirs and dependents, and

2. The adoption of a fiscal policy not for the maximum tax take, but a tax structure which would stimulate maximum production of real wealth.

Limits Held Confiscatory.

"Limitations on the amount of property an individual may own and bequeath long since reached confiscatory levels," said Dr. Cadman. "Under the exigencies of war the right of free use and enjoyment of the residue has suffered progressive curtailment. It remains to be seen whether the post-war adjustments will complete the shift to outright socialism."

Property may be confiscated directly by excessive taxation of income and inheritance, or indirectly by the manipulation of money and credit instruments to impair the purchasing power of money, he explained.

"If the war lasts thru 1944 we may have 200 billion dollars in bank deposits," said Dr. Cadman. "But for all this money—that is, purchasing power, we are growing poorer every day. We are using up our reserves of iron ore, coal, oil, timber, and other irreplaceables.

Blowing Them to Bits.

"We are sinking them in the seven seas and blowing them to bits which cannot be recovered. We are spending our wealth and we are not forming capital."

Government bounties in any and all forms were declared to be more apt to destroy than to create security. Any program which discourages skill, ability, initiative, invention, or thrift is not likely to enhance social welfare, he said.

Material decreases in taxation would stimulate industry, and a declared intention to turn away from deficit financing at the earliest possible moment would revive a vast store of flagging energies, Dr. Cadman asserted.

Even tho private property passed into total eclipse, it would reëmerge in some distant future because the ownership of property is the natural pattern of human behavior, he concluded.

MICHEL LEAVES NAVY TO SERVE TENNESSEE GAS

Anthony L. Michel has resigned as assistant to Ralph L. Bard, assistant secretary of the navy, to become vice president and general counsel of the Tennessee Gas and Transmission company, the company announced yesterday. The Tennessee company, control of which was recently acquired by the Chicago corporation, plans construction of a 50 million dollar natural gas pipe line from Texas to West Virginia.

Michel was formerly a member of the Chicago law firm of Gardner, Carton and Douglas. In his new position he will divide his time among Houston, which will be the headquarters of the Tennessee company, Chicago, and Washington, D. C.

Some opposition to the pipe line project is reported to have developed in Texas. Critics declare it will accelerate the depletion of one of the state's greatest natural resources. Coal interests in the Appalachian area have also been critical of the project.

CHARITIES WILL REAP $315,000 FROM SALE OF PATTEN BUILDING

Three hundred and 15 thousand dollars will be distributed among charities which are beneficiaries of the Charities Liquidation trust, created in 1937 to administer properties left by the late James A. Patten, one of the Chicago Board of Trade's greatest operators, as the result of a sale closed yesterday.

James J. Robinson, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc., managers of the Patten properties, sold the business building at 4613-17 Broadway to Barnett M. Kaplan of New York City for $315,000.

The property fronts 50 feet on both Broadway and Winthrop, with a depth of 156 feet on the north line and 161 on the south. It was improved in 1928 by F. W. Woolworth company with a one story building on Broadway and a two story unit on Winthrop. The property is under lease until May 1, 1979, to Woolworth at a net annual rental of $20,000.

All-Year Vegetable Ceilings Unworkable, Say Merchants

Setting ceiling prices on vegetables not yet planted is unworkable and will intensify prospective food shortage, vegetable commission merchants asserted yesterday after the office of price administration announced plans to set ceilings in advance for all seasons of the year on 13 vegetables. Typical comments follow:

"How does OPA know we will have any peppers next year?"

"How can they set prices in advance when they don't know what will be produced?"

"It will upset the regular procedure of business, particularly of the wholesaler."

"It is absolutely unworkable from the standpoint of the grower."

But What of the Weather?

"Placing a ceiling at the retail end and letting every one scramble at the production end will ruin everybody in between."

"If OPA could predict the weather, it might work."

The consensus was that fixing retail prices on vegetables not yet planted would not encourage producers, especially in the southern winter states, to gamble on weather prospects. Growers faced with a fixed return may not wish to invest their money on that basis.

Breaking down the costs on the sale of a hamper of February snap beans from Florida at 14 cents a pound, or $4.20 a hamper, it was said a fair return for the retailer would be $1.05 and for the wholesaler, 40 cents. Freight and ice would cost approximately 50 cents, cartage 25 cents, hampers 20 cents.

May Not Wish to Gamble.

This would leave the grower $1.80 to plant, grow, and pick his crop. With labor hard to get and wages high next year, he may decide he cannot afford to gamble on the weather, said the merchants. A good crop would just about enable him to break even, but a frost would take his investment.

Hindrance of production was only one of the disadvantages of year around ceilings, said the commission men. They also charged that the ceiling setup favored chain store carlot buyers and intensified the dangers of illegal markets when supplies became short because of bad weather.

Hog Run Rises Sufficiently to Ease Scarcity

Army Gets More Beef

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The war food administration today ordered federally inspected slaughterers to set aside part of their medium grade steer and heifer beef for the army and navy because supplies of better grades obtained under a similar set aside order are insufficient to meet military needs. The new order will take 45 per cent of the medium grade beef that comes within the weight range and other specifications set by the army.

More hogs were sent to most markets yesterday, ending the acute shortage for some packing plants. Arrivals in the Chicago stock yards, including many direct to packers were 18,000 head, the largest for Friday since July and compared with an abnormally low total of 7,040 a week ago.

Some packers said their plants handled "normal" volume for the first time in two weeks, altho the larger supply was unevenly distributed, and others said their operations were less than two weeks ago, before the OPA ceiling on live hogs brought curtailed farm selling.

Increased shipments from farmers resulted in more pressure on prices of pigs, lights, and inferior classes which soared to abnormally high levels when the ceiling was imposed. Some of the poorest classes have declined $1 to $2 below the high point. Good pigs below 135 pounds sold 50 cents to $1 lower than early this week, and good 140 to 160 pounders declined 15 to 40 cents.

CEILINGS PROTESTED

Representatives of the nation's live stock producers registered complaints against the recently established hog price ceilings at a meeting with OPA meat officials yesterday in the Palmer House. Charles M. Elkinton, government price executive on the meats, fish, and fats prices, and Gail Johnson, economic adviser, heard producers' charges of inequalities in hog price ceilings and complaints of unfair regulations, but made no promises of changes in the price tags. The conference will end today.

CONTRACT VETO GRANTED UNDER NEW WPB ORDER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—Creation of "production urgency" committees in areas of acute labor shortage, empowered to veto the award of contracts in their sections, has been ordered by Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the WPB.

The order, signed Oct. 4, is to be announced shortly, together with designation of three additional critical labor areas—Detroit, Mich., Akron, O., and Hartford, Conn.. Such designation means the imposition of "controled referral" plans for labor and restrictions on contract placement.

In each city the committee, whose major function is the fixing of "urgency ratings" for the industries and individual plants, will be headed by a WPB official named by Wilson.

BOHN ALUMINUM WORKERS STRIKE OVER CONTRACT

Adrian, Mich., Oct. 15 (AP).—More than 700 employes of the Bohn Aluminum and Brass corporation plant No. 24 walked off their jobs today in a dispute over what a union spokesman said was failure of the company to negotiate a contract.

Al Frost, plant manager, said this is the fifth labor stoppage since the bargaining election and that the company does not know what the union demands are.

Big Copper Mine Idle.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 15 (AP).—Production was at a standstill today at the huge Utah Copper company mine at Bingham. D. D. Moffat, president, said the walkout resulted from a jurisdictional dispute. A similar issue was involved in a walkout several months ago.

COLD STORAGE STOCK OF FOODS INCREASES DESPITE BIG DEMAND

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The war food administration reported today that cold storage stocks of beef, lamb, mutton, butter, cheese, poultry, and frozen fruits and vegetables increased during September despite the heavy market demand.

For the second successive month, creamery butter stocks reached a record level — 232,435,000 pounds, compared with 123,599,000 a year ago.

Stocks of meat as a whole decreased, reflecting a heavy withdrawal of pork and a seasonal decline in hog slaughtering. Meat stocks totaled 596,038,000 pounds, compared with 724,769,000 a month ago and 456,578,000 a year ago.

Beef stocks increased from 101,254,000 pounds on Sept. 1 to 111,929,000 on Oct. 1, while supplies of lamb and mutton increased from 13,777,000 to 17,682,000. Pork stocks declined from 497,164,000 to 361,186,000.

Lard stocks fell from 226,235,000 pounds to 160,545,000. They were, however, three times larger than a year ago.

CHARGE SCHEME TO INJECT U. S. IN OIL BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—Leading independent oil producers declared today that the government was "going into the oil business" thru its Petroleum Reserves corporation and that the big oil companies would benefit.

At a press conference arranged by the Independent Petroleum association, W. A. Moncrief, Fort Worth, Tex., a director, charged that the major oil companies "have a scheme" to get the government to drill wells and install equipment in foreign countries and have these properties fall into their hands after the war.

Charles F. Roeser, also of Fort Worth, a member of the petroleum industry war council, protested that independents were "kept in the dark about the PRC. Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes is president and other cabinet members are on its board of directors.

SHIPPER BOARDS URGE POST-WAR RAIL RESERVES

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 15 (AP).—Congress was asked in a resolution adopted today by the National Association of Shippers Advisory Boards to amend the revenue laws to permit railroads to set up reserves under interstate commerce commission supervision for post-war restoration of their plants and equipment.

The resolution said wear and tear on carriers was proceeding more rapidly than ever before, and that much maintenance and repair must be deferred because of heavy transportation demand.

The association also urged the office of defense transportation to eliminate unnecessary cross-hauling of passenger equipment and assign all chair car and coach seating space, the same as sleeping car space.

WHEAT PRICES TURN UNEVEN ON CEILING REPORT

After showing early strength yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, prices slipped back on reports that the office of price administration was considering placing a ceiling on oats and barley. Wheat closed ⅝ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower, rye ⅜ to ¾ cent lower, and barley ⅝ to 1 cent lower.

Believing that a ceiling on oats would slow down the movement from the country drastically, many large eastern users bought heavily. Sales by Chicago handlers were estimated at 150,000 bushels, and brokers said much larger sales could have been made if the grain had been available.

November and January Potato Prices Advance

Idaho russet potatoes for November delivery closed up 1 cent at $2.94 a hundred pounds on sale of one car yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. January russets closed at $3.34, a rise of 4 cents, one car changing hands.

NO-STRIKE PACT RULED LEGALLY BINDING BY WLB

Annuls Poll Result, Union Is Told.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15 (AP).—The war labor board ruled today that an existing no-strike contract is a legal obligation unions must observe and that it takes precedence over the right to strike gained in an election under the Smith-Connally act.

The ruling went to employes of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company in Springfield, Ill., who voted to strike in an election which had been requested by district 50, United Mine Workers of America.

Dr. George W. Taylor, WLB vice chairman, telegraphed district 50, UMW, and local 120 of the CIO Farm Equipment Workers that "contract provisions prohibiting strikes and lockouts create binding legal obligations which must be honored by the parties [company and union]."

Questioned on Legality.

The telegram was in reply to a question from Lee H. Hill, company vice president, who asked whether Taylor's opinion in the Allis-Chalmers case earlier this week implied that employes had a legal right to strike under provisions of the Smith-Connally act when a contract in effect prohibits strikes.

In his opinion, issued last Thursday on a decision in which the board declared it had no authority to grant district 50 collective bargaining election after the national labor relations board twice had rejected the union's proposal for such an election, Taylor said:

"We think it is advisable to state our view with regard to propriety of strike action following a referendum vote under section 8 of the war labor disputes act. There is no doubt that after the taking of such a vote, whatever its outcome, and unless and until the plant is taken over by the President under section 3 of the act, a strike may lawfully be called, but the moral obligation not to strike in war time remains."

Assumes Legal Obligation.

Hill said he assumed that "where a contract exists containing a prohibition against strikes during the life time of the contract, the WLB held that in addition to their moral obligation not to strike, the employes are bound by the contract and may not strike without violating the contract and subjecting themselves to such penalties as exist at law or in the contract or both for the breach."

WLB replied that this assumption was correct.

The Farm Equipment Workers have the contract at the Springfield plants, covering all production and maintenance workers. Hill said it contained a provision that during the life of the contract the union would not cause a strike nor take part in one. He added that the contractual obligation bound all employes regardless of whether they belonged to the Farm Equipment Workers or the United Mine Workers.

Asks Bargaining Rights.

Some time after the Farm Equipment Workers had held an election in which they obtained bargaining agency rights at the plant, district 50 asked authority from NLRB to hold an election and be certified as exclusive bargaining agency. The petition was rejected by NLRB. Later district 50 filed notice of intent to strike under the provisions of the Smith-Connally act and called an election at the plants.

The referendum vote favored the strike, but no strike has been called.

District 50 again asked NLRB for a bargaining agency election, declaring the referendum vote showed it had a majority representation at Allis-Chalmers. Again NLRB denied the petition.
